Pilots On Ship

The Pacific Pilotage Authority is conducting an inquiry into the grounding of the freighter Irish Stardust early Thursday morning close to Haddington Island off the northeastern coast of Vancouver Island.

Two B.C. pilots were aboard the Irish vessel when she ripped the entire length of her port side, spewing about 100,000 gallons of crude bunker oil as she made her way to Esquimalt.

Board chairman Alan Clark of Vancouver was unavailable for comment today but another official said that one of the pilots was on duty when the ship struck rocks close to the island between midnight and 1 a.m.

NO NAMES

He refused to give the names of the two pilots.

Maynard Richardson, spokesman of the ship's agents, Anglo-Canadian (West Ship) Ltd. in Vancouver said today the pilots had boarded the Irish Star at Cape Beale, when she was en route to Kitimat.

First reports pinpointed the grounding as being on Haddington Reefs, the same area where the B.C. ferry Queen of Prince Rupert grounded in 1967.

A ministry of transport official said today the correct position was west of the island, close into shore.

Richardson said the ministry of transport's preliminary closed inquiry has been completed. A further inquiry will begin in two weeks' time, either here or in Vancouver.

He said arrangements were being made by the ship's owners, Irish Shipping of Dublin, Ireland, to have $20,000 sent out to help meet costs of mop-up operations.

$500,000 TAB

Chris Hatfield, regional coordinator for the department of environment, estimates the cost of the clean-up job to be in the neighborhood of $500,000.

One of the many officials at Alert Bay on Cormorant Island, centre of the mop-up operations, Hatfield says his department is collecting evidence to support possible charges against the ship's captain, James Caird, for violations of both the Fisheries' Act and Migratory Birds' Conservation Act.

Friday, Caird was remanded in Victoria Provincial Court until Feb. 9. He is charged under the Canada Shipping Act with allowing his ship to discharge oil and failure to report the discharge immediately.

This is the first time in Canada that charges have been laid under pollution regulations of the act.

B. W. Lynch, operations manager of Irish Shipping, and two other company officials have arrived in Victoria.

After a meeting in Richardson's home Sunday, they announced that repairs to the ship will cost about $750,000 and will take about five weeks.

Richardson said, "She has damage to virtually the entire port side, it will mean replacing about 40 plates."

SAIGON — Supervision of the shaky Vietnam truce bogged down before it even got started today when three planeloads of Hanoi and Viet Cong officials staged sit-ins in their aircraft, refusing to deplane until the Saigon government recognized them as residents of South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, South Vietnamese and Communist troops battled from one end of South Vietnam to the other despite the ceasefire declaration, and Saigon reported 480 Communist attacks since the truce began, a larger number than at any time during the war. Nearly 400 Vietnamese were killed.

The first planeload of Viet Cong, who consider themselves citizens of South Vietnam, eventually won the battle of wills after staging a 22-hour sit-in that began after their South Vietnamese C47 transport plane landed at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base Sunday afternoon. Saigon officials today let the nine men off the plane without making them fill out immigration forms but warned its decision did not "constitute a precedent with regard to other such delegates."

Today, two U.S. Air Force C130 Hercules transport planes became the first American aircraft flown into Hanoi since 1954, but the nearly 150 North Vietnamese officers brought back by the plane to Tan Son Nhut also refused to deplane in a similar immigration dispute.

The North Vietnmese and Viet Cong officers, joined by South Vietnamese and U.S. officials, are part of a military group that will work with the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICSS) — a four nation body set up under terms of the Vietnam peace treaty to police a South Vietnam ceasefire.

Canada, a member of the four-nation truce commission, will withdraw immediately if fighting continues, Prime Minister Trudeau warned at a weekend news conference.

"We don't want to get involved in any major war," he said. Canadians were sent there to supervise a truce, not to witness a war.

About 145 military and civilian personnel left for Saigon from Montreal Saturday, the first part of Canada's contingent to the commission which also includes Poland, Indonesia and Hungary.

The first four-power meeting began today, within four hours of the Canadian delegation's arrival in Saigon, and at the Canadians' initiative.

Michel Gauvin, head of the Canadian delegation, told reporters the truce supervisory meetings had started as soon as feasible, but that the dispute between Saigon immigration authorities and arriving Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates had delayed his own organization.

Gauvin said the supervisory force was attempting to arrange another meeting with the joint military commission to make proper arrangements to move out.

"As soon as the joint military commission provides transport and proper security arrangements to get to the regional headquarters, we shall go."

The 1,160-man international commission force will have headquarters in Saigon, regional headquarters in seven military districts and small

HUE — At Quang Tri, on South Vietnam's front line, the heavy shelling stopped shortly after 8 a.m. Sunday, and soldiers of the opposing armies sang and waved at each other across the Thachhan River.

The morning mist was still thick as Lt.-Col. Nguyen The Luong, commander of the marine garrison in Quang Tri city, stepped out of a command bunker, clasped the hands of visiting reporters and said in Vietnamese:

"Thank you very much for your presence here on this historic occasion of the ceasefire. Whether there will be a lasting peace depends on the good will of the enemy."

A toast of weak, cold coffee was drunk. In the rubble that was once a city, there seemed a new beginning.

But 25 miles to the south, across the province line in a village called Phou Gan, the terrible past lingered. South Vietnamese troops, undeterred by the ceasefire, launched an operation into a hamlet a few hundred yards from the road where three North Vietnamese companies had infiltrated early Saturday.

Airborne forces by the truckload were deposited in the surrounding rice paddies and swept forward, supported by artillery fire. Ambulances raced by carrying the wounded

Land Bank Accord Reached

OTTAWA (CP) — An agreement to acquire and assemble land has been reached between the federal and British Columbia governments.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said in a news release today that CMHC will pay 75 per cent of the cost of land bought for housing developments in B.C. while the province will meet the remaining 25 per cent.

Land banks are to be set up in the regional districts of Vancouver and Victoria. Land banks are areas of land set aside for future development.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has said that the federal government is prepared to spend $5 million immediately to support a provincial land assembly operation in B.C.

The federal government also has announced plans to expand land banking provisions in the National Housing Act. Basford has said the government will set up a new communities program providing for purchase of land to create entirely new towns.

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer refused comment until he had received official word on the agreement from Ottawa.

In Toronto Ron Basford, minister of state for urban affairs, said today he will introduce legislation today calling for federal leadership and assistance in creation of new

TERRA NOVA BOUND FOR VIETNAM

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson said today the destroyer Terra Nova is sailing for the South Pacific as part of contingency plans to evacuate Canadian peace observers in Vietnam in an emergency.

Richardson told the Commons the anti-submarine vessel will not enter territorial waters of North or South Vietnam during what he called its "extended training exercise."

But it was being sent as part of the government's plans to remove Canadian observers if the Vietnam ceasefire erupts into renewed warfare.

The destroyer sailed from Esquimalt today.

Quebec Offers Games Aid

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Quebec will not hesitate to pick up the tab for a $5 to $10 million deficit for the 1976 Olympic Games, Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said Sunday.

He said the games will cost $310 million and these costs can be covered by revenue from the Olympics.

Ottawa, however, doubts the claims.

Prime Minister Trudeau at the weekend repeated earlier statements he is demanding written "guarantees" from Montreal that there will be no deficit for Ottawa to pay.

Montreal's Mayor Drapeau has insisted Montreal will not be asking the federal government for large sums of money to pay for the games.

But Montreal is hinging this on the idea that the sale of special coins will generate $250 million.

Roger Rousseau, commissioner-general for the 1976 summer games, said Ottawa has largely approved the proposed budget for the Olympics except for proposed sale of the specially-minted coins.

He said the government apparently doubts the amount that coin sales could earn and if they brought in less than organizers hope, the games would be run at a deficit.

There could be no budget for the games without the coin sales.

The Quebec finance minister said Sunday that the estimated cost contained a margin for error and inflation and that the committee had not requested funds from Ottawa.

The $60 million price tag he projected for administration costs would be derived from ticket sales and the sale of television rights.

Describing the games as "a challenge which must be accepted," Garneau said it would be disastrous to the economy of Montreal and Quebec if they were cancelled.

He did not elaborate.

Teamster Office Bombed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A fire bomb thrown through a second-floor window of the Teamsters' Building in Vancouver caused minor fire damage and smoke damage to an office today.

A half-hour later, at 3:45 a.m., an unidentified man called The Sun newspaper and several radio stations and said the bombing had been done by Teamsters desgruntled by the leadership of Senator Ed Lawson.

"Lawson is pulling up sticks and we don't like it," he said. "He's made his money and now he is pulling out — and we're getting violent."

The man said bombings would continue "on down the line" with other Teamster leaders.

Barrett Cancels Squamish As Site for Coal Loading

Barrett indicated the government is likely to relocate the port at Britannia Beach, which is 10 miles closer to Vancouver on Howe Sound.

Barrett made the announcement at a press conference this morning at which he released three environmental studies done on the Squamish site. The major report was done by environmentalist Howard Paish, with the other two coming from the federal department of the environment and the B.C. Railway.

Paish's report, on which Barrett said he based his decision to scrap the Squamish site, recommends against locating the port there. The environment department report, part of which was released earlier by federal Environment Minister Jack Davis, had recommended that further study be done of the Squamish site.

Barrett said today's announcement cancels a "handshake deal" between Davis and former Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who had tentatively agreed to locate the port at Squamish.

DISPUTES STOP ONTARIO MAIL

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Undelivered mail, including old age pension cheques, piled up here and in Peterborough, Ont., Monday as letter carriers and postal workers continued a dispute with local postal officials.

Supervisory personnel in Belleville were attempting to sort old-age pension cheques and union members agreed the pensioners should be allowed to collect their cheques at the post office. But that was the only mail that was moving.

At issue is management's intention to send carriers to their routes by taxi instead of bus so more time could be spent delivering mail. Employees complain this move would result in increased work loads.

Herb Coombes, secretary of the Peterborough local of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, said he expected the walkout in his city would only last one day.

Parole Board Interfering—Judge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Provincial Court Judge Les. Bewley has accused the National Parole Board of "interfering on a massive scale with the judiciary."

"It (the board) is upsetting the judiciary function right, left and centre," said Bewley, who lit into the National Parole Board Saturday night after a speech to the Vancouver Institute by board chairman George Street.

Bewley was heckled and told to sit down when he strode to the front of the lecture hall following Street's speech brandishing police photographs of a 63-year-old man killed in Vancouver last year. He said a 20-year-old parolee with a long record of petty crime was found guilty of the murder and sentenced to life imprisonment Jan. 12.

Bewley asked Street why David John Urias had been released on parole when he had such a long record of petty crime. "Did you know his whole record and on what basis did you lift his sentence?"

Street replied: "We have made 6,700 other mistakes in 14 years. The system is not perfect. How many times do you want me to come out and bare my soul and admit our mistakes?"

Street said the three-day pass system was handled by the prisons and not by the parole board. He said it was a good system, but "unfortunately it got out of hand they were giving three-day passes every three days."

Bewley said the board had become "extremely intransigent" and said the federal government should either direct the board to consult with judges to a much greater extent or put judges on the board.

"Very few judges sentence a man to X years in jail unless they want him to serve "X" years in jail," Bewley said.

Street said Canada has the greatest per capita prison population in the world because Canadians are punitive. He said locking up prisoners for long periods of time prevented them from learning responsibilities.

"Whenever possible or feasible, the offender should be kept in the community where he can work and support his dependents, contribute to the economy of the country and learn to be a responsible citizen" Street said.

He also pointed out that punishment was expensive. It cost $9,720 to keep a prisoner in a federal institution.

In comparison, the total average cost for preparing a case for the parole board and maintaining a convict on parole in the first year was $1,105. Second-year costs of supervision averaged $458.

He said he favored requiring criminals to pay restitution to their victims. In his speech, Street said continuous punishment in a penal institution has little beneficial effect.

mixed teams at ports of entry and border points.

The first Canadian contingent arrived at Saigon airpor about 2:30 a.m. Saigon time today after a 26-hour flight from Montreal via Anchorage, Alaska, and Tokyo.

Gauvin is ambassador to Greece who has been temporarily assigned to Vietnam.

Gauvin stressed that it is up to the joint military commission. "to provide us with the means of transportation and the security to get to the regional headquarters."

He said demarcation lines will be established by the joint military commission. "We are there to assist them," he declared.

As he spoke, Brig. Gen. Bui The Lan, commander of the South Vietnamese marines, said two of his companies were trapped under heavy North Vietnamese artillery fire at the mouth of the Cua Viet River, four miles below the demilitarized zone.

Lan said 20 marines had been killed and 70 wounded since a North Vietnamese tank and infantry column launched an attack before dawn today.

The Saigon command accused the Communists of 480 violations since the ceasefire began Sunday morning. Most of the violations were rocket and mortar attacks, infiltration of small units into hamlets and cutting the key highways. In two instances, the command charged, the North Vietnamese used tanks after the ceasefire.

The Viet Cong radio accused the Saigon forces of "many acts violating the agreement in a blatant manner" and claimed that all Communist units "throughout the entire area of South Vietnam have completely carried out the ceasefire."

It charged that South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu publicly violated the agreement by prohibiting the people from visiting their families in the rural areas to celebrate the ceasefire and by ordering soldiers to stay with their units in the field in order to send them to the battlefields.

When the ceasefire began, Thieu urged troops to stay in the field over the Tet festival of the lunar New Year on Feb. 3 "to insure security for the people."

It was learned that U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker had personally intervened for the second time in two days in efforts to resolve the diplomatic haggling.

The four parties — the United States, the Saigon government, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong — met for a total of three hours in morning and afternoon sessions but accomplished "absolutely nothing," the source said.

"It was abber, jabber, jabber," he added.

The United States, Saigon and North Vietnam presented their credentials at the first commission meeting attended by all parties in the morning, the source said, but the Viet Cong refused without citing a reason. The Viet Cong are South Vietnamese who have their own regime, which they call the provisional revolutionary government.

Military sources said a document captured in the Mekong Delta instructed Communist troops to keep fighting until the international supervision teams were in place, and to continue where there are no teams.

South Vietnamese officials reported the total casualties on both sides since the cease fire was announced five days ago approached the bloodiest weeks of last yar's Communist offensive. They said 6,133 were killed, including 3,322 enemy and 575 government troops. Of these, 1,095 enemy and 168 government men died in the 24 hours beginning at 6 a.m. Sunday, two hours before the ceasefire began.

South Vietnamese air force planes flew bombing missions in support of government troops although the number of sorties was omitted from the daily war communique. U.S. aircraft suspended operations over South Vietnam in accordance with the ceasefire but continued raids over Laos.

There were conflicting reports concerning Cambodia. U.S. officials in Phnom Penh said all bombing was suspended there with the ceasefire, but a Washington report said they continued.

. . . VIET FIGHTING

and in one jeep there were two blindfolded Communist prisoners. Civilians fled, barefoot and carrying their rice pots.

Everything was as it might have been any time during the war, except for the noticeable absence of air strikes and helicopter gunships.

It soon became clear that government officials did not want the action discovered.

Two reporters, a photographer and a driver, in a jeep rented in Hue, chanced upon the fighting on our way back from Quang Tri, where we had gone the night before. As we had driven through Quang Tri along the desolate road lined with the rusting garbage of war, there were only occasional, widely scattered sounds of artillery. A ceasefire had begun, confirming the remarkable and moving scene we had witnessed in Quang Tri.

Suddenly there was the crackling sound of recoilless rifles, small arms fire and artillery. As we waited to see if it was safe to go on, a cavalcade of jeeps drove up, led by the Thuathien province chief, Col. Ton That Kien, and Maj. Lien Thanh, head of the province police.

Thanh, mistakenly thinking we had come from Hue that morning, demanded to know how we had gotten there, yanked the film out of the photographer's camera, confiscated the identification card of our driver, and had the tires of our jeep shot out with an M-16 rifle. We asked the province chief to explain what was happening. He just shrugged. The official procession drove on.

Shopkeepers and soldiers in a nearby hamlet told us that the fighting had been going on for 24 hours. At first the government tried to dislodge the North Vietnamese with militia forces and police. When that failed, the airborne were called — sometime after 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

The battle was still going on when we left, hitching a ride on a military truck and leaving our jeep behind.

There appeared little doubt that, ceasefire or not, the fighting would not end until the last North Vietnamese soldier was killed or driven out. "Where is the peace?" asked a woman standing within hearing of the shooting.

In Hue taxi drivers said the city had been sealed at dawn, ostensibly to prevent Communist infiltration. Americans said serious incidents had been reported in other parts of the province, but how many, when and who started them were questions the Americans couldn't answer.

"We don't know because the Vietnamese don't want us to know," said a U.S. captain, an adviser in an outlying district who was pulled in Sunday morning and was on his way home.

Vietnamese officials have always said that if a ceasefire was declared, both sides would try to improve their positions in the days immediately before — and after — the truce took effect. The "twilight" period, one aide to President Nguyen Van Thieu called it.

That is what has happened at Phon Gan and doubtless in dozens of other hamlets around the country. The Communists came into quiet Phon Gan on the last day of the war. The government retaliated rather than have a National Liberation Front flag flying alongside a major road.

The familiar grimness of the fighting for a village made the morning at Quang Tri seem all the more unreal.

All night there had been no let-up in the war. Shells had landed in Quang Tri's ruined streets, flares shot skyward and friendly artillery fire rang out from all directions. The South Vietnamese marines, who captured the city on Sept. 15 after a battle that went back and forth for months and cost a total of some 80,000 lives, alternated between tight security and expectant relaxation.

The dawn broke gray. The shelling stepped up until just before 8. The rounds seemed to be landing one every few seconds. Inside the command bunker of the 1st Battalion, an American adviser, Capt. Rich Higgins, glanced at his watch and said to Colonel Luong, "it's time. It's 8:02."

"We're taking incoming," the colonel said. "We'll continue to return the fire."

But at 8:05 the colonel started radioing the order for fire to cease.

It was only a few minutes later that the colonel and other officers emerged to an unaccustomed stillness.

Warily at first, the tired marines began to step out of their bunkers. Their officers had to order them to keep their flak jackets and helmets on.

In the Citadel, a fortress pounded into dust by B-52 strikes during the summer, the troops, gathered in small groups, strained to see the movements of the Communist forces on the other side, a few hundred feet away. They raised the red and yellow Vietnamese flag on every object, making the desolate landscape come alive with color.

Then in the distance someone spotted a red Communist flag. The men shouted, pointed and waved enthusiastically. A lone Communist soldier appeared from behind two large palm leaves and waved back.

About 75 volunteers joined officers and crews of the Canadian coast guard vessels Douglas and Mackenzie Sunday as they labored to clean up polluted beaches on Cormorant Island.

Winds of 50-miles an hour, mixed snow and rain, added to the problem.

It is expected to be a month before the polluted areas are cleaned up.

A "rehabilitation centre" was established in an Alert Bay classroom on the weekend. Classes were cancelled today so that students could comb the beaches for oil-coated birds.

Hatfield reports that all salmon and herring spawning areas have apparently escaped being polluted.

tacked the federal minister today for remarks in the federal department's study which Barrett termed "political."

Davis said in his report that the proposed port at Prince Rupert is "a viable economic and operational alternate" to a site at Squamish. Ecologically detrimental effects of a northern port are considered minimal, Davis said.

"I find that absolutely incredible," Barrett said, adding that no environmental studies have ever been done of the Prince Rupert proposal. "Environmental studies should not be played around with politically," the premier said.

He said Davis' comments on Prince Rupert were "thrown in just for politics. Politics have no place in scientific studies."

Barrett described the Britania site as an excellent prospect for a coal port. A mining company has already extensively developed the area and there would be no environmental damage at that site.

He announced that Paish is at work on an environmental study of the Britania site. A preliminary report filed by Paish said the Britania site had "excellent possibilities." Paish's full report is expected in a matter of weeks, Barrett said.

The premier said there would be no public hearing on location of a coal port at Britania. "I don't see any need for a public hearing at that site," he said, adding that concerned residents of the Squamish area had requested a public hearing before locating the coal port in their area.

Ove Witt, Victoria alderman and victim of a kidney ailment, was admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital Sunday for observation pending major surgery later this week, a hospital spokesman said today.

Witt was hospitalized last year, emerging just before Christmas. It is understood that he will be given a kidney transplant although this was not confirmed by medical authorities.

The 1973 Jeep Truck. It works up a storm

Hook up this 4-wheel drive Jeep Truck to the optional snow plow, and watch the white stuff fly. This is one truck with guts enough to handle any kind of work those winter winds can whip up. Rugged 258 CID six is standard. Or you can get a work hungry optional 360 CID V-8 with either 2 or 4 barrel carburetion. Take your choice of three heavy duty transmissions—a three speed manual (standard), a four speed manual or three speed automatic (both optional). With the Jeep Truck you have a choice of 2 wheelbases as well as 6 models. Payloads range from 1285 lbs. all the way to a whopping 3520 lbs.
And remember, the Jeep Truck is built from the ground up as a 4-wheel drive truck.

Why not come in out of the cold and talk a deal. Test drive a Jeep Truck. It's one of the hardest cold weather workers of them all . . . at a price that will keep you warm all through the winter.

DAZZLING FOOT-WORK BY SPANISH DANCERS

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

In its most perfect representation, the art of flamenco and other indigenous Spanish dance forms is as any other art — a marriage of technical virtuosity with inner resources of spirit and understanding.

Ciro and his company of four dancers, two guitarists and guest star, Rosa Montoya, on Sunday at the Royal Theatre provided as perfect a presentation as it is possible for the average dance afficionado to imagine.

Technically Ciro and Montoya are almost beyond belief, seeming to have command of endless variations in the heel-clattering foot work.

It is of couse, a language — of flirtation, courtship, challenge, rivalry. And in the use of it, these two artists are most eloquent; the sensual slow beat, the mockery of the coquette, the lover's question rising to a passionate insistent prestissimo.

Superb style and grace caracterize every movement and the company reflects the quality of Ciro and Montoya in the graceful and spirited performance of the ensemble.

The young men of the company particularly, are exciting dancers exhibiting in their solo work a dazzling technical command.

Sustained vitality, humor, audience communication enrich a performance that is towering in its artistic implication and virtuoso aspects.

The musicians who accompany it — flamenco guitarist Carlos Rubio, classical guitarist Bunyan Webb, and an excellent flamenco singer, Antonio Serrano, are an additional enrichment and virtuoso performers in their own right.

Costumes designed by Ciro are exquisite but what a pity that the show should suffer its only drawback from the antiquated and altogether inadequate lighting of the Royal Theatre stage.

CMHC Bares Warranty

TORONTO (CP) — Herbert W. Hignett, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., unveiled plans Saturday to give house buyers guarantees and warranties.

"The system would involve a non-profit corporation with which builders would be registered, the inspection of houses during construction and the provision of adequate standard warranties," he told the Canadian Home Manufacturers' Association.

Such a plan, he said, would be largely voluntary and co-operative.

"In the field of housing . . . consumer protection seems to be mostly conspicuously lacking. You get warranties and guarantees when you buy your car or your television set, but when it comes to the biggest purchase of your life, your house, you are often very much on your own."

"Insurance would be provided against failure to complete the house, or to make good the warranty and against subsequent structural failure, or unsatisfactory performance."

Ron Basford, federal urban affairs minister, has said that new legislation would provide a warranty system to protect buyers of new houses against shoddy workmanship.

Nixon Urges Restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon sends to Congress today a proposed fiscal 1974 budget totalling $268.7 billion which he said will help the country toward "a new era of progress."

The president said the budget is low enough to avoid an increase in taxes and he urged Congress to set a ceiling on over-all expenditures.

"If we are going to keep taxes and prices down, the Congress must keep spending down," he said Sunday in a nationwide radio address on the budget.

The proposed budget is an increase of about $10 billion over spending for the current fiscal year which ends June 30. It would carry a deficit of about $12 billion, less than half the projected deficit of $25 billion for fiscal 1973.

Nixon indicates that he anticipates a fight in Congress over the budget, which includes what he called "some very sharp reductions in some very familiar programs."

The programs due to be cut include hospital construction funds, urban renewal and special aid for schools near federal installations.

The budget will send the federal debt past the half-trillion-dollar mark by June 30, 1974.

The debt will total $473.3 billion next June 30, the budget message disclosed. This is a $36-billion increase from the total a year earlier.

In Switzerland, the U.S. dollar plummeted to a new low of 3.635-3.645 francs, a full 5 per cent devaluation in the past week.

Rezoning of Church Land Key to New Development

Rezoning from church use to single family for 3.5 acres of undeveloped land near Mt. Douglas will be a key to plans for 15.5 acres of new housing development in northern Gordon Head. The combined property would make 64 lots.

The application by Victoria Realty Ltd. on behalf of a holding company, Metropolitan Realty Ltd., is one of three rezoning matters coming before Saanich council at a public hearing at 7:30 tonight.

Metropolitan Realty holds 6.2 acres of sloping, treed land with rocky outcrops on Thornhill Crescent, an undeveloped street off Winchester Road, north Shelbourne area. The 3.5-acre church zoning is believed to date back many years and may have once been intended to provide for a church building as it is situated on a knoll.

A spokesman for the company said it is intended to create 25 lots of larger than minimum size.

It is intended to co-operate with another owner to provide access through his subdivision which fronts on Kenmore, rather than opening Thornhill.

The second owner, Dave Spilsbury, holds slightly more than nine acres which could be divided into about 39 lots for single family dwellings.

The Victoria Realty spokesman said it is hoped to service the properties fully with underground installations, with the two owners sharing costs.

Informal hearings between residents and municipal planners are in progress, having started last week in Gordon Head Recreation Centre.

The two other applications are also for Gordon Head land 1.25 acres at 1550 Arrow which Mt. Douglas Lodge Society wants changed from low density apartment to detached housing, and 82,000 square feet at 3969 Cedar Hill Road for which Barbizon Developments Ltd. seeks a change from detached to medium density housing.

Basford, speaking to the annual conference of the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, outlined proposals to amend the National Housing Act.

They include:

A program for repair and rehabilitation of existing housing;

A program to enhance and preserve urban neighborhoods;

New and generous provisions to encourage non-profit co-operative housing;

Provisions to allow the Mortgage Insurance Fund to complete unfinished houses and to grant mortgages pursuant to a warranty scheme.

The minister said all levels of government must co-operate along with industry to tackle the problems of price and availability of services land for housing.

Indian Protest

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The Kamloops office of the Indian affairs department has closed and will remain closed for the duration of a sit-in by Indian protesters, acting district supervisor Allan Cornwall said today.

Cornwall said he wouldn't call in the RCMP to clear the demonstrators out "as long as they remain peaceful."

He said all office business has come to a halt.

The Indian affairs office was occupied last Wednesday as a protest against a federal government order setting aside the election Dec. 21, of Norman LaRue as chief of the Kamloops Indian band, pending an appeal.

Former chief Gus Gottfriedson challenged the validity of the election, saying 11 of the voters did not meet residence requirements. He lost the election by three votes.

The Indian affairs office was occupied today by between 20 and 40 protestors, led by LaRue.

LaRue said today he has instructed Vancouver lawyer Harry Rankin to apply for an injunction ordering the Indian affairs department to return the Kamloops Indian band records for audit by an independent accountant.

Cornwall said the band's records were seized after Gottfriedson's appeal of the election. The action was taken because until the appeal is heard early next month, the band in effect has no ruling council.

If you're in a group pension plan start using the Government's new rules to save a bundle on income tax.

You likely know you don't pay income tax on the dollars that are put into your group pension plan. But did you know that the Government has passed new rules that can help you save an extra bundle of money on retirement savings?

Basically, you're now allowed to put an additional amount into a retirement plan with us. We register it with the Government and you enter it as another tax deduction, as long as the total deduction you claim for both plans doesn't exceed $2,500 or 20% of your earned income.

For example, if you're paying $700 into your present plan, you may be able to put an extra $1,800 into our plan. The chart gives you an idea how much additional money you'll save.

To top it all off, this extra money you save can make more money. Essentially there are four ways you can do this. You can have us invest it in stocks. You can have us invest it for a guaranteed rate of interest. You can have us invest it in income producing bonds and mortgages. Or you can divide your money up using any combination of these three alternatives.

The beauty of it is: You can actually control the combination as your needs change over the years.

For instance, you could invest in stocks for several years, for long-term growth. And then as you get closer to retirement, you might want to switch to a guaranteed interest rate.

*ASK FOR DETAILS AT PARTICIPATING BRANCHES

And you can get your money out without paying a penalty.

When you eventually choose to withdraw it, you have to pay taxes on it at that time, of course. But this is what's most important.

You pay tax on your money when you decide to pay it. This means later, when you're likely in a lower tax bracket.

This has led some to call this plan a tax shelter.

One fellow we know plans to pay into it for several years, watch it grow, then take it out to replace normal income while he lazes in Majorca.

But let's face it, the real benefit comes from leaving it in 'til you retire.

Moreover, we don't have a lot of salesmen out making calls, therefore you don't have to pay sales commissions.

This means, however, that you have to call us. Don't put it off.

You can't deduct any deposits from your 1972 income after Thursday, March 1st, 1973.

If you're short of cash, talk to us about a low cost loan. The interest is deductible from your taxable income so you'll still save a bundle.

Make the rules work for you. Phone us now!

Annual Earned Income	Amount You Pay Into Your Pension Plan	Amount You Can Put Into Your Plan With Us	The Extra Bundle You Save
$ 7,500	$ 375	$1,125	$292
10,000	500	1,500	401
15,000	750	1,750	618
20,000	1,000	1,500	658
30,000	1,500	1,000	490

If you're not in a plan now, your savings will be considerably more. That, however, is another nice story we will be happy to explain.

If you're in a group plan now, but not making contributions to it yourself, you can put up to $2,500 into your plan with us.

No Block Is an Island

The traffic problem of downtown Victoria was summed up by Mayor Pollen in his inaugural address when he pointed out that in the twelve years since 1960, the number of registered vehicles in Greater Victoria has grown from 48,000 to more than 100,000. That statistic has certainly been demonstrated in the growing congestion of the city's streets — and it makes no mention of the thousands of visitors' cars which add to the traffic during the summer months.

One remedy for the situation would be to keep automobiles off certain streets and turn the thoroughfares into pedestrian malls. This would have the added benefit of increasing the beauty of the downtown area, clearing the air of considerable gas and noise pollution, and producing a more livable environment.

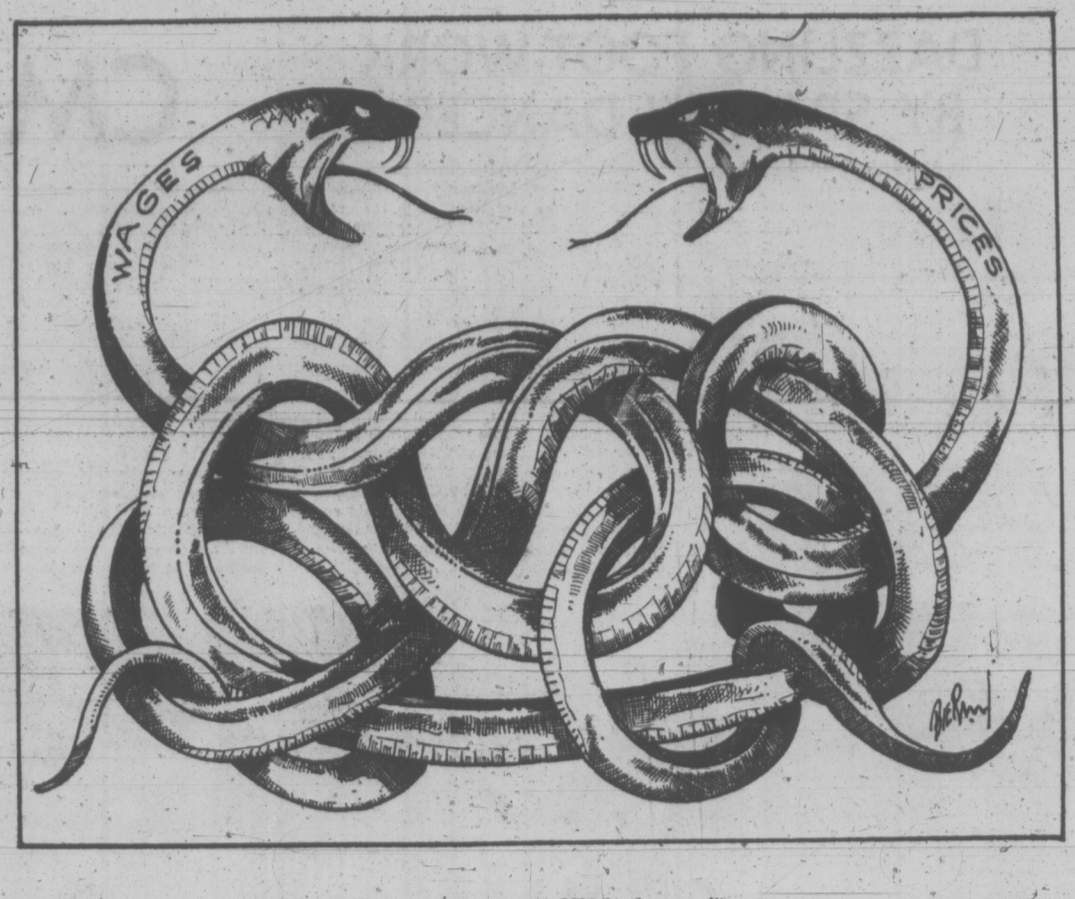
The catch in the case of Victoria is that there are now four feasible north-south routes through the city which carry the brunt of traffic, and to close off any of these must inevitably throw a heavier concentration of traffic into those which are left open. The volume of automobile traffic north-bound on Blanshard Street on a recent mid-afternoon suggests that there would be definite limits to how much more could be diverted there from Government or Douglas Streets.

It is necessary when closing off a major street — no matter how attractive the mall plan might be — to consider carefully how alternative streets are going to carry the displaced traffic, and whether they will be able to do it, not only at present, but also in the future.

Thus it is that the attractive proposals to close off Government Street between Humboldt and View, and View Street from Government to the Parkade east of Douglas, and create pedestrian malls, should be considered not only from the viewpoint of positive benefit from such a project, but also in regard to where the traffic will go. Obviously it would go mostly to Wharf Street and Douglas Street, and this raises the additional question of how it would get to and from these thoroughfares — particularly if some connecting streets are one-way.

These considerations certainly do not preclude the idea of city-centre malls. But they indicate that a viable mall program cannot be installed in sections and in theoretical isolation; and it cannot be made workable if it is not prepared on the basis of future traffic and usage rather than on the needs of today.

The whole city core and its approaches — its traffic flows, its parking accommodation, its retail trade, its numerous other requirements (which should also include access for fire-fighting equipment) should be considered as an entity. There are many intriguing possibilities and imaginative concepts in the situation, but a real achievement will necessarily involve a total approach.



". . . YOU get off MY back . . . !"

Suicide in the North

Councillor Lena Pederson's disclosure to the Northwest Territories' council that the suicide rate is soaring among northern Indians and Eskimos should concern all Canadians. It should also prompt federal authorities to initiate programs to halt this trend.

Mrs. Pederson blames the intrusion of white culture into the northern communities for the unhappiness which leads to suicide among the native peoples. Social upheavals are destroying a way of life that once was satisfying to the Indians and Eskimos. The changes have come too quickly for them to adapt to the white man's ways — and the white man's problems.

The thrust of northern development, the exploitation of the territory's riches, have brought an inevitable surge of more sophisticated southerners into the northland. But if the current harvest of resources is not accompanied by social arrangements which leave the natives with lives at least as satisfying as they were before the commercial invasion, then Canada and Canadians are failing in our obligations to peoples who deserve more consideration. The federal government should provide a remedy on our behalf.

Remedy?

African clawed frogs brought in for use in pregnancy tests by scientists, have so propagated near San Diego that they pose a threat to the balance of nature.

This is a familiar development when alien species are introduced for a particular purpose, find an amenable environment and thrive to a point where they create their own population explosions.

An African expert has suggested a remedy for the frog problem. Drop a few alligators in the drainage ditches populated by the frogs and they'll provide the solution, he says. Then what do they drop in the drainage ditches to take care of the alligators?

How Shall 'Bias' Be Determined?

More impartial juries for accused black persons in United States criminal cases may result from a new Supreme Court ruling requiring potential jurors to be questioned on their personal racial bias. It is assumed that if a juror replies that he has no bias, he automatically will be without bias. Conceivably he could be.

Yet it is a conviction of some persons who have studied the issue that those most vociferously protesting any charge of bias are frequently deeply prejudiced in racial issues, whether they know it or not.

It is simple enough to reject for jury duty a person admittedly out to "get" an accused person of any particular ethnic origin. It is far more difficult to determine the suitability of another individual who has never decided for himself whether or not he has a particular bias. The U.S. Supreme Court ruling sounds more impressive than it may prove to be.

Into the Wild Blue Millions

CALGARY — During the last election there was a lot of grumbling in Calgary as elsewhere over the amount of federal money that was being poured into Quebec by the Hon. Jean Marchand, the custodian of the Regional Economic Development cornucopia. Last week the former custodian, now minister of transport, was still in business but in a new location. He announced that work will start this summer on a new $57-million air terminal in Calgary.

So far as can be detected in three days of listening, not a single individual or collective whisper has been raised in Calgary against this way of spending federal tax dollars. The city council has held no emergency meetings to pass resolutions of protest. The Chamber of Commerce has remained unaroused. Even Grant Notley, the NDP MLA, who is the fastest reacting politician in Canada, has let the announcement pass.

Much Too Much

Yet Canada no more needs a $57-million air terminal in Calgary than it needs a $570-million Olympic games in Montreal. A $3-million air terminal? Without a doubt. Even a $16-million air terminal? Conceivably, given $7-per-hour building tradesmen. But a $57-million air terminal? Oh, come Mr. Marchand!

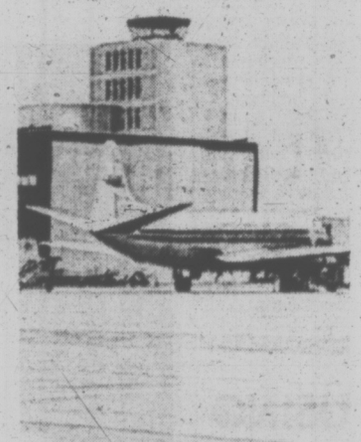
Calgary for 15 years has been caught up in the old airport terminal prestige bit. Cities once known by the gaudy ornateness of their railway stations are now seemingly judged by similar qualities in their air terminals. And compared with other cities, Calgary has been a depressed slum area when it came to status symbols in the space age.

That was a fact local boosters could not escape when they went gadding about. Winnipeg had become the beneficiary of Conservative largess and wound up with a prairie Taj Mahal for air travellers. Then Edmonton got its combined mausoleum-air terminal deep in the boondocks.

There are cynical Winnipeggers around who still regard the millions spent on their air terminal as a booby-prize type of compensation for being robbed of the Air-Canada repair depot. The shops once employed hundreds of Winnipeggers. Normally a cannon can be fired through the rotunda of the Winnipeg terminal without hitting even an Avis girl.

The unhandy location of the Edmonton terminal had Calgarians chuckling at Edmonton's embarrassment. Until, that is, they had to pay taxi fares for the 15 miles ride in and out of Edmonton.

Admittedly, Calgary's terminal is the busiest in the west. Two airlines operate daily flights into and out of the United States. There is a frequent air-bus service to Edmonton and Lethbridge and flights into the north. Seven eastbound and six westbound Air Canada daily flights touch down and CP has two each day. Then there are the international runs.



WINNIPEG AIRPORT
. . . prairie Taj Mahal

But as a frequent user of the present terminal over the past 20 years I have yet to become tangled in oppressive congestion. True, during Stampede week, and during schedule disruptions, it can get crowded. But it has yet to match what was once the normal crush of a railway station when the harvester excursions arrived.

What congestion there is can be blamed on the makeshift expansion of accommodation that has occurred. For many years Calgary operated the only city-owned airport in the country. As it was trying to unload it on the federal government it was reluctant to spend its own money on something it was trying to palm off at a profit. The descriptive term is "jerry-built."

Prestige Things

If handling passengers were the primary concern, none of the Canadian airports is a model of efficiency. But airports are prestige things. Every city must not only have an airport, it must have an international airport. Even with its rattletrap terminal, Calgary's McCall Field became Calgary International Airport when the first American connection was obtained.

All boosters naturally want their international airports built with the future in mind. Calgary, by the normally inflated booster count, handled one million passengers in 1971. The new terminal, when it is completed in 1976, will have a capacity of two million a year. But local tub-thumpers are now claiming the town will handle three million by 1976.

So for his $57 million Mr. Marchand will get a terminal that is obsolete before it is built. He, however, should take comfort from the batting averages of Calgary forecasters. A raft of empty school class rooms testifies to the fallibility of those who estimated school needs. And the Alberta universities are in deep trouble because of the wild guesses of their student body growth forecasters.

Hanoi's Allies Did It

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The end of the Vietnam war is leaving one fascinating and overriding question. Why was it possible to get agreement now, when for so long there was utter frustration?

The obvious reasons — the bombing of the North, the blockade, the containment of Hanoi's 1972 spring offensive — help to provide an answer. The military balance did, indeed, shift against North Vietnam in the past ten months.

But this alone would not necessarily have produced a settlement. It might, at best, have prompted the North to reduce the scale of operations, returning to guerrilla war.

Some time last summer, Hanoi must have made a major policy decision to settle. This decision became apparent in October, and has now reached fruition.

It may or may not (in good faith) have included hostilities against Saigon. We know that it included the United States.

Without a Guarantee

For the first time, Hanoi was prepared as of Oct. 8 to co-operate in a complete American disengagement from the fighting without first obtaining a political settlement — that is to say, without first obtaining a guarantee of eventual political dominance in the South.

This decision to let the United States off a hook which had impaled the heart of America, divided its people, strained its resources and hamstrung its diplomacy could only have been produced by still more impelling considerations of national interest. Hanoi must have decided, at the very best, that it could not win the war as long as American forces were involved.

This in turn suggests a second and still more significant inference. Hanoi must have become aware that its two great-power allies, the Soviet Union and China, were no longer prepared to underwrite the indefinite bleeding of America.

Preoccupied with a deadly internecine struggle of their own, Moscow and Peking each had placed higher priority on detente with Washington than on the communization of South Vietnam. Each of the two Communist giants was determined not to find itself alone against a coalition consisting of its adversary and the United States.

The first unmistakable public sign that this was the case was the Soviet

PRESIDENT THIEU
. . . alive and well

Union's refusal to cancel a summit conference with President Nixon in May, 1972 despite the American blockade of North Vietnam. Had Moscow's priorities been different, that summit meeting would not have taken place.

The evidence that China, for her part, had downgraded the war was less dramatic, but equally conclusive. Peking made no significant effort to circumvent the blockade. She sent no fleet of minesweepers, mobilized no airlift, dispatched no "volunteers," even said relatively little — for her — in protest. She simply absorbed the blow.

In the face of the over-riding fact that her allies were unreliable, Hanoi caved in. Without abandoning the capacity to renew the struggle, she agreed to a truce during which the Americans could go home, taking their PoW's with them.

To anyone who had listened, week after week, to North Vietnamese spokesmen in Paris saying there could never be a separate military settlement, independently of a political accord, this was one of history's more striking diplomatic turnabouts.

Alliances Eroded

Hanoi had wanted desperately to force the United States to oust President Thieu. Until Washington did dispose of him, Hanoi had said over and over, there would be no truce, no prisoner liberation.

But there was a truce; the prisoners were coming home; and Thieu was alive and well. He would continue to get American support. Nothing but the erosion and threatened loss of Hanoi's alliances could have produced such a result.

What will happen six months or a year from now, no one can say. No doubt the inevitable political in-fighting and efforts at mutual subversion will have a military dimension as well. It seems unlikely that the conflict, so obviously unresolved, will be carried forward wholly under the terms of the written accord.

But American participation will henceforth be limited to clandestine operations — the CIA presumably being deeply involved — and to military-economic aid.

So a new chapter is beginning. It may not be "peace with honor," but it is disengagement with honor — and it might even, by a series of remarkable circumstances, turn out to be a kind of peace.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Veterans' Hospital

Is Canada so devoid of sentiment and regard for her one-time honoured veterans of two wars, that the D.V.A. Hospital cannot be left as it was conceived — a hospital and a home for aged and ailing veterans of both sexes?

We must not let it be turned over to civilian rule as long as there are veterans to occupy it — and there are many of these yet in need of care and attention.—E. W. Abraham, 1125 Faithful St.

Expanded Role

It was with some dismay that I noted the title of the article on health care on page 19, January 22. It accompanied a picture, taken to illustrate one of the areas of the expanded role of the nurse. In no way have I ever considered myself a "serf" of the medical profession. Trying to depict in a news photo this new role is a difficult problem. Defibrillation is only one task which we perform. It requires judgment based on many hours of special preparation and skill training.

Professional responsibility requires a commitment of time and money to acquire continued education. Each one of us, the consumer and professional alike, must be prepared to pay for this constant ugrading in order that some standards are met and maintained.

I have always enjoyed a co-operative working relationship with my physician colleagues. It is my hope that they will understand that the title inflicted on that article was an editorial prerogative and not a quotation.—(Mrs.) Corinne Tench, RN, Head Nurse, CCU, Victoria General Hospital.

(Editor's note: The whole tone and intent of the story agreed with Mrs. Tench's thoughts as expressed in this letter. "Serf" was a reference to Dr. Muriel Uprichard's quoted use of the term "servitude".)

A Bit Hyped

Don't you think the clipping, "Booming Goodwill Turns 15" in January 18th's paper is rather optimistic and a bit hyped? For instance, if your figures are right (150 people on an annual payroll of $500,000 plus) a lot are working for subminimum wages. Some boom. Unless, of course, those 10 people on the payroll 15 years ago were weaving baskets for nothing.

I can't help but notice the painful parallelism between the donation of second-hand items to second-rate citizens — the handicapped. And I wonder who will hire these people once they have learned to repair the junk they are given? "Hire the Handicapped" is a catchy slogan but a self-defeating one in a free enterprise system; since it implies that the handicapped are less capable than "normals".

The monumental task is not in vocationally training the handicapped but rather giving them an opportunity to work in the mainstream of society; instead of being segregated into a corner like Goodwill (the west coast's largest employer of the handicapped). As I have said before, nobody is created equal, but every one deserves equal justice, equal liberties and equal human rights. To remove those equalities from a person or group of persons is an act of oppression.

So, maybe 15 years hence Goodwill Enterprises will have hired 2000 disabled on an annual payroll of six and a half million bucks. And the general public can be content with their phony, humanitarianism and their stereotype plastic Timmy heroes. Boom!—Craig MacLean, 4206 Bilston Place, R.R. No. 1.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of Jan. 29, 1913:

VANCOUVER — Airship flights between Vancouver and Victoria will be established during the summer providing the plans of one of England's foremost birdmen materializes. R. Wickham, an aviator of distinction in Great Britain and Europe, returned to Vancouver after looking into the feasibility of inaugurating a passenger airship service over the Gulf of Georgia, linking the two largest cities of B.C. The plans provide for daily flights carrying passengers who are venturesome enough to brave the dangers of the air. Mr. Wickham said the trip could be done in well under an hour with a good following wind. A speed of 80 miles an hour could easily be developed.

'Cowboy Arithmetic' For the Rich

By JAMES ROWEN

(Rowen is a reporter in the Washington, D.C. office of Consumers Report. He wrote this article for The Washington Post.)

They don't raise beef cattle in the U.S. the way they used to. No, sir. Now, from the Kansas plains to the southern California desert, they've got big, automated feed yards, almost all of them built since 1960.

You rarely set eyes nowadays on cattle grazing peacefully on the range for a couple of years, waiting for a trail boss and some cowpokes to drive them to Missouri. Mostly you see these automated lots where they make the cattle overeat all the time with antibiotics, hormones and piles of feed.

Sometimes they even play music for the cattle to keep them happy. All this cuts down a steer's fattening time from the normal three to four years to just 12 to 18 months.

That's not the strangest thing, though. The strangest thing is these people who call themselves "farmers" — at least on their income-tax returns — and who put up money for the big feed lots. To keep the yards jammed, which often means 25,000 to 50,000 head at a time, beef-producing outfits set up investment companies to take care of the raising, feeding and slaughtering of herds for the "farmers" who never see farming. These people may be shoe manufacturers or doctors or New York lawyers who have never been farther west than New York. At tax time, they're farmers.

Some call this whole process "cowboy arithmetic." What happens is that a cattle investment outfit sells "subscriptions," or shares, in cattle-feeding partnerships. The investment outfit acts as general and managing partner, while the investor, for as small a grubstake as $3,000 or $5,000, becomes a limited partner. That's how each investor becomes a "farmer," allowed to list his investment — which usually is used to buy cattle feed — as a "farm expense," and to deduct his "farm expense" from his non-farm income, which he may get as a dentist or an actor or whatever else he really is. That way he pays less federal income taxes than he otherwise would, which is the purpose of "cowboy arithmetic."

That's not all there is to it. "Cowboy arithmetic" also lets these "farmers" write off for tax purposes more money than they put in. They also can postpone getting any cash from their investments for three to six years, so they can take their profits in a year when it most helps them hold down their tax bills. If this income delay sounds like one of the advertised tax breaks of putting money in oil, that's because the benefit is similar — only, as one cattle management outfit says, "unlike oil, you never get a dry hole."

It's not everyone who can be a farmer who doesn't farm so he can feed cattle he never sees in order to write off more money than he invests and to collect profits he doesn't want for up to six years. You have to be rich to play "cowboy arithmetic."

Specifically, because of some state laws covering partnerships, investment outfits managing cattle restrict the players to those either in the 50 per cent tax bracket or swearing to a net worth of $100,000 to $200,000. Only sixtenths of 1 per cent of American taxpayers are in the 50 per cent bracket, according to the Internal Revenue Service's 1969 tax survey.

"Cowboy arithmetic," of course, also helps the beef-producing companies that own cattle investment outfits, or else they wouldn't be organizing the game. Promises of an oversized writeoff and up to six years' income deferral attract a good number of takers for partnership shares bringing in cash that saves the parent company a trip to the bank. Bank loans are costly, partnerships are not only interest-free but they produce income. The investment outfits take their profits off the top, which means they make money even if, for some unlikely reason, a partnership fails.

That's why outfits like Fat City Corporation in Monterey, Calif., are getting in on the action. Fat City and its affiliates — Bareback Cattle Co., Lucky Stiff Livestock Insurance Associates, Maverick Land and Cattle Co. and others — buy and sell cattle and grain, livestock, sell manure, truck cattle, and market carloads (40,000 pounds) of live cattle on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Privately owned, Fat City is run by Jim Marks, former manager of a meat packaging company, who holds nearly 60 per cent of Fat City stock. Two of his sidekicks — Robert Swanston, scion of a pioneer cattle-raising family, and Eldon R. Hugie, an attorney and accountant, own almost all the rest, giving the three together 98 per cent of the stock.

After operating relatively small feed lots in Muleshoe, Tex., and Chowchilla, Calif., Fat City opened a massive yard, California's largest, in the Salinas Valley. Each Fat City affiliate contributes to the production of fattened cattle at the Fat City lot, where 70,000 steers stand in narrow, eight-foot-deep concrete pens, get their feed in a trough filled by truck and, according to Fat City's receptionist, are soothed by music piped across the acres of feeding pens. "Their favorite," she says, "is Frank Sinatra," and "they like the kind of music kids listen to on the radio."

It was in 1971 that Fat City decided to get into the "cowboy arithmetic" game. It created a subsidiary, the Steer-West Cattle feeding programs, to take care of cattle for absentee "farmers" making clear that this partnership plan would dominate the entire Fat City spread.

"Most of Fat City's time and efforts will be expended on matters relating to partnership business," said the prospectus, and 80 per cent of its feed yard space will be used for partnership cattle. If fully subscribed, Steer-West will corral $19 million and take care of 315,000 head of cattle.

Of this money, a good chunk is cut off the top by Fat City and its affiliates. Each steer bought for the partnership, for example, brings a $3.50 "fixed fee." For 315,000 head, this fee alone would come to more than $1, million. In addition, there is a buying commission that amounts to $20 for each 500-pound calf. Feed eaten by the partnership cattle is marked up a minimum of 25% over Fat City's cost.

And on top of numerous other daily yardage fees, financing fees, insurance premiums and trucking charges, 10 per cent of the profits — if the partnership brings in a return of more than seven per cent — goes to the general partners, who are Steer-West and Fat City director Robert Swanston.

The investor-"farmers," who must plow in at least $10,000 to become limited partners, are rewarded with "at least" a 140 per cent tax writeoff for the year they put in their cash. They can do this because the partnership goes into debt by borrowing more money to buy more cattle. The limited partners are allowed to report as their tax write-off a share of the borrowed money, which is certainly "Fat City" to a high-bracket "farmer" looking for an inflated tax loss.

F. Michael Stone, a Fat City director and vice-president of Steer West, defends the write-offs for cattle feeding, preferring to call them "tax-incentive investments." "Someone will have to subsidize" public needs, according to Stone, and having the government directly pay the costs of programs like oil and gas exploration, housing development and cattle feeding would bring on the "super-imposition of a bureaucracy."

His position is to let the government subsidize the rich cattle investor: "Who's best able to take that risk—individuals or the guy who can afford to be burned — but you gotta give him an incentive."

Stone believes that the write-off provisions of cattle feeding "make good sense in entreprenurial and capitalistic America," but he concedes that "we suffer from a bad press . . . I think in the infinite scheme of things, a rational person will see he's really getting a break, because someone else is taking the risk."

Small feed lot operators, though, don't think they're getting any break. While the tax law lets big operators gain from loophole cattle feeding, small lots happen to be going out of business.

It is questionable, to say the least, whether consumers think they are getting any break. Not only are housewives paying some big fat prices for beef nowadays, but they are subsidizing the big cattle yard operators with tax dollars to boot.

The only ones who are without a doubt getting a break are the non-farming "farmers" investing in big feed lots and the lot operators who are in on the action.

HOME, HOME ON THE BANK

Just how remote from farming can the new "farmers" get? Consider the Beef Builders Feeding programs, a new cattle partnership operation set up primarily for the American doctor. It is a joint outfit run by two separate companies, Dallas Factors, Inc., of Dallas, Texas, and Physicians Equity Services, Inc., of New York City.

Physicians Equality Services' major asset is access to a mailing list of nearly 80,000 doctors and other professionals supplied by several New York financial consultants. These consultants own nearly all the stock in the Physicians Equity Services, founded in December, 1970.

Since neither managing partner owns a feed yard, the partnership cattle are placed in selected lots, and the partnerships are billed for the operating services. For their management services, the general partners take a nine per cent chunk off the top of each $5,000 subscription, a "supervision fee" of $2.50 per head bought for the partnerships, a charge of one per cent of all loans obtained for the partnerships and a payout of any profits in this order: from the first $10 per head sold for slaughter, the managing partners get 25 per cent; then 50 per cent of any additional profits.

The doctors get their tax breaks. The government loses revenue. The taxpaying consumer subsidizes beef production. The partnership managers — in this case outfits that don't even have feed lots — make their money. The small, family-farm lots keep going broke. "Cowboy arithmetic" has certainly changed the way they raise cattle these days. Yes, sir.

HIGH-RISE CAMPGROUND

Roughing It in New Orleans

SATURDAY REVIEW

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Ah, another glorious morning! You jump out of your camper, step jauntily across the lush greensward to the guard rail in front of a breathtaking vertical drop, gulp the moist ocean air deep into your lungs, and look out over — well, over Earhart Boulevard to the glass-and-steel office buildings of downtown New Orleans.

Such, at least, is the dream of two urban visionaries named Wesley Hurley and Albert Ledner, who have recenly announced their intention to construct the world's first skyscraper campground.

Their idea calls for the construction of a twenty-storey, open-sided high-rise complete with a security guard in the lobby and a swimming pool and barbecue pit on the roof. In between, the lower floors will be reserved for parking, while the twelve upper stories will be divided into 240 camsites, each one carpeted with Astroturf and equipped with a utility nookup and deck furniture.

The ground floor will house an all-night supermarket and a fast-food facility dishing out "camper-burgers" to hearty outdoorsmen famished after a bone-crushing day in the traffic. Plans are also afoot to include a beauty parlor, a barber shop, and an automobile service garage in the building—but plans are the only thing afoot.

The campers themselves will watch as their trailers are placed on a turntable-like platform and hoisted up to the appropriate slot, then follow along in elevated comfort. All this for $11 per night for each vehicle.

The idea was really Hurley's brainstorm. One day the thirty-eight-year-old demolition expert came across several run-down buildings owned by Ledner. Hurley's own camper had just been vandalized in New Orlean's French Quarter, an incident which confirmed his suspicion that people who invest in expensive campers are particularly vulnerable to bad elements — human or natural.

"People don't want the woodsy bit now," he explained. "They enjoy traveling and want to camp in comfort near the city." (Not that Hurley has anything against camping outdoors: "I was driving in from the Great Smokies last week and couldn't help thinking of our building sitting up there. What a great view!")

So when Ledner asked him what he would put in place of the run-down buildings, Hurley was not at a loss for words. The two formed Hi-Rise Campsites, Inc., and set about finding the $4 million they figure it will take to get the project — which Ledner, an architect, designed — off the ground.

They hope to have the building completed in time for the opening of the nearby Superdome stadium in 1974. Which means that if the scheme doesn't work, Hurley could convert the campground into a parking lot for sports fans.

Talk to the Animals

RUSSELL BAKER

A woman writes that she caught herself talking to her cat recently and has been worried ever since about whether her sanity is failing.

Without knowing more about her behavior, the rashest psychiatrist would hesitate to diagnose her case, but there can be nothing to alarm her in a conversation with the cat. Nothing is more normal than talking to cats, unless it is talking to dogs. Some persons talk to both.

Observation of persons who keep animal and marine life around the house suggests, in fact, that the principal motive for doing so may be the urge to own a captive audience. I know a woman who keeps iguanas, which she addresses as "mummy's old snookums," and keeps them, I firmly believe, only because they're the last living creatures that will listen patiently to her tirades against Franklin Roosevelt, whom she holds to blame for all that is disagreeable about life.

Over the years, she has bored to death, or flight, dogs, cats, white rats, hamsters, parakeets and a tank of tropical fish with her denunciations of Roosevelt.

The iguanas don't seem to mind. Iguanas, obviously, can take it; or perhaps — it is hard to tell what may go on in those dim minute reptilian brains — perhaps iguanas, too, have a special grievance against Roosevelt.

This woman is an exceptional bore, of course. Animals will put up with almost any kind of talk from humans, so long as the meals come regularly and the lodging is comfortable. "It beats working," they say in the pet world. Most animals, indeed, believe that their human providers are poor bargainers.

Look sometime at the average cat dozing by the fire in the best chair in the house. Look at the merciless stare of those slitted eyes as he surveys the people who provide his food, build his lovely fire for him and provide this truly remarkable chair for his comfort, asking nothing in return except that he glare at them with utter indifference whenever they want to call him "dear old puss-puss" and subject him to inane monologue.

It is easy to see what he is thinking. "If I were six feet tall," he is thinking, "and had one of those humans for a pet, does anybody think for one minute that I would put up with his lying idle around the house all day and shedding fur or whatever humans shed, all over my best furniture? Hah!"

Clever though they are at the art of survival in luxury, cats have limited perceptions. Thus, they cannot see that their providers have good reason to tolerate their swinish idleness.

Cats — or for that matter, dogs, canaries, iguanas, bobcats, moles, goldfish, turtles — offer humanity one reward that most beasts are too dim-witted to understand. When talked to, they give the appearance of listening. It may be nothing more than appearance, but the human need is such that even appearance is enough.

Parenthood, which used to be common in North America, has accustomed millions of us to audiences, through the habit of talking to babies. Babies listen. This discovery by new parents may be one of the most astounding of their lives, for in all likelihood no one has ever before listened to them. They have probably not even listened to each other. But baby arrives, and baby listens!

The day arrives — invariably this day arrives — when the baby quits listening. It may then be 14 or 15 years old and full of resentments, particularly about being addressed as a baby in the monologues it now hears but no longer listens to.

Habituated to attentive ears, by years of being listened to by babies, parents abruptly rediscover what they had once known in their own childhood, before babies arrived: to wit, that nobody out there is listening.

Occasionally someone may quiet down, but this is usually illusory. He is merely formulating the speech he will deliver to you the instant you finish your own, which he has been too preoccupied to listen to.

And so many a person of good mind winds up talking to insolent cats, sycophantic dogs, fish, reptiles, birds. Persons not so sound may start talking to cars, or to trees. Bad cases talk to their trash cans. Animals are best. Of course they don't listen, but they give the appearance of listening, and when you pause for breath they don't seize the opportunity to take over the conversation, knowing perhaps that you are far too interested in what you have to say to have time to listen to them.

AMIN SEEKS ECONOMIC AID

KAMPALA (AP) — After throwing out the Asians and watching Western aid fade, President Idi Amin of Uganda now realizes that new foreign help must be brought in to keep his suddenly Africanized economy afloat.

In an interview this weekend, Amin said help should come from "friendly" Arab, European and Asian countries and include engineers, doctors and other experts.

Chinese, Arabs and East Europeans may thus replace expelled Asians of Indian origin and departing Americans and Europeans — but in smaller numbers and for a limited time.

"We are not going to depend completely on outside aid, but we do need temporary assistance . . . three to four years should be sufficient," he said.

"If the British had helped us to train our people in commerce before independence, we would not now be in a position of asking for technical assistance. The British did not hand over the commerce. They gave it to the Asians, who controlled 99 per cent of it."

Amin took it away from the Asians and deported them on 90 days' notice last fall. He declared last week that black Ugandans should manage all Uganda businesses.

SEEKS INVESTMENTS

Amin, who announced last Thursday that all Ugandans must exchange their money for new currency — bearing his likeness — within 15 days, told this correspondent he plans a national program to get personal savings "out of the mattresses and holes in the ground" and into banks where the money could help with nation-building.

He also urged his countrymen to stop drinking alcohol and not spend too much time and money enjoying life, but make sacrifices for nation-building.

Amin, a Moslem who gave up alcohol a few years ago, said alcohol and fast living were becoming a problem.

Foreigners began pulling out as Amin ejected the Asians and life in rural Uganda became dangerous due to robbers and anti-government guerrillas clashing with the growing Uganda army.

AMIN
. . . policies not working

Five months ago there were 11,000 whites in Uganda, including 7,000 Britons, more than 1,000 Americans, about 1,000 Italians and lesser numbers of other groups including Scandinavian and Canadian aid teams, which have since left.

There now are about 2,600 Britons left and the total white community is down to about 5,000. Five hundred to 1,000 Asians remain.

"It is difficult to think about aiding a country when you are concerned with evacuating your people," observed one troubled diplomat.

'Obesity Hard to Treat'

EDMONTON (CP) — A lot of myths exist about fat people — "a folklore of fat" — but for doctors one main fact stands out:

"Obesity is hard to treat."

This was a conclusion Saturday of a panel of five medical specialists on the final day of the three-day meeting of the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Only one or two per cent of obese people can be effectively treated so they maintain weight loss, said Dr. Vivian Rakoff, a psychiatric professor at the University of Toronto.

Treatment of many patients has been either "a disaster" and they don't really lose weight or they undergo a "yoyo effect, which can be even more disastrous," he told a news conference during the final day.

DEPRESSION HITS MANY

Dr. Charles H. Hollenberg, chairman of the department of medicine, University of Toronto, agreed. Many obese patients become seriously depressed about their diets and can get to the point of suicide, he said.

The doctors stressed that they were talking about the seriously-obese patient — "those who are at least 25 per cent above their ideal weight." Dr. Rakoff said many of these obese persons are "food addicts" and have to be treated like any other addicts, except that it is even harder for them.

Alcoholics or drug addicts can be weaned off their addiction and, provided they don't start drinking or taking drugs again, they can remain off, he said.

"But you can't stay off food; it's necessary to eat to live."

The most effective method of treatment is "behavioral deconditioning," he said. The person has to be totally re-educated about himself and his eating habits and develop new habits.

The weight reducing groups in the community work on this basis, he said. But good scientific, long-term follow-up on the percentage of persons who maintain their weight loss for, say, five years, is not available.

NOTE PREOCCUPATION

The doctors both said Canadians are generally preoccupied with being overweight.

Dr. Hollenberg said he wouldn't worry about the additional 10 or 15 pounds for the average person — "provided there were no other medical problems" such as heart conditions, diabetes or so on.

"A lot of people are being driven crazy because of this preoccupation with lean," added psychiatrist Rakoff.

He also said that society — those with so-called average weight — tended to discriminate against the obese individual.

"It's not a crime, it's a misfortune," he said.

Both doctors said obesity in childhood should be treated, although this is difficult to do.

"If obesity in childhood is not controlled, the probability of the person being an obese adult is great."

SEEK REASON WHY

Earlier in the week, Dr. W. J. Poznanski, director of the metabolic research laboratory at the University of Ottawa, described some recent research into why a person gets fat.

"Earlier, it had been found that the cells in the obese person multiplied faster than those in a lean person," he said. "Now, we have found that the cells from a lean person will also multiply faster."

Dr. Poznanski said the lean person who has always been lean isn't necessarily "safe" from overweight problems forever.

"We have found that lean people have the potential to increase the number of fat cells. We just don't know what triggers the increase."

It isn't hopeless for the overweight individual, however. R. Poznanski said fat cells can be "flattened" or "shrunk." However, once a person has a large number of fat cells, the number doesn't decrease, so potential for quick weight gain remains.

In another session Saturday, Dr. K. E. Scott of Dalhousie University, Halifax, reported on his recent studies with patients on a maternity ward.

HALF UNWILLING

Of 200 women surveyed, almost half had not wanted to become pregnant, he said.

"Forty-seven per cent of first pregnancies were unwanted, only 31 per cent of second pregnancies, but 60 per cent of third or fourth pregnancies were unwanted."

Only 10 per cent of the women said they had "inadequate" knowledge about preventing pregnancies, he said.

Other studies have shown that among teen-age girls only about five per cent from upper income groups become pregnant but that 50 per cent in the lower income groups become pregnant, he said.

Most women who did not want their pregnancy had converted to wanting the baby when the infant was born. Dr. Scott said this is a psychological phenomenon based on the bonding that takes place during the pregnancy.

More than 2,000 doctors from across Canada attended the meeting.

Cleric Wants Canada To Help Haitians

MONTREAL (CP) — Many Haitian immigrants here are fighting a losing battle to remain on Canadian soil following new immigration regulations, adopted in November, which make it illegal to apply for landed immigrant status from within Canada.

Rev. Paul Dejean, a Haitian priest who immigrated to Canada in 1971, said in an interview these people had "sacrificed so much to get here, it would be tragic if they have to leave."

The exodus from Haiti began when the late president Francois Papa Doc Duvalier took power in 1957.

Although a new work-permit regulation makes it even more difficult to gain entry with just a tourist visa, Haitians continue to arrive, lured by travel agents in their own country who promise that getting into Canada is as easy as ever.

"They sell everything they own to get here," Father Dejean said. "And when they arrive they find they've got to get some more money to post a bond against their eventual return.

"And then they fall into the hands of dishonest lawyers who take their money but don't help them."

TACKLES PROBLEMS

Father Dejean, who was expelled from his country in 1969, heads the year-old Christian Community of Haitians in Montreal which has become actively involved in the problems of Haitian immigrants.

He estimates there are 12,000 Haitians in Montreal and 3,000 more scattered across the rest of Canada.

Father Dejean has nothing against Canada's desire to set immigration policy. He acknowledged that most immigrating Haitians have no trade and few of them have more than grade school education.

When the exodus first began in 1957, most of the immigrants from Haiti were professionals, he said. In 1967, a different kind of migration began. Young people — hundreds from all social classes — began to leave Haiti to find new ways of life.

"There is no hope in Haiti for these people. They have no opportunity to get an education or to escape the poverty of their parents."

He believes Canada has a moral responsibility to these new immigrants.

RESEMBLE REFUGEES

"They're almost like refugees. Many of them have had some kind of difficulty with the regime at home and it would be uncomfortable for them to return.

"The rest are victims of a political system which offers them little hope for the future."

It May Take Years To Trace Missing

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will take many years, if ever, to solve the riddle of what has happened to more than 1,300 American fighting men missing in Southeast Asia, Pentagon officials predict.

American representatives will go over the list of unaccounted for U.S. servicemen with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong authorities, name by name, seeking information on their whereabouts.

The Vietnam peace agreement, signed in Paris Saturday, commits all parties to co-operate in locating missing men and graves.

But the language in the various documents is general and the provisions for carrying out such responsibilities are sketchy.

It is clear that much will depend on the willingness of the North Vietnamese to permit search teams on their soil.

High hopes that many of the 1,300-plus missing men would turn out to be enemy prisoners were shattered during the weekend when the North Vietnamese reported they and their Viet Cong allies held 555 Americans captive. Under the ceasefire agreement, prisoners are to be returned within 60 days.

U.S. military men and civilian officials long have acknowledged privately that perhaps most of the missing were dead because American airplanes and their crews were seen going down in deep jungle, often far removed from roads and villages.

The Vietnam peace agreement stipulates that all the parties—U.S., North Vietnamese, Viet Cong and South Vietnamese—shall exchange complete lists of captured military and civilian personnel on the day of the signing.

But Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim confirmed that the Communists provided no list covering Americans captured in Laos. Only six Americans have been listed by the Pentagon as captured in Laos, but another 311 were carried as missing and Friedheim said "We have reason to believe there are more U.S. PoWs in Laos."

The key paragraph in the Vietnam peace agreement that obligates the North Vietnamese and other signing parties to cooperate in locating missing men.

But the agreement does not spell out the measures, apparently leaving it to the goodwill of the countries involved to carry out the responsibilities.

Draft Dodgers Plan to Stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for The Committee to Aid American War Objectors said Sunday that most U.S. draft dodgers in British Columbia plan to remain in Canada.

The man, who would identify himself only as Marshall, said "the great majority of people have established roots here."

"It would be a convenience to travel in the U.S., but most think of themselves as new Canadians."

Asked whether draft dodgers and deserters in Canada would campaign for a general amnesty, he replied: "I don't think Nixon deserves an amnesty.

"Maybe if he goes to North Vietnam and works in a hospital to help some of the people he has maimed, we might consider giving him an amnesty."

He said the U.S. might grant a conditional amnesty, such as one requiring two years of alternate service to war objectors within the next year, but this would be unacceptable as war resisters do not feel they have committed any crime.

No Compensation

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government plans no measures to compensate Canadian manufacturers of war materials to offset reductions in contracts due to the Vietnam ceasefire, Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie said Sunday.

Gillespie told a panel of newsmen on the CTV network's Question Period he believed such reductions inevitable in the United States and "very likely" in Canada.

On the other hand, Gillespie said the Canadian contracts had what he termed a "civilian spin-off benefit" since most of the work in Canada involved sophisticated communications and navigations systems.

He said these materials were being provided to the United States rather than weaponry or the "conventional" kind of war material.

Murphy Oil

Murphy Oil Co. Ltd., earned $5,670,000 or 91 cents a share during 1972 compared with $4,407,000 or 76 cents per share last year. Production of crude oil rose 19 per cent to 6,173 barrels a day while sales of million cubic feet from 10.63 natural gas were up to 11.6 million cubic feet.

Kennecott

Kennecott Copper Corp. said extraordinay charges in the third and fourth quarters reduced its net earnings to $47.4 million or $1.43 a share in 1972, compared with $84.9 million or $2.56 a share in 1971.

Kennecott said fourth-quarter charges of $13.7 million included $9.8 million related to the expropriation of its El Teniente Mining Co. in Chile and a $3.9 million loss on liquidation of Chase Brass and Copper Co., a Cleveland copper tube mill.

Kennecott had an extraordinay charge of $26.2 million in the third quarter, also related to the El Teniente expropriation.

Before the charges, Kennecott listed its 1972 profits at $87.4 million or $2.63 a share and its fourth-quarter earnings at $25.2 million or 76 cents a share. Fourth-quarter profits in 1972 came to a restated $8.9 million or 27 cents a share.

Shell

Shell Canada Ltd. reports estimated profit for 1972 of $79 million or $2.37 a share, up from $61.5 million or $1.85 a share a year earlier.

The company says that the increase came mainly from higher sales and production. Sales of refined products and chemicals were up eight per cent over 1971.

Canada Permanent

Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation reports gross income of $153 million and net income of $12,743,000 or $1.79 per share for the year ended Dec. 31.

This compares with 1971 gross income of $139 million, net income of $9,445,000 or $1.33 per share.

Victoria manager Carson J. Taylor said the 1972 results represented record high earnings and volumes for the company.

The figures include results of the company's subsidiary, Canada Permanent Trust Company.

Gain on disposal of assets was $413,000 (6 cents) compared with $3.3 million (46 cents) making net income for 1972 $1.85 per share compared with $1.79 for the previous year.

Total company assets reached more than $1,663 million for an increase of 7.2 per cent over 1971.

Great Plains

Great Plains Development Company of Canada, Ltd., reports record net earnings in 1972 of $4,501,000 or $1.39 a share.

This compares with net earnings of $4,374,000 or $1.37 a share in 1971. Net natural gas sales increased for the 11th consecutive year, averaging 33.3 million cubic feet a day, a gain of 19 per cent. Production of crude oil and natural gas liquids rose to 9,511 barrels a day, up 464 barrels.

HB Oil, Gas

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co., Ltd. reports that net earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1972, were $27.749 million or $1.44 a common share. This was a gain of 19.8 per cent over 1971 earnings of $23.155 million or $1.18 a common share.

Funds generated from operations were up 16.9 per cent to $59.811 million and gross operating revenues were 14 per cent higher at $108.633 million.

Improved results in 1972 were principally attributable to larger operating volumes. Price increases will have a material impact on the company's 1973 revenues. Crude oil and condensate prices were increased by 10 cents and 20 cents a barrel respectively last November and by a further 20 cents a barrel early this month.

West Broadcasting

Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd. reports net income of $1,829,648, or 48.1 cents a share, for the nine months ended Dec. 31, compared to income of $1,466,762, or 40.7 cents a share, for the corresponding period of 1971. Revenue amounted to $8.2 million, up from $6.7 million.

Western Broadcasting operates five radio stations in Canada and has holdings in television and cable television companies in British Columbia.

Q. What if I own certain works of art such as paintings or jewellery, or how should I treat personal items such as an automobile or a boat? Should these items be valued?

A. Works of art such as prints, etchings, paintings, manuscripts, stamps, jewellery or coins are categorized as listed personal property. If you own any of these which is worth more than $1,000, either as a set or an individual item, you should establish its valuation day value.

Certain items which you own chiefly for personal use or enjoyment, including all personal and household effects, automboiles, boats and similar items, are considered personal use property. You need only establish valuation day values for personal-use property if it can be expected to increase in value and it is worth more than $1,000. In the vast majority of cases, personal-use property will not increase in value and will not give rise to a capital gain when sold nor will capital losses be allowed for this class of property.

Q. A great deal has been said and written about valuation day. When did valuation day occur and are many people affected by it?

A. There were actually two valuation days. When we speak of publicly-traded shares and securities, Dec. 22, 1971, was valuation day and for all other properties the date of valuation was Dec. 31, 1971. Most taxpayers are not affected by valuation day since the most important property owned by them is not subject to tax on capital gains. In most cases this includes a taxpayer's home and personal effects valued below $1,000.

Q. How do you determine what gain or loss should be reported?

A. The new legislation applicable to 1972 provides that gains and losses on assets held at the start of the system may be measured against either their actual cost or their values on Valuation Day.

Alcan Taking an Interest In New Chemical Process

By Al Forrest
Times Business Editor

Development in the United States of a new process for making aluminum, requiring 30 per cent less electricity is being watched with interest by Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd. — but with no sense of urgency.

There is no power crisis at the company's hydro-electric plant at Kemano. In fact, there is a power surplus, which the company sells to B.C. Hydro.

"But the company is, of course, interested in any process that will make operations more efficient," a company spokesman said.

"Alcan is aware of the chemical processes involved but it has to be tested at the development stage. Then the company would be interested in the question of the availability of patent."

In summary, very interested but in no hurry.

In the United States it is the power shortage as much as the question of increased efficiency motivating the rival Aluminum Company of America to proceed with development of the new process.

The U.S. firm is planning a small plant employing the new process to come on stream in 1975. The smelter will produce only 15,000 tons of aluminum per year (compared with Kitimat's rated capacity of more than one million tons annually).

So it will be late in the decade before there could be a massive conversion to the new system.

The chemistry of the new process is already widely known. After bauxite is refined into alumina, a white, sugary substance, it would then be combined with chlorine to produce aluminum chloride.

It is electrically treated to produce chlorine and molten aluminum. Then the chlorine is recycled to combine with more alumina.

Unlike the present process, there is no fluoride emission which has been a major pollution problem for the industry.

The package is attractive enough to be interesting to all producers of aluminum but it is still a theory at present—it has not faced the test of large-scale production.

By the time the process has passed its development tests — if, as expected, it does — Kitimat will still have surplus power available for its own needs.

"If the company adopts the new system, it might mean we would have more surplus power to sell to B.C. Hydro," the spokesman said.

For the present, Alcan can afford to adopt a wait-and-see attitude and watch developments in the American experiment.

In the U.S., meanwhile, the experiment is very big news because aluminum requires, at present, more energy per unit of output than any other major U.S. industry.

FABRICATING PLANTS BUSY

Primary production of aluminum continues to exceed the fabricating capacity of the industry, creating a shortage of sheet and plate and surplus of primary aluminum.

This means prices for Aluminum Company of Canada's production at subsidiary fabricating plants in the United States should be strong during 1973.

However, there might not be much upward movement in Alcan's production of primary aluminum at Kitimat because of the general world surplus.

Canada produces about 11 per cent of the world supply of aluminum.

Alcan is the main aluminum producer in Canada with capacity to produce more than one million tons per year. Only some 200,000 tons are sold in Canada and about the same amount is exported to the United Kingdom.

In 1971 Alcan exported 387,000 tons of its production to the United States, including a substantial amount to its own rolling mill in Oswego, New York.

The price levels will encourage the company to export more aluminum to its mill in the U.S. for processing.

The investment publication Canadian Business Service says greatly increased demand for aluminum sheet and plate could produce a shortage during 1973.

The construction, packaging and transportation industries are making increased use of the product and major expansion is possible in the automobile industry.

Detroit is looking for ways to reduce the weight of cars because emission control and other safety features have made cars heavier and more expensive to operate.

"Previous attempt to increase the use of aluminum for grills, mouldings and decorative trim appear to have been superseded by the use of plastics, which are lighter, easier to handle and retain their comparative strengths," the publication says.

"Nor has the use of aluminum in engine components been too successful to date.

"More promising attempts are now being made for the use of aluminum in molded panels such as doors, trunk lids and hoods.

"It is expected that a major entry in the use for bumpers will be made this year and preliminary estimates indicate a possible demand for 20 million tons of the metal for this major item.

"It is expected that the average car will use 80 pounds of aluminum this year as compared with 77.5 pounds in 1972."

Exchange Elects 3 New Members

Three new members have been elected to the board of governors of the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Joining the board are John Eliott of Midland-Osler Securities, John McAvity of Pitfield, Mackay, Ross and Angus MacPhail of Continental Securities.

Re-elected members of the board are Warring Clarke, Ian Falconer, John N. Jones, Robert Samis, George Sherwood and George Wright.

Elected vice-chairman succeed Wright as chairman had been announced earlier.

Elected vice-chariman Ernest Drake of C. M. Oliver and Company Ltd. Fred Tice is secretary-treasurer.

Retiring chairman Wright reported there were 662 companies listed on the Vancouver Stock Exchange at the end of 1972, down from 665 in 1971.

While there were 89 new listings there were 92 companies delisted, a record for the exchange.

The daily average number of transactions on the VSE was 3,242 during 1972 with an average value of $956 per transaction.

VSE VICE-PRESIDENT RELIEVED OF POST

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank H. Tippitt, an employee of the Vancouver Stock Exchange for several years, was relieved of his position on Jan. 19, the exchange reports.

Tippitt, a chartered accountant, had been engaged as an exchange auditor and last Nov. 2 was appointed vice-president in charge of administration.

The termination of his employment was taken by George R. Wright, chairman and acting president of the exchange until last Thursday, when he was succeeded as chairman by Michael M. Ryan.

"Tippitt's duties have been redistributed for the present and the new president, Cyril White, will review the staff organization when he takes office this Thursday," said Wright.

Blazers Move Up

By The Canadian Press

Philadelphia Blazers finally can feel what it's like being in the thick of the Eastern Division standings of the World Hockey Association.

The Blazers, after a season-long struggle to emerge from the depths of the division cellar, squeezed by Alberta Oilers 1-0 in overtime in Edmonton Saturday night to move one point ahead of Ottawa Nationals into fifth place in the six team division.

But their winning glory didn't last long. The Oilers got revenge in one of four league games Sunday, drubbing the Philadelphians 4-2 before some 4,174 in Edmonton.

Western Division-leading Winnipeg Jets edged Ottawa 5-4, Los Angeles Sharks walloped New York Raiders 9-2 and Houston Aeros downed Chicago Cougars 4-3 in the other Sunday games.

In play Saturday, Quebec Les Nordiques defeated New England Whalers 3-1 and Cleveland Crusaders got by Chicago 2-1.

Danny Lawson broke in alone during the sudden-death overtime period in Edmonton Saturday night to score the only goal and bring the Blazers out of the cellar.

It was the 21st win of the season for the Blazers, currently one of the hottest clubs in the WHA in several weeks. It gave them 42 points, one better than Ottawa.

Ottawa's largest crowd of the season—7,247 fans—saw the Jets rally for the victory.

Bobby Hull scored the game winner and helped out on two others to spark the win. He was on the ice for all five Jets' goals.

Guy Trottier, Brian Conacher, Bob Leduc and Tom Martin shared the Ottawa goals.

MORE TO COME was Orville Moody's putting story after missing this approach putt on 18th green in Sunday's final round of Bing Crosby Pro-Am golf tournament at Pebble Beach. Needing only two putts to win, Moody missed 18-inch putt coming back to fall into three-way playoff which Jack Nicklaus won with birdie on first extra hole. (AP Wirephoto)

Moody's Blues on 18th Open Door for Nicklaus

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus lifted his eyes to the skies and murmered: "How in the world did I ever win this one?"

He had just picked up his 42nd tour triumph and his first of the young season in Bing Crosby's National Pro-Am golf tournament. And he got it in a fashion that Nicklaus described as "one of the most unusual I've ever won."

He and Ray Floyd were given a second chance when Orville Moody three-putted for a bogey on the 72nd hole and set up a three-way playoff for the $36,000 first prize.

Nicklaus won it, just as he did in a playoff with young Johnny Miller for this title a year ago.

Moody and Floyd both had missed their birdie tries when the Golden Bear stepped up to a 12-foot putt for a three on the par four 15th hole, the first playoff hole.

"As soon as I hit it, I knew the putt was going in," he said.

Nicklaus and Floyd played the wind-whipped final round on the 6,815-yard par-72 Pebble Beach layout in one-under-par 71s and Moody, who held a fourstroke lead starting the day's play, blew to a 76 for a tie at 282.

Moody, who won only $13,000 last season, and Floyd each collected $16,650. So that putt, from some 18 inches, that Moody missed on the 72nd hole carried a value of over $1,000 an inch.

"I hit a good putt," the heartbroken Moody said. "It was going right at the hole and it hit something and just squirted away."

George Knudson of Toronto shot a final round of 78 for a 299 total and money winnings of $337. Ben Kern of Toronto, the only other Canadian in the competition, shot 76 Saturday and failed to qualify for the final round.

Dave Marr took fourth alone with a 72—285, three strokes back of the three-man race for the top spot. Rod Funseth, the surprise winner of the Los Angeles Open, had a fourth consecutive top 10 finish with the day's best round, 69. He tied for fifth with Lee Elder, 73-286.

Lanny Wadkins and Don Iverson, the young men tied for second starting the final round, fell back in the winds that reached 35 miles an hour in gusts. Wadkins had an 82—292 and Iverson 77—287.

Fast-Draw Rookie Jolts Habs

By The Canadian Press

Henry Boucha, who could hardly wait to vault the barriers into professional hockey after starring for the United States in the 1972 Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, Sunday broke a record it took 40 years to surpass.

The 21-year-old native of Warroad, Minn., opened the scoring at Montreal with the game just six seconds old to launch Detroit Red Wings to a 4-2 win over Montreal Canadiens and into a challenging position for the playoffs.

The Wings, in ending Montreal's 13-game unbeaten string, closed to within two points of fourth-place Buffalo in the National Hockey League East when the Sabres suffered an 8-5 setback to Atlanta Flames.

Boucha's sixth goal of the year, a backhander past rookie goaltender Wayne Thomas, was faster by one second than the game opener fired by Charlie Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs on Feb. 6, 1932, in a 6-0 win over Boston Bruins.

Rangers Keep Pace

In other games Sunday, New York Rangers kept pace with East Division-leading Montreal with an easy 5-2 win over Toronto and remained six points up on third-place Boston, hardpressed 6-5 decision over Los Angeles Kings, Chicago Black Hawks handled Minnesota North Stars 5-1 and Philadelphia Flyers nipped California Golden Seals 4-3.

The victory moved Philadelphia into second in the West. Flyers trail Chicago by eight points and are just one ahead of Minnesota and two up on Atlanta.

The Flyers toppled Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3 Saturday in a game which could seriously impede their playoff drive. Veteran defenceman Barry Ashbee, upset by a call from referee Bryan Lewis, either hit or pushed the official to the ice and drew a game misconduct penalty.

Lewis required medical treatment.

The incident took place late in a game that was staged bitterly by both clubs. Lewis had earlier nailed Flyers' Andre Dupont with a game misconduct, assessed eight fighting majors and 113 minutes in penalties over-all.

Saturday's other scores were: Montreal 4, Toronto 2; New York 6, Detroit 3; Chicago 4, Boston 2 and St. Louis Blues 5, Vancouver Canucks 3.

Dejordy Holds Ground

"I had no idea, really I didn't," Boucha said in a postgame interview when told about his record-setting score. He said the pass from centre Bill Collins "was bouncing when I hit it with a backhand and it sort of fluttered into the goal."

Ex-Canadian goaltender Denis Dejordy didn't let a penalty shot award to Montreal's Jacques Lemaire in the third period upset his poise.

"All you can do is stand your ground," he recalled. Besides, "we were up 4-1 and I know there was no way the guys were going to let down."

Boucha's goal stood for less than four minutes, defenceman Guy Lapointe getting the equallizer at 3:47. But Nick Libbett tallied the tiebreaker at 6:04 of the opening period and Marcel Dionne put the game out of reach with his 23rd of the year late in the second.

Jean Ratelle scored twice and linemate Rod Gilbert was credited with four assists as the Rangers stretched their unbeaten string to 10 games against Toronto at New York.

Series Sweep For Scorpions

Victoria Scorpion Men's Wear swept a two-game senior "A" men's exhibition basketball series against highly-regarded Bellingham Beech House Tavern at the weekend in Belmont High School.

Scorpions used a fast-break style of play to advantage in both games, winning 104-91 Sunday and 101-84 Saturday night.

Bill Robison led the Scorpions on Sunday with 30 points and collected 10 rebounds as well as 11 assists. Dave Mulcahy, who paced Saturday's triumph with 21 points, scored 26 points and grabbed 12 rebounds on Sunday.

Ken Hoffer led Bellingham on Sunday with 28 points while Bob Nichol scored 20 to lead the visitors on Saturday.

Yank Scores Skiing First

Jean Noel Augert of France, coming back from injury, skied to victory in the slalom Sunday while Bob Cochran became the first American ever to win the Hahnekamm Trophy at Kitzbuchl, Austria.

Cochran finished only 23rd in the slalom, but that placing combined with a third in Saturday's downhill brought him the trophy for the best overall performance.

Roland Collombin, who won Saturday's downhill but did not enter the slalom, continued to lead the World Cup standings with 131 points.

At Schladming, Austrian skiers Angelika Rudigier, Martina Gappmaier, Andrea Straub and Ingrid Eberle finished in the top four spots, respectively, in a women's downhill race counting towards the European Cup.

At Collingwood, Ont., two-time world champion Spider Sabich won Sunday's slalom race to take over the point lead in the $400,000 professional ski tour. He beat Austria's Harold Steufer, the previous point leader, in the final.

Frenchman Pierre Pouteil-Noble beat Stabich by 3-1,000ths of a second in Saturday's giant slalom.

40 'Penguins' Go to Dinner

NEW YORK (CP) — The National Hockey League's two-day all-star show starts today with a meeting of the league's board of governors and some rumblings in the background over the nature of tonight's all-star dinner.

The board meeting and the $100-a-plate dinner at the posh Waldorf-Astoria Hotel are a preliminary to Tuesday night's 26th annual all-star game, in which the West Division will seek to even its series against the East.

Owners at the board meeting are expected to devote much of their time to considering the expansion franchise granted to Kansas City.

The new franchise was to have begun operating in 1974, but its owners had trouble finding an arena. Voters in the area last November defeated a bond issue to finance construction of an arena, but the franchise got a boost earlier this month when the Kansas City, Kan., city council voted $5.6 million to construct a new playing site.

There has been considerable criticism over tonight's all-star dinner, which will be a strictly black tie affair. Several writers have complained the dinner has been taken away from the ordinary fan.

Some of the all-star players themselves also have indicated unhappiness about the dress requirements.

"I wish we didn't have to wear tux," said one player who didn't want to be identified.

"We dress pretty colorfully in hockey and it would have been something to see 40 sharply-dressed guys sitting together. Now we'll all look like a bunch of penguins."

The 40 players on hand will include last season's trophy winners and the end-of-the-season and 1973 all-star players.

Bob Hope will be guest speaker at the dinner, during which the Lester Patrick Memorial Trophy will be awarded to Walter Bush Jr. president of Minnesota North Stars. The trophy is given for outstanding service to hockey in the United States.

One player noticeably absent will be Buffalo's Gil Perreault, passed over in the all-star voting by members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association, who pick the first and second teams, and by East coach Tom Johnson of Boston Bruins, who selected the balance of the squad.

The method of picking the all-stars has stirred heated criticism this year.

Hugh Delano, hockey writer for the New York Post, says:

"The all-stars are selected on the basis of play in the first half of the season. Rubbish! Voting writers see opposing teams so infrequently they must vote on performance in a game months ago or by statistical evaluation, which often tells little about how a man is playing."

As an example, Delano cites all-star defencemen Serge Savard of Montreal and Brad Park of New York Rangers. Delano says Savard has admitted he is dissatisfied with his play thus far this season while Park missed 20 games because of an injury.

Although this is the 26th all-star game, it is only the fourth between East and West and the East holds a 2-1 edge. Prior to divisional pairings, the Stanley Cup champions played a squad representing all other NHL clubs.

Record Gets a 'Wooden' Reaction

Times News Services

When a man has guided teams to nine national collegiate basketball titles, it apparently takes more than another record to get him excited.

"I'm not sure what it would take to get me excited at this point," University of California at Los Angeles coach John Wooden said casually. "It was just another game — nothing to get excited about."

Wooden's Bruins calmly eclipsed the U.S. collegiate mark for consecutive victories Saturday with their 61st, an 82-63 triumph over Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind.

"I'm not downgrading the record," said Wooden, "but it was not one-of my goals."

The record is a three-team effort started in 1971 following an 89-82 loss to Notre Dame.

These things also happened in the wonderful world of sports.

Typecast, one of the world's finest thoroughbred horses in 1972, was sold Sunday at Hollywood Park for $725,000, the most ever paid for a horse at an auction.

The Heron Bloodstock Agency of London, represented by George Harris, purchased the six-year-old mare for unidentified interests. A track spokesman said it was believed Harris represented Japanese racing interests.

Typecast, who has earned $535,000 in her career, had been among the racing and breeding stock of the late Fletcher Jones, who died Nov. 7 in a plane crash.

Typecast had a sensational season last year, three times defeating male opposition in $100,000 races. In all, she won six of 14 races.

The previous high paid at auction was the $510,000 Vancouver industrialist Frank McMahon paid for a yearling, Crowned Prince, in 1970.

Approval Expected In Sale of Cougars

Western Canada Junior Hockey League operators went into a mid-season huddle today, and the big play of the meeting in Medicine Hat was expected to be the transfer of Victoria Cougars' ownership.

Control of the team will pass from Island Sporting Enterprises, Ltd., to four Victoria residents including general manager Eric Bishop. The sale, expected to be a formality unless a hitch develops in the meeting at Mecicine Hat, will increase Bishop's holdings in the Cougars.

Bishop now has one share in Island Enterprises along with Mitch Pechet of Victoria and six Calgary residents.

The three local residents joining Bishop in the purchase haven't been identified.

If anything complicates the approval of the sale, it could be the death last week of one of the Calgary owners. Lawyer Harvey Ghitter, who held a half share interest in the team, died suddenly.

The governors' meeting will precede the annual all-star game, to be held Tuesday. Victoria will be represented on the Western Division all-star squad by team captain Dale Cook.

On the ice at the weekend, Saskatoon Blades continued to hold the upper hand in the Eastern Division while contenders still are playing fast and loose with first place in the west.

Saskatoon maintained its mastery over Regina by playing to a 1-1 tie with the Pats Sunday to remain 10 points on topin the East. Saskatoon has yet to lose to Regina this season.

Flin Flon Bombers got a five-goal performance from winger Wayne Bianchin but could manage no better than a split with Brandon Wheat Kings. It was enough, however, to keep the Bombers in second place, two points ahead of Brandon.

Bianchin scored twice in Saturday's 6-5 loss to Brandon, then banged in three more goals Sunday in a 7-1 victory to raise his individual total to 41.

Medicine Hat Tigers moved into the West Division lead with a 9-3 Saturday night romp over Vancouver Nats. Winnipeg Jets upset New Westminster Bruins 5-3 and Calgary Centennials clipped the Nats 5-2 in Sunday's other games.

Island Rinks Advance

NEW WESTMINSTER — Flora Martin skipped her Victoria Curling Club rink of Edna Messum, Doreen Baker and Betty Stubbs to the Pacific Coast senior women's curling championship Saturday by beating Eve Glover of Vancouver Curling Club 10-2.

Another Vancouver Island rink skipped by Karen Kaese of Nanaimo won the District One women's open title with an 8-7 playoff victory over Joan Dexter of New Westminster.

Mrs. Martin, a finalist in the B.C. women's open in 1963, swept through the senior event with four victories and no losses. The Victoria rink dian final is in Charlottetown ginning Feb. 19 in Fort St. John with the winner there going to the national final in Ottawa in mid-March.

Mrs. Kaese, a grade 3 teacher in Nanaimo, had a tougher time surviving the open playdowns. She won the "A" side of the four-rink, double-knockout event but lost to Dot Noiles of Burnaby when she crossed over to play the "B" side semi-final.

But the Kaese rink got a "life" when the Noiles entry lost to Mrs. Dexter in the "B" final. In the ensuing playoffs, Mrs. Kaese had last rock coming home but didn't need it when Mrs. Dexter was heavy with a draw.

The Nanaimo rink which includes Shannon Blackburn, Loretta Ahlstrom and Donna Dunn, advances to the provincial finals in Prince George beginning Feb. 5. The Cana- advances to the B.C. final beginning Feb. 26.

BATTERED BY BARBARIANS, ALL BLACKS HEAR HYMNS

CARDIFF (AP) — The star-studded Barbarians Rugby Union team hammered New Zealand All Blacks 23-11 in a dramatic upset here Saturday.

It made a gloomy end to the All Blacks' British tour but was a great occasion for the 50,000 excited, hymn-singing Welsh fans.

The Barbarians, with 12 stars of the British Lions team in their lineup, split the New Zealand defence apart with spectacular running attacks and built up a 17-0 lead by half-time.

The All Blacks stormed back to 17-11 but then lost Sid Going, one of their greatest stars, with an injury. The Barbarians, who had stood up to fierce pressure, surged forward again in the last 10 minutes and added to their lead.

The New Zealanders finished the tour with 30 victories two ties and four defeats. They have scored 521 points and conceded 227 in the 36 games.

They are due to go to France in two weeks' time.

Unbeaten Huskiettes Next On Hoop List for Vikettes

University of Victoria Vikettes, defending Canadian senior women's basketball champs, should learn more next weekend about their chances of grabbing a title in the Canada West University Athletic Association women's League.

The third-place Vikettes, who completed a two-game sweep over University of Lethbridge with a 54-46 victory Saturday in the Southern Alberta city, entertain unbeaten Saskatchewan Huskiettes in a Friday-Saturday doubleheader at UVic gym, games starting at 6:30 both nights.

Huskiettes ran their unbeaten string to 10 by romping over Calgary Dinnies 85-20 Saturday and retained their one-game lead over Vikettes and second-place UBC Thunderettes. UBC is unbeaten in eight starts following back-to-back wins over Alberta Pandas Saturday and Sunday. Thunderettes won 54-34 Saturday and 60-19 Sunday.

Vikettes, extended into overtime to beat Lethbridge 42-40 Friday night, had fewer problems Saturday as Diana Brozuk scored 15 points and Lorna McHattie 12 for the winners.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS

Still, Vikette coach Mike Gallo had some anxious moments after Laurie Atkinson fouled out in the closing seconds of the first half. Miss McHattie fouled out with 12 minutes left in the game and Miss Brozuk picked up her fourth foul just after the intermission and was benched as a precautionary move.

But June Pigott, who scored eight of her nine points in the second half, and Rita Clarkson, who held Leona Voth to just six second-half points after the Lethbridge star counted 14 in the first half, stepped in to save the day for Vikettes.

UVic Vikings weren't as fortunate in Canada West men's play as Phil Tollestrup pumped through 38 points to lead Lethbridge Pronghorns to a 79-55 victory over Gary Taylor's gang Saturday night in Lethbridge.

The loss was the second in as many nights for the Vikings who dropped into fifth place in the six-team league with a 3-9 won-lost record. Friday, Pronghorns hung a 78-62 loss on UVic.

In other men's action, Calgary Dinosaurs jumped into fourth place by defeating Saskatchewan Huskies 74-69 Saturday to complete a two-game sweep while Alberta Golden Bears remained in first place, two games ahead of Lethbridge, by beating UBC Thunderbirds 67-54 Saturday and 72-51 Sunday in Vancouver.

Strep Has Murray Down And Dinos Go to Town

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

If there was ever any doubt about Murray Finlay's value to University of Victoria Vikings hockey club, it evaporated on the weekend.

Finlay, a former Junior "A" goaltender with Victoria Cougars who is in his second season with the Vikings, missed both his team's games against Calgary Dinosaurs in the Canada West University Athletic Association.

The result was a shellshocking experience for backup netminder Greg Larson, who gave up 19 goals in less than 24 hours as the Dinos downed the Vikings 14-3 Saturday night and 5-1 Sunday afternoon at Memorial Arena.

Finlay was sidelined with a strep throat but is expected back in the nets when Vikings play a home-and-home series with UBC Thunderbirds in Vancouver Friday night and back at Memorial Arena Saturday night.

Dinosaurs' scoring parade Saturday was led by Darrell Goss, Rick Hindmarch and Shane Tarves, each with two goals, and Ron Gerlitz, Ron Pearpoint, Craig Stewart, John Jenkins, Pat Lannan, Tom Yates, Wayne Forsey and Tom Wiseman with one each. Dave Cousins with two goals and Greg Bush were the Viking marksmen.

Wiseman, Lannan, Goss, Gerlitz and Brian Wright scored the Calgary goals Sunday while Bill Collins replied for UVic.

The win kept Calgary in second place, two points behind leading Alberta Golden Bears, while the loss was Vikings' 17th straight in league play.

In other weekend action, Alberta posted a two-game sweep over fourth-place Saskatchewan Huskies, downing them 8-1 Saturday and 9-2 Sunday.

UVic Volleyballers Second

University of Victoria volleyball teams head into the second half of the Canada West University Athletic Association men's and women's tournaments in second place.

UVic Vikettes placed second to UBC Thunderettes by six points in the first half of the women's competition Saturday at UVic Gym while the Vikings finished second to Calgary Dinosaurs in the men's tournament in Lethbridge.

At UVic, Thunderttes edged Vikettes 15-9, 19-17 in the women's final and finished with 16 points. In the semi-finals, UBC downed Saskatchewan Huskiettes 15-7, 17-15, while Vikettes beat Alberta Pandas 7-15, 15-10, 15-7. Saskatchewan took third place by downing Alberta 15-9, 11-15, 15-13.

In men's play, the Vikings made their best showing in four years of Canada West volleyball competition despite the fact that two of their top players, Oley Debbiue and Ken Lundeen, were handicapped by injuries. Brothers Greg and John Russell and Rick Harris turned in outstanding performances for UVic.

Calgary won the tournament by downing Vikings, coached by Janos Herb, 15-3, 15-10, 15-1 in the finals. UBC was third after defeating Alberta 15-8, 15-6, 15-11. Lethbridge placed fifth.

Second half of the men's event takes place at UVic Feb. 16 and 17.

Bays Edge 'Lomas

Al Foster booted a penalty goal with less than three minutes remaining Saturday to give James Bay Athletic Association of the Victoria Rugby Union's first division a 16-15 exhibition nod over Vancouver Meralomas at Macdonald Park.

James Bay also won the exhibition struggle between the clubs' second teams 7-3 after Meralomas had held a 3-0 advantage at the half.

In another exhibition match at the University of Victoria, Simon Fraser University and UVic Saxons battled to a 12-12 deadlock.

Castaways and Oak Bay Wanderers took advantage of the fact that JBAA was engaged in an exhibition struggle. Castaways hammered UVic Norsemen 47-15 and Oak Bay nipped UVic Vikings 10-9 to remain in a tie for second place and move within two points of leading James Bay.

North Van Squad Tops in Tillicum

Bob Stenson fired 15 points in the championship game to lead Handsworth Royals of North Vancouver to the first annual Tillicum boys' high school basketball tournament title Saturday at Claremont High.

Handsworth defeated Vancouver's St. Thomas More Knights 54-44 in the final and Stenson's performance earned him recognition as the tournament's most valuable player.

He was the only Handsworth player named to the tournament all-star team. The others were Ed Daskis and Rick Knudson of Maple Ridge Ramblers, Dan Davies of St. Thomas More and Denis Deviault of Mount View Hornets.

Handsworth made the final by beating Claremont 50-41 Friday and Maple Ridge 49-33 Saturday. St. Thomas More needed only one win, a 62-52 decision over Mount View, to qualify for the final.

The consolation final went to Maple Ridge 66-56 over Hornets, who earlier turned back Esquimalt Dockers 39-37 and Claremont 56-46.

In Courtenay Saturday, the fifth annual Towhee tournament went to Princess Margaret of Surrey with a 58-45 victory over West Vancouver in the final. Victoria Mt. Douglas downed Reynolds Roadrunners 68-32 for third place while Campbell River Tyees took fifth place with a 65-57 decision over Port Alberni Chieftains.

Outstanding player in the eight-team tournament was John Weisner of Princess Margaret. He and team-mates Steve West and Al Brown made the first all-star team along with Doug Mosher of Mt. Doug and Gavin Chu of West Van.

In Clearbrook, Mission Roadrunners won the annual Mennonite Educational Institute tournament by defeating the host Eagles 60-46. Defending champion Belmont Braves lost 65-58 to Terrace Caledonians in the consolation final despite a 21-point performance by Dave Speed of the Braves.

In games at North Surrey, Oak Bay Bays trimmed North Surrey Spartans, fourth-ranked in B.C., 55-47 while Abbotsford Panthers downed Victoria High Totems 43-36.

MIKE DESAULNIERS

Little Mike Proves He Rates Near Top

Mike Desaulniers of Vancouver Racquets Club proved Sunday that he belongs with the big leaguers.

Desaulniers at 15 the youngest "A" class player in 35 years of squash in the Pacific Northwest, won the Western Canada junior championship Sunday at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

He did it by beating his taller clubmate Pat Richardson who, at 16, was the youngest "A" class competitor until Desaulniers came along.

His Sunday win was an upset. Richardson, winner of the Victoria invitational tourney last September, was ranked No. 1 in the event while little Mike was seeded second.

In a pressure packed final for the under-19 crown, Desaulniers prevailed in a 15-16, 15-7, 15-17, 15-10, 15-10 marathon.

Tacoma's Seonaid Bampton stroked her way to the under-19 girls' championship by scoring a 3-0 sweep over Michele Williams of the host club.

That triumph by the Tacoma girl was expected after she surprised the experts in Saturday's semi-finals. Miss Bampton gained her berth in the final with a 3-0 upset over Michelle's twin sister, Lesley Williams, who was top-seeded.

Mainland Rivals Jolt Coast League Leaders

The Pacific Coast Soccer League "rich" certainly didn't get any richer on Saturday.

Both Victoria Gorge, the leaders, and runner-up Victoria West United were upset in shutouts at home and on the mainland.

Gorge was bounced 1-0 by Vancouver Sporting Club of the Inter-City League during an interlocking match before approximately 200 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Fullbacks Barry Keating and Murray Vogan kept most of the action away from the Vancouver end and goaltender Andy Salt, who has been selected for Canada's youth team, wasn't severely tested while recording the shutout.

Alex Irwin scored the lone goal in the first half after being set up by Reg Newmark. The twosome came in on busy Gorge goalie Grahain Lee when only one defender was back.

Meanwhile, West-United was running into the wrong end of a 3-0 score against North Shore in Vancouver.

Centre-forward Chris Bennett scored all three goals for North Shore and goalie Dave Bothright, aided by the posts and crossbar, recorded his first shutout of the season.

United Shooters hit the posts or crossbar four times in the first half and three times in the second. George Pakos was the unluckiest, hitting wood three times, while Tom Forrester and John Blissett were each stymied twice.

In other matches at the weekend, New Westminster Blues blanked Norburn 2-0 and Simon Fraser University shut out Inter-Italia 3-0 in interlocking Sunday matches in Vancouver while University of British Columbia Thunderbirds downed Paul's Canadians 4-1 on Saturday.

Cliff Avenue United tripped Olympics 2-1 in an Inter-City match Saturday.

Kuebler Powers Royals

Rudi Kuebler took care of all the scoring for the winners as Cosmopolitan Royals defeated University of Victoria Vikings 3-1 in a Vancouver Island Soccer League match Sunday at Centennial Stadium.

Lusitanos downed Courtenay 5-3 in another Sunday match at Topaz Park while Oak Bay nipped Malespina College 1-0 in an exhibition match played Saturday at Centennial Stadium.

In the Victoria and District League, Victoria West and London Boxing Club romped to victories and remained in a deadlock for first place in the torrid first division race.

Glen Robinson provided the big punch for the Wests, collecting three goals in a 4-1 triumph over Prospect Lake while the Boxers coasted to a 6-0 win over Cosmopolitan Royals as Brian Robinson scored twice.

Gorge moved within two points of third-place Oak Bay by nipping the Bays 4-3.

Late Goal Spree Shatters Flyers

Saanich Block Brothers pumped in four goals during the third period en route to a 6-1 victory over Fuller Lake Flyers in a South Island Junior "B" Hockey League game Sunday at Pearkes Arena.

Saanich, which led by period scores of 1-0 and 2-0, climbed to within two points of third-place Victoria Nixons Trucking with the victory.

Brent Patterson, currently holding down eighth place in the individual scoring race, led Saanich with two goals while singles were added by Jim Storey, Tom Davies, Brad Maxwell and Yvon Clavet.

Clint Eccles scored the third-period goal for Flyers which wrecked Saanich goalie Brian McKinnon's bid for a shutout. McKinnon made 13 saves while Greg Harrow turned aside 24 shots for Flyers.

New Approach to Manpower Stresses People

And he wasn't looking for a job.

He was the newly-appointed manager of the centre, and he wanted a first-hand look at his operation from the other side. Employees did not know him yet.

"How do you know how people feel unless you're right there with them?" he asked later. "When I was in line I happened to walk behind a counter and I was asked what I was doing in no uncertain terms — now the counter's gone."

So are a lot of the old attitudes of the employees.

Three receptionists and four counsellors now are on duty in the main floor area of the central office and they were selected because of their abilities to meet and greet people and quickly spot their needs.

"Now I have people sitting down and talking," said Paproski. "Prior to that it wasn't what it should be when it came to looking after people."

And word of the new approach is getting around.

"We're getting 500 to 700 people a day," said Mr. Paproski. "Some are just coming in to chat about such things as living conditions."

Under a new manpower program announced in December by J. C. Best, assistant deputy minister of manpower and immigration, job seekers will soon be able to thumb through catalogues listing employment opportunities available in all categories.

The system is to go into operation in February.

Law Officers Challenged On Capital Murder Stand

TORONTO — Peter Reilly, Conservative MP for Ottawa West, challenged law enforcement officers in Canada Sunday night to prove capital punishment deters murderers. Speaking with police officers and wives on the CBC — TV program Weekend, he said police "haven't proven capital punishment is a deterrent."

But he is "sorely afraid" that Parliament, in a free vote, would "vote to reinstate" capital punishment for the killing of police officers and prison guards.

The clash with the referee was over a disputed point one minute from the end of a match between Standard Madrid and Gerona. Gerona won the match.

SINGAPORE — British Clairvoyant Maurice Woodruff, who claimed he predicted the assassinations of former United States president John Kennedy and his brother, Senator Robert Kennedy, died of a heart attack here Sunday night.

Woodruff, 56, had just completed a two-week tour of Singapore nightclubs. He died in his hotel room.

He began his stage career as a clairvoyant after leaving the British army in 1947.

VANCOUVER — Vera Dvorjetz, 67, a well-known newspaperwoman who wrote under her former name of Vera Kelly, died Sunday in St. Paul's Hospital.

She retired as women's editor of The Sun in 1955 to marry George Dvorjetz, a former Trail lumberman.

Mrs. Dvorjetz was born in England and educated in Prince Rupert. She worked on newspapers in Winnipeg and Calgary and on the old Vancouver News-Herald before joining The Sun.

She is survived by her husband, two brothers, a sister and three daughters.

B.C. MAN, 104, DIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Smith, 104, has died at Shaughnessy Hospital where he had been since just before Christmas.

Smith was born in Wales, came to Vancouver in 1907, worked for the B.C. Electric Co. and fought in the First World War.

He had lived at the Salvation Army's Dunsmuir House for the past 23 years.

IRVING ... pleads guilty

ZURICH — Edith Irving, Swiss wife of American author Clifford Irving, has pleaded guilty to charges here of fraud in the amount of $650,000 and repeated forgery, her lawyer says.

Mrs. Irving, now on the Spanish island of Ibiza with her two young sons, will appear on these charges before the Zurich Supreme Court March 8.

The allegations concern her role in the hoax "autobiography" of American billionaire Howard Hughes written by her husband, who is serving a prison term in the U.S. for his part in defrauding the publishers, McGraw Hill, about the book.

Hopes Rise Slowly For Missionary PoW

COURTENAY (CP) — Lloyd Oppel's parents are hoping their missionary son will be celebrating his 21st birthday at home next month instead of in a Southeast Asian prison camp.

The Oppel family, who haven't heard from their son since he was captured by North Vietnamese soldiers in Laos last October, got their first glimmer of hope Saturday.

Word came from Ottawa that efforts to locate Lloyd, and secure his release, would be intensified now that Canadian servicemen are on their way to Vietnam as part of an international peace-keeping force.

"It's not much, but every little bit helps when you don't know anything," said Magnus Oppel, Lloyd's father.

"It's a jungle war and let's not kid ourselves, they're not going to stop fighting just because they signed a cease-fire," he said.

Oppel said Lloyd, whose name didn't appear on Hanoi's prisoner of war list released Saturday, might be imprisoned in a Laotian village.

The young man, a member of the New Jersey-based Christian Mission of Many Lands, was captured in the Laotian village of Keng Kok, where he had helped build a medical clinic.

Foreign Press Honors 'The Godfather'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Godfather was the big winner of Golden Globes from the Hollywood Foreign Press Association Sunday night with five awards, including one to Marlon Brando as best dramatic actor.

The Mafia saga, a favorite for the Academy awards in March, was named best dramatic picture in 1972, for best direction by Francis Ford Coppola, best screen play by Coppola and Mario Puzo, and best score by Nino Rota.

Brando was not present to receive his Golden Globe. Presenter Carol Burnett cracked that he is in Tahiti — "and I'm going to take it to him right now."

Cabaret, the bittersweet musical of Berlin in the early 1930s, was awarded three Golden Globes: for best comedy or musical, Liza Minelli as best actress in a comedy or musical, and Joel Grey as best supporting actor.

Liv Ullman was named best dramatic actress for her role in The Emigrants. Jack Lemmon of Avanti! was selected best actor in a comedy or musical. Shelley Winters of The Poseidon Adventure won best supporting actress. Other awards included:

Promising newcomers — Diana Ross, Lady Sings the Blues, and Edward Albert, Butterflies Are Free; best original song — the title song of Zen; English language foreign film — Young Winston; best foreign-language foreign film — The Emigrants; best documentary — Elvis on Tour, and Wall of Fire (Mexico), a tie.

The television awards included:

SST PLOT CHARGED

LONDON (CP) — The Sunday Express says the American aircraft industry is trying to "kill" the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic airliner.

In an editorial comment on reports that United States airlines are planning to cancel their orders for Concorde, the newspaper says:

"The only thing which could end Concorde would be a lack of faith by the British and French governments which is exactly what the Americans want.

"The American aircraft industry has only one purpose. To kill Concorde. Then, with all their resources freed by the end of the Vietnam war, they will revive proposals for their own faster-than-sound airliner.

"With Concorde abandoned the whole market of the future for supersonic travel would be in their pockets — just as the market for ordinary jets has been in their pockets for far too long."

Exiled Prince Chides Canada

NORODOM SIHANOUK

Special to The Times

PEKING — Exiled Cambodian leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk has a word of advice for Canadians serving on the Ceasefire Control Commission in Vietnam — don't stray across the border into the Communist-controlled areas of Cambodia.

"We shall fire on them if they so much as put a foot inside our country," the prince said at the weekend. "We shall consider them as invaders."

The threat — more theatrical than real, as the prince knows the Canadians have no authority to enter Cambodia — came in a three-hour interview in his plush quarters in the former French embassy compound in Peking.

As Chinese waitresses shuttled back and forth with glasses of Cinzano and skewers of shishkebab, the deposed Cambodian leader gave a garrulous, colorful and at times amusing commentary on the Vietnam ceasefire agreement and its implications for Cambodia.

One thing that was abundantly clear was that he thinks Canada has made a blunder in accepting the invitation to serve on the Ceasefire Control Commission, a task he describes as "not only hopeless but dangerous."

Speaking as the ceasefire went into effect, the 50-year-old prince described the agreement that brought it about as "a tragicomedy" without any hope whatsoever of establishing a lasting peace in Vietnam.

He said it was absurd to expect the contending parties in Vietnam to bury the hatchet overnight after a quarter of a century of conflict, and anybody foolish enough to stand in between them stood a good chance of getting caught in the crossfire.

"It is always dangerous to stand between people who are firing at each other and they will be, right from the outset," he said, a judgment that seemed borne out by reports of continuing fighting that poured in after the ceasefire went into effect.

"I tell you, the ceasefire commission will not be able to do anything useful for peace in Vietnam. Never mind 2,000 controllers, you can put 20,000 or 200,000 in there and it will not make any difference."

"The control commission is just a comedy," he said. "At best, the controllers can have some fun and games, but they cannot control. At worst, they will only add to the confusion of the situation."

In his discussion of the ceasefire commission's role, the prince made no attempt to disguise the fact that his opinion of ceasefire controllers "and of Canadian ones, in particular" was colored by his experience during his Phnom Penh years with the representatives of the International Control Commission set up to police the 054 accords on Indochina.

From about 1958 on, the provisions of the accord with respect to Cambodian neutrality and territorial integrity were repeatedly broken by both sides in the Vietnam dispute, with the ICC in between — and the prince badgering them to do something about it.

For now, the question of ceasefire control remains an academic one for Cambodia as the prince insisted that the Communist troops under his command — the fighters of the so-called Khmer Rouge — will continue their battle to topple the Lon Nol regime which ousted Sihanouk.

Under the Paris agreement, they will have to do this without the men and material hitherto supplied by North Vietnam, but the prince said the Americans are building castles in the sky if they think this will put an effective end to the Communist effort in Cambodia.

U.S. Fuel Crisis Called Artificial

DETROIT (AP) — Americans will have to accept higher priced imported fuel, less industrial growth and greater use of mass transit to avoid recurrences of the present fuel shortage affecting much of the United States, says Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club.

McCloskey said there is no plausible reason for a fuel shortage in the U.S. and he criticized the "crisis mentality" which he said is being spread by oil producers.

"It is time to call the oil industry's bluff" about the so-called "energy crisis," McCloskey, whose organization has been in the forefront on environmental issues, told reporters before a speech to the Michigan Sierra Club.

Any "crisis" in fuel production is the result of artificial controls to protect investments of domestic oil producers and a lack of governmental planning, he said.

McCloskey said the oil industry is attempting to exploit a "temporary shortage" of fuel to gain concessions that would make exploration and drilling cheaper and to get permission for tapping such areas as Alaska's North Slope.

Pay Curbs By March —Unionist

CALGARY (CP) — Wage and price controls may be imposed by the federal government as early as March of this year, the president of the Alberta Federation of Labor said Sunday.

Reg Basken told the annual meeting of the Calgary Labor Council the problem of getting re-elected together with increased pressure for controls from the Progressive Conservative Party could lead to a price and wage policy.

If implemented, the controls would hit organized labor harder than anyone else. A bureaucracy created to administrate wage and price controls "will find it easier to control wages than to control prices."

"It is easiest to control collective bargaining and minimum wages" through existing legislation.

"That's where the controls will be."

Basken suggested the government look to a planned economy instead of trying to maintain high profits.

Commenting on increased oil prices and their relationship to the current United States energy crisis, he said "for every $100 that the price of oil is going up, the government will get $16.

"The industry will get the rest. But the industry is already absolutely and completely wealthy."

Laird Announces End of Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The power behind the credit-card-size piece of paper that raised armies and led hundreds in the United States to flee their homes to avoid its reach has been retired.

But the draft system which monthly sent "Greetings" to thousands of American young men is still intact and as alive as it was during the peak of the Vietnam war. Only the power to induct men into uniform has been retired.

Eighteen-year-old men will still have to register for the draft—and receive a draft card—and standby lotteries will be held annually.

The power to induct can be reinstated—through an act of Congress—and probably would be in a national emergency. But now, for the first time since 1948, men aged 18 through 35 will not face induction.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced the end of the draft Saturday after the signing of the Vietnam peace agreement in Paris.

The action puts the U.S. military on an all-volunteer basis five months ahead of President Nixon's goal.

The decision also cancelled induction orders for 5,000 men who were to be drafted before June 30, when legal authority to induct young men into the armed forces expires.

During the Vietnam war, the peak in inductions came in 1966 when 383,626 men were drafted. By last year, the number of inductions was down to 48,000. Nobody was drafted after early December.

With the end of the fighting comes a question whose answer was delayed pending peace in Vietnam: What about the draft resisters who fled the country to avoid induction? Nixon promised he would not consider amnesty while the war continued.

While there are no immediate figures on the number of young men who fled—many to Canada—to avoid going to Vietnam, there are hundreds of them and the administration has yet to announce its conditions for their return to the United States.

Man Asks Forgiveness In Murder-Suicide

An 80-year-old Wellington man shot his 77-year-old wife three times and then turned the gun on himself Thursday, Nanaimo RCMP said today.

Orrin Styles, of Jingle Pot Road, Wellington, five miles north of Nanaimo, left a note asking for forgiveness for the apparent murder-suicide, in which he and his wife Edna died.

Police said the Styles' family had tried to persuade the man, ill for some time, to go into hospital.

The dead couple was found about 1 p.m. by their daughter, Mrs. Faye Todd, of Rutherford Road, Nanaimo.

Information regarding the incident had been earlier withheld by RCMP at the request of the Styles' family, pending completion of police investigations.

An inquest date has not yet been set.

Yes, You, Too, Can Kill —Just Return the Form

Jean Howarth, a fine reporter, was one of the few women — perhaps the only one — to attend a hanging when that was considered an act of justice. She went to Oakalla Prison Farm to witness the execution of a homosexual who'd killed his lover. I still have a clipping of her story in the file I keep of well-written reports.

"When he killed, he killed in hot blood," Jean wrote. "You might do that, too, if you were terrified for your life or enraged beyond reason. But you are killing him in cold blood. He is alone, and bound, and helpless. And all you strong, free people in this room, in the city beyond the room, in the Canada beyond the city, are a part of it . . .

"He is on the trap now, and the hangman is strapping his legs, adjusting the noose. And this is the worst thing of all. The blood in your veins, your heart's thuds, your whole body wrenching out to him. It is your body that knows. Your mind may find words for it later, but your body's life knows now, in this terrible instant, that life is the most sacred thing in the world and it is wrong to kill. Wrong! Wrong! Wrong!

" . . . a prison officer was holding a glass of water to my lips. I felt as though I were sick of a dying disease, and that I was filthy. I wanted to wash in water, and I did wash and wash and wash in the next few weeks. Remembering it again today, it is still necessary to wash."

I was recalling that description last week when, as one of his constituents in the Esquimalt-Saanich riding, I received a form letter from Donald W. Munro, Conservative member of parliament, one-time diplomat, aged 56.

In his campaign Munro called for the restoration of the death penalty when the five-year trial ban on hanging (except in the case of the murder of prison guards or police officers) came to an end. That moratorium, as you know, is now over. Parliament is to decide soon on new legislation.

Munro is seeking to re-enforce his own conviction with that of his constituents through a loaded questionnaire in which the respondent is assured that he does not have to back up his opinion with his signature, (the hangman was always anonymous, too), his opinion will be listed as a "family" choice and with Munro's own estimate that the choice is already crystal clear.

His letter notes his "impression" that the "vast majority" of his constituents support his "pretty uncompromising stand" that the death penalty be restored and that there were "only a handful of persons who disagreed with this position whereas literally hundreds strongly approved."

Since Munro was supported by about one in every three eligible voters I've serious doubts about the validity of that "impression." The last Gallup poll (taken before the report, commissioned by the solicitor-general, demonstrated that abolishment of capital punishment has had no bearing on the increase in criminal homicide) showed that 58 per cent of English-speaking Canadians favor the return of the rope, the hood, the trapdoor. That would probably be closer to the truth in Esquimalt-Saanich.

More than once in his campaign Munro spoke about the need for "dignity" in public life, yet here is a man making a dramatic stand for the vengeance killing of human beings, a barbaric, savage, uncivilized, gruesome and, indeed, meaningless exercise that can appeal only to the ignorant and the emotional. Someone has said that if we killed dogs as we once killed human beings there would be a public outcry. It is an act contrary to the spirit of Christ, Himself. Yet here is an M.P. not merely advocating it, but making it a personal crusade.

There can be only one possible reason for the restoration of capital punishment. That is its effectiveness as a deterrent. Yet the evidence, readily available to Munro, is that it serves no such purpose, that, as the Ottawa study puts it, "reintroduction (of the rope) cannot be justified on the argument that it is a more effective deterrent to potential killers than the alternative of protracted imprisonment."

That justification gone, Munro is left only with a shameful appeal to those people who have not bothered to inform themselves or whose archaic lust for vengeance might make them just as ready to bring back burning at the stake, drawing and quartering, the thumbscrews or the racks. In a time of deep concern for increasing violence Munro is advocating the return to brutalizing violence by society, itself. So much for "dignity."

There is a deep, genuine concern over this increase in violence. No one in his right mind would deny it. But the rise in the incidence of murder is no greater than the rise in drug addiction, in alcoholism, in suicide, in brutal crimes of every description. The increase in homicides, in fact, is the lowest among all crimes of violence. There is, in short, a sickness in our society that cannot be cured by the convenient killing, however legal it may be, of killers. The need is to find the cause or causes of this violence and then to act against it. That is the job Munro and his fellow parliamenterians should be doing. It will not be done so long as we send men to Ottawa who have closed nineteenth century minds.

Shrimping Never So Poor

The last commercial shrimper of Sooke is thinking of pulling up his gear because shrimps are getting scarcer and scarcer in Sooke Harbor.

Cecil Rose of East Sooke Road, says a few years ago he used to harvest 24,000 pounds of shrimps a year from his traps. But last year it was down 4,500 pounds.

"Two years ago I was averaging about 350 pounds a day, but now it's 95 pounds, he said.

Rose thinks the decrease in the shrimp population, as well as crabs, is due to bark and debris lining the bottom of Sooke harbor.

"When I pull up my traps, I frequently find bark in them," he said. "Shrimps and crabs seem to be on the way out."

"I've talked to divers," he added, "and they tell me they have never seen a harbor so devoid of sea life. They say the bottom is lined with bark and wood chips and junk a foot in depth."

Rose thinks better harbor management and log sorting would do much to halt the steady deterioration of the harbor's environment and economically it would be to everyone's advantage."

Log booms move in and out of the water and chips from barges escape and are washed up on the beaches," he explained. "One logging operator brings in logs from up the coast for use at the Sooke Forest Products mill. Another logger dumps his logs into the water at the mill which are boomed and taken down to the Victoria mill. It makes no sense."

Rose thinks the method of handling logs, sorting them on land or water, could be improved.

He recalled in the 1950s there were four or five shrimpers operating in the harbor and several women employed to package and ship them to Seattle.

"It provided some people with jobs," he said. "Some people don't seem to realize that fisheries is a valuable resource."

School Pickets Bolstered

Most inside staff at Greater Victoria schools stayed off work today as striking maintenance men strengthened picket lines and asked "everyone but teachers and students" to respect the pickets.

Everyone includes oil trucks and both union and board spokesmen said oil deliveries to schools have been stopped by picket lines, leaving open the possibility that some more schools may have to close.

Meanwhile, negotiations continued into the third day this morning in an attempt to find a solution to the 17-day old strike against the school district by 268 janitors and tradesmen in Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Officials from CUPE and the school district met for 17 hours, including time out for lunch, Saturday and Sunday at the Imperial Inn.

Neither side would comment on the talks but it was learned that contract language and working conditions were discussed first and wages were to be discussed last.

ENCOURAGING

The fact that the talks have moved into the third day was seen as an encouraging sign.

Union spokesman Dick Proctor said the administration offices and 13 school were being picketed today.

"We are aware certain schools are low on oil," he added.

Proctor said the union knew of the situation at Richmond elementary where principal Evan Oakley fears their oil supply has already run out.

"The furnace hasn't been cutting in yet this morning," Oakley said. "We still have warmth in the building left over from the weekend but we'll just have to watch the thermometer.

"If it goes down too much we'll have to close tomorrow or this afternoon."

Oakley said two picketers were patrolling the school this morning.

Muriel Overgaard, president of CUPE local 947, representing 258 inside workers, said she believed "the majority" of her local members were off work today.

Proctor said the union did not object to the inside workers going back on the job if picket lines were not operating at their schools.

School district superintendent A. J. Longmore said plans for school attendance Tuesday will be withheld "pending the results of today's negotiations."

If there is no change after today's talks, he said, attendance will continue under the same schedule as last week, with all high school students reporting to their own schools at 1 p.m.

MACE PUSHES SUIT

Property developer J. A. Mace flew into Victoria at the weekend to discuss with his lawyers city council's decision to throw the Bay Village shopping centre and highrise development open to a public hearing.

Mace said in an interview today it was extremely unlikely he would drop his court case against the city unless some kind of settlement was reached. Mace is sueing the city for damages due to delays forced on the three-acre 29-storey development at Simcoe and Menzies.

He said that if the public hearing — for which a date has not been set — showed there was widespread feeling his current design should be changed, he was certain new designs could be developed.

But the supermarket which has already been built and which forms part of the original scheme would limit alternatives, Mace said.

He reiterated his position that in 1968 the city had "invited" his company to build a tall tower so as to get away from the "slab" type of lower tower.

Mace said if he was asked to build a tower within the city's 14-storey limit, imposed since his project was approved, it would block the view from neighbouring highrises more severly than a tall one.

Drainage Gets Priority Over Saanich Road Work

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today he is willing to endure rough and rugged roads in the municipality if it means the drainage system can be improved this year.

He commented after taking part in council's annual public works tour Saturday morning on which emphasis was placed on roads and drainage problems facing the urban parts of the municipality.

A second tour is expected to be held within a week or two enabling a better view of works problems in the more outlying parts of Saanich.

"I'm certainly prepared to put up with uneven road surfaces, less than satisfactory road surfaces, if we can further improve our storm drains," Curtis said.

He said he felt the consensus of those on tour was that emphasis would be placed on drainage when budget allocations are discussed in April.

Matters to which attention was drawn Saturday included the replacement and upgrading of existing drainage systems in order to improve storm water-carrying capacity.

Sketches and plans of the more prominent problem areas were available, showing color-coded flooded properties. The Gorge and central part of the urban strip on the Saanich-Victoria boundary were two such problem points.

Four aldermen accompanied Curtis — William Campbell (public works chairman), Frank Waring, Leslie Passmore and William Noel — with senior engineering department staff including municipal engineer Bob Daye, assistant John Cowlin, general superintendent Frank Smith, assistant Les Dickson and drainage assistant Tony Miller. The municipal administrator W. M. Tremayne also attended.

HOSPITAL REJECTS PACT

Suggestions for settling the Sandringham Private Hospital strike have not been accepted by the hospital, Labor Minister Bill King disclosed today.

"The proposal which we had for their consideration was not accepted," he said.

"But there is a possibility of another approach being undertaken."

King said he prefers not to give any details because there is "still the possibility of part of the proposal being accepted," and public discussion would "not assist the matter."

"We are at present considering the whole matter and considering a new course of action. I expect to talk to the union in the next day or so," he added.

Crash Kills Woman

A woman is dead, and a male driver in fair condition, in Victoria General Hospital, following an auto accident on Bay west of Bridge this morning.

Firemen spent almost an hour cutting the unidentified woman free. She died nine hours after the accident.

Police are withholding the victims' names until the dead woman's husband, who works in the interior of B.C., is informed.

The accident occurred at 12:55 a.m., when a car struck a power pole on the south side of Bay.

Downtown Mall in Victoria? It Works in Ottawa

Ald. Sam Bawlf proposes turning two main streets into landscaped pedestrian malls. Here's how another city did it.

By JOHN FERGUSON
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — At times, it's been referred to as a "hippy haven" and at other times its been called the country's biggest outdoor luncheon.

But the thing that just about everyone in Ottawa agrees upon is that it can be called a success.

"It" is Ottawa's Sparks Street Mall a three-block, soon to be five block-long, park-like promenade filled with the benches, trees and fountains that have changed a former traffic throughfare in the capital city into a place for people to walk or linger at their leisure.

During the summer young girls sell flowers and fruits and boys peddle ice cream.

On the warm days of spring, summer and fall thousands of civil servants, office workers and store employees flock to the Mall to eat their lunches or browse in the shops and even in winter, on the sunny, milder days, Ottawans take advantage of their mall to linger and chat.

Others spend their time quaffing a few brew and nibbling snacks or eating full course meals in the mall's outdoor cafe while watching the crowds pass by.

But while the success of the Sparks Street Mall is almost universally accepted in Ottawa and the surrounding region today, there was a time when it faced opposition from politicians, merchants and the general public.

The story goes back to the late 1950s when Jacques Greber, world renowned town planner, who was then working as a consultant to the federal government, suggested the idea.

A number of people immediately supported it hoping to revitalize the downtown commercial area which was slowly feeling the effects of the development of extended-hour shopping centres in suburban areas.

In some cases, business had dropped off to the point where several property owners had successfully applied to the Court of Revision for a lowering of their property assessments.

City hall was faced with the prospect of a serious financial crisis because of a decrease in tax revenue if property assessements in the area continued to be lowered.

Despite the fact some opposed it saying traffic would be upset and businesses affected, it was decided to close off a three block section of Sparks Street on an experimental basis for the summer of 1960.

Planters and benches were brought in in an attempt to create a park-like atmosphere.

And in October it was all carted away and the street reopened to traffic again.

But studies carried out during and after the experiment showed it had been an overwhelming success — business volumes increased over the previous year and even the number of people riding the buses downtown rose.

There followed three more years of temporary "summer malls" until the fall of 1965 when store owners along the mall agreed to "winterize" the mall by adding evergreens and lights.

It too was a smashing success and finally in 1966, city council passed the necessary bylaws to establish the mall and tenders were called.

The new mall, complete with larger trees and shrubs, sculptures, fountains and permanent buildings, was completed in the summer of 1967, in time for Centennial celebrations at a cost of about $600,000, including $150,000 for sewer reconstruction.

About $250,000 was paid by abutting property owners with the rest of the tab picked up by the city.

The mall is now administered by a Mall Authority made up of an alderman and a controller and three representatives from owners and merchants along the mall who are selected by city council.

The Mall authority is responsible for controlling commercial activity along the Mall — every commercial venture must be licensed by the authority to prevent a "Coney island" atmosphere — and is responsible for seeing the Mall is properly maintained and cleaned.

The $25,000 annual cost of the latter is paid by an annual levy of abutting owners.

The city was handed the honor of a Vincent Massey award for excellence in the urban environment in 1971 for the sign of the Sparks Street Mall.

And the mall will extend to five blocks in 1975 with the opening of a portion adjacent to an addition to the Bank of Canada now under construction.

It is now considered one of the most successful malls in North America and has become quite well known in planning circles.

Town planners and officials from all over the continent regularly visit Ottawa to get ideas for malls in their own cities.

By THE ENVIRONMENTAL CENTRE Of Greater Victoria

it's our environment

While more and more of us are using bicycles both for transportation and recreation, motor vehicles still are king of the road. And they're likely to remain as such for some time to come.

QUESTION: Is the provincial government planning any legislation to encourage bicycle riding and make it safer? I have heard of states that allocate a small percentage of highway revenue for bike paths etc. Don't you think that would be good idea here in B.C.?—K.D.

ANSWER: Yes, we believe both provincial and local government should do more to encourage bicycle riding. With the growing fuel crisis, air pollution problems and traffic congestion, we need to do what we can to reduce our dependence on cars.

To answer your first question, however, the B.C. government is not planning any legislation for bike paths or to otherwise encourage bicycle riding.

Minister of Highways Robert M. Strachan told us that although he knows of no planned legislation, the department has provided some cycle paths in the area of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

"It would be totally impractical to build bicycle lanes on the new highway facilities which are designed as motor freeways," Strachan said. "And it seems to me that this is the last place the average cyclist would want to be."

Strachan pointed out that adding lanes to existing highways would be very costly because of the bridges and overpasses that necessarily would have to be widened.

"British Columbia, like the rest of North America, has become automobile-oriented. It has grown up over the past 60 years with motor vehicle transportation. There are one million motor vehicles registered in B.C. and they contribute some $100 million in revenue to the provincial government each year," Strachan added, noting that the $100 million does not include sales tax on new cars.

The Department of Highways, he said, "still has to consider the motor vehicle as its primary 'customer' because of its numbers and the revenue collected from it."

"For those who wish to ride bicycles for health and recreation purposes, it seems to me that the most obvious solution at the moment would be to avoid the main streams of traffic by taking lightly travelled side routes," Strachan said.

Two years ago, legislation was passed in the state of Oregon to allocate highway building funds for construction of bike paths. The result has been many 'new bike paths, but the program has come under criticism because the paths, in many cases, have not been where cyclists need them. Most of the funds, Oregonians have found, should be spent for bike lanes in metropolitan areas so people may safely bicycle to and from work.

QUESTION: If you consider cycling as an environmental matter, maybe you can settle an argument. Both my husband and I ride bicycles. Since we live in Saanich, we frequently ride on busy, rather narrow roads that have paved footpaths on the side. Since the footpaths seldom are used by pedestrians, I usually ride my bike on them to keep out of the way of cars. My husband says it is illegal to ride on the footpaths and he rides in the road even when traffic is heavy. Am I breaking the law?—Mrs. D.D.

ANSWER: Your way may seem more sensible, but you are breaking the law. A Saanich police spokesman reminds you that bikes are required by law to follow the same rules as motor vehicles — and that means staying off sidewalks.

While the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act, which forbids riding on sidewalks, does require a bicycle path to be used rather than the street whenever such a path is available, the footpaths you're referring to are not considered bicycle paths.

Although it may be against the law, we doubt if you would be arrested for temporarily turning your bike off onto an unused footpath to let traffic pass you on a narrow street.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: In response to your question: Does anyone remember her marriage proposal? I'm sure my wife does.

Ellen and I had been going together for five years when I finally asked her to marry me. She said she would consider it only if I put it in writing, so I submitted the following, which you have my permission to reprint:

"Miss Ellen Aston:

I, the undersigned, wish to inform you that in accordance with the laws of human nature and common practice, I hereby serve notice that on the 4th day of September in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty seven, I wish to take you as my lawfully wedded wife, to have and to hold until death do us part.

Fred H. Zimmerman"

She accepted. This year we shall celebrate our 35th wedding anniversary.

DEAR ABBY: On Dec. 22, 1927, I was in my girl friend's kitchen having a little homemade wine when I reached into my pocket and pulled out 10 or 12 ring settings. I tossed them on the table and said "Pick out the one you like and I'll have a stone put in it." She did, and that was it. Since it was three days before Christmas that was her Christmas present, too. — F. J. D. In Menlo Park.

DEAR F. J. D.: That's what I call killing two birds with one "stone."

DEAR ABBY: A proposal? Well, that's a matter of opinion, but here's what happened: While holding the match to light my date's cigaret, I said, "I could never be married to a girl who smokes."

She took one final drag from the cigaret, then she put it out and said, "THAT was my last cigaret!"

And there went my last excuse. Me and My Big Mouth.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my proposal: I got a call at work one afternoon. It was my boyfriend of seven months.

"I'm downtown," he said. "Had something to take care of, and since I've already lost a day's work anyway you may as well come down and we'll take our blood tests."

Incidentally, my father picked my husband up at 3 a.m. after our wedding night and THEY went duck hunting. — Happy Hunting Widow In Illinois.

DEAR WIDOW: Yours was a new kind of "shotgun" wedding!

Mechanical heart developed at the University of Alberta

Our Mechanical Heart Cost $50,000 family

EDMONTON (CP) — Problems associated with mechanical or totally artificial hearts still are major, but a young mechanical engineer says these now are more medical and surgical than engineering.

He and his medical colleagues at the University of Alberta have tested 12 mechanical models in 43 animals. The most recent test animal — a calf — lived for 33 hours with its own heart replaced by Morris' aluminum, plexiglass and silicon-rubber one.

Despite this seemingly short success time, Morris said he's certain the mechanical heart will exist, although he wouldn't hazard a guess as to when.

It's use as an interim measure — perhaps using one-half a mechanical heart to give one side of a severely damaged human heart a rest — could happen fairly soon, he told reporters during a meeting of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons.

In fact, he thinks one of his Alberta models might be about ready for such a test although probably hospital officials wouldn't be willing yet.

Morris presented a paper on the Canadian experience with the artificial heart during the meeting Saturday afternoon. He described some of the problems, most of them medical ones and occurring some distance from the heart.

The problems involved such things as clots being formed in the mechanical heart, kidney and lung problems — "and pneumonia."

"Unfortunately many of the calves have pneumonia when we get them," he said. The three researchers suspect that some of the animals die from such secondary causes. The calves they use are obtained from those being sold for slaughter for meat.

Although Morris didn't complain, he did describe some research problem that indicate lack of financial support for this research in Canada.

One of the three or four research centres in the United States has had calves with artificial hearts live for three weeks, he said. But that was based on trials in nearly 700 animals over a 15-year period.

This Salt Lake City research group has a yearly budget of about $1.5 million, he added, sounding a trifle longing.

The three Alberta researchers have worked on a total budget of $50,000 since they began three years ago. The money now is provided by the Alberta heart fund.

The artificial heart, which is about the size of two oranges, weighs about eight ounces, he said.

The engineering problem that remains is to make it small enough to fit into the natural bag or sac that contained the natural heart, Morris said. By fitting it into the natural sac, it will get additional support and remain more naturally in place within the chest.

So far, the doctors associated with the research have not tried the additional drugs to prevent clotting, antibiotics to prevent lung diseases and other such aids, he said.

One purpose of the research was to see what problems might develop without masking them by preventive measures.

He said the next steps would be to try medical corrective measures, such as drugs.

Morris told reporters he became interested in working on the mechanical heart during his studies for a master's degree. He now is working with Drs. C. M. Couves and Tadashi Nishizawa, heart surgeons and researchers at the University of Alberta.

This Is Luck? I'd Rather Be Miserable!

Regular month-end clean-up of my desk has uncovered a complaint from a citizen who takes regular walks along Oak Bay and Victoria waterfronts.

In his case, long-suffering patience has given place to smouldering anger.

At whom? Those people who have a compulsive urge to feed seagulls close to paths and walkways where others are strolling or near seats where they may be taking a rest.

To substantiate the complaint he tells me that through this habit he has been "bombarded" by seagull droppings on more than one occasion.

Most recent incident was as he came up from the Esplanade into Willows Park and started along a pathway toward Beach Drive.

Just thah a car stopped at the street end of the path. A woman jumped out with a huge paper bag crammed with bread scraps.

"She actually ran toward me along the pathway," this man says, "and as she ran she was scattering the bread crusts. Indeed, I think she was calling the birds as she went."

In a matter of seconds a dozen or more seagulls were there "swooping low over me ... some almost touching my head."

Within seconds, too, the inevitable happened. A great dollop of grey-white seagull droppings slithered down his shoulder and arm and over the side of his coat.

"Lucky it was only a raincoat," he says, "if it had been my good cloth coat the stain would have been difficult to remove."

As it was, his wife spent a couple of hours removing the mess from the raincoat.

He ends with an urgent plea — "If people want to feed seagulls, why . . . . why . . . . why . . . don't they do it down at the water's edge or far enough from pathways and walkways that others, not so seagull minded, are spared the results of their idiocyncrasy."

I heartily endorse that plea. For I, too, have been "bombarded" by a seagull.

At the time, friends assured me it was lucky to have experienced such a happening. But I couldn't accept that idea.

All I could see was the stain on my suit, left by an abundance of lime in the droppings. A stain that wouldn't come out.

Also in the basket on my desk there's an invitation that tells me the new extended care wing at Gorge Road Hospital will be officially opened at 2 o'clock this Wednesday afternoon.

On Wednesday afternoon, the general public, as well as invited guests, will be able to view one floor of this new wing. Because there is only a patient elevator working at present, it will be impossible to open all three floors.

Thursday a start will be made at bringing in the patients. Admitting office personnel tell me that perhaps 60 will be entered that first day. On Friday there will be perhaps 30 more.

Skirts Stage a Comeback

NEW YORK (CP) — Suits with skirts are favorites for the spring of 1973. They are beginning to crowd out pant suits. But the latter will never be entirely eliminated from the fashion scene. By now they are classics and worn by everyone from pre-teens to senior citizens.

But the skirts are newer looking for spring and you have a wide choice — the newest straight line, wrapped, slightly full, panelled or with pleats. Fashion expert Eleanor Lambert, in her opening remarks at the press fashion week of the American Designer Showings, summed up the spring suit as "a little city suit, apt to be colorless ivory or palest pastels, growing looser but with neat shoulders."

And she tops the outfit with matching turban. She also introduces another facet — a two-piece dress that looks like a suit. A number of other designers like this look too. Also important in Mrs. Simpson's line, and again in many other collections, is the drawstring jacket, always in a soft fabric.

But the suit jacket can be straight and long, or a sweater style, or worn with a belt or self sash or, the latest, nipped in by the drawstring or an elasticized waist. Irving Samuel of Montreal likes the safari and the shirt jacket.

"We believe in suits," said Originala, a trend-setting coat and suit house. Their spring suits tend to be in unlined double-faced fabrics or in sweater-like knits, as a sweater-knit cardigan and skirt suit showing off the open-necked brown-and-pale-blue check shirt. This open-necked shirt effect ran through sufficient collections to make it a definite spring trend.

Originala also likes short jackets, soft and barely fitted, with wrapped or flared skirts.

Another of their interesting spring additions is a long ascot tie. A pale pink double-faced wool suit has the new monochromatic look with a pink silk blouse and matching ascot.

The 1972 Coty Fashion Award winner, John Anthony, introduced his collection with a longer, collarless white jacket and flip skirt plus a polka-dot shirt. The occassional red appeared in what is otherwise a pale spring. One was Anthony's red fitted wool suit with navy georgette shirt and bow tie.

Another designer, Geoffrey Beene, turns for his suits to silk and wool jersey or dotted crepes. He likes sweater ribbing trims or baby raglan sleeves.

Nearly every season sees an influence on fashion from a popular movie. This spring there's a ripple carry-over from The Young Winston movie, with interest in the 19th century military-cut jacket and British colonial colors. One house that definitely likes this look is Cuddlecoat. The young Winston feeling showed up in a pimento-red jacket in Irish linen with over-the-shoulder epaulettes.

Oscar de la Renta's Sporting World collection has two-and-three part suits with a young, late 1920s look. He even dangles the long scarves down the front, like mufflers.

He, and many others, like skirt pleats falling from a low-stitched hipline. This has a slimming effect.

Among the designers noted for their young-looking collections is Suzy Perette. She has introduced the elasticized waistline in most of her jackets and teams them with pleated skirts for a suit look.

So for the newest look in spring suits, remember: soft fabrics, no-color or pales, elasticized or drawstring waists, long dangling-down-front scarves, and skirts.

The four-page folder Streamlined Guide to Health-Creating Habits not only tells you how to upgrade your daily habits, it also summarizes the principal habits that can damage your health.

The folder urges you, for instance, to avoid "white" foods, such as white bread, white sugar and white rice. Also, keep starchy foods down to a minimum.

The use of butter is not condemned. In this connection a well-known nutritionist is quoted who maintains that tamins. One of these vitamins helps us digest other fats.

Overeating, fast eating and butter contains valuable vi- eating when overtired, are the three main faulty food habits.

You will also learn the immense importance of a daily 10 minute rest period. According to this folder, this can be as refreshing as two to three hours of sleep.

Also, try to control your emotions. An optimistic outlook on life makes for radiant health.

'LURKING PROBLEMS OF PATERNITY'

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States Supreme Court has ruled that if a state requires a man to support his legitimate children, he must support his illegitimate ones as well.

"We recognize the lurking problems with respect to proof of paternity," the court said.

"Those problems are not to be lightly brushed aside, but neither can they be made into an impenetrable barrier that works to shield otherwise invidious discrimination."

"A Business Built on Customer Confidence and Goodwill"

Shakespeare's Lady Found Out

LONDON (Reuter) — An eminent British historian claimed Monday to have tracked down the mysterious dark lady who has tantalized scholars of William Shapespeare's sonnets.

She was, says Alfred L. Rowse, a promiscuous married woman called Emilia Lanier whose inconstancy tormentted others as much as Shakespeare.

The little that Shakespeare said about her has inspired scores of speculative volumes.

To judge from the sonnets she was so dark-complexioned—"a woman colored ill"—that many men in Elizabethan England might have found her unattractive.

"O, though I love what others would abhor,

"With others thou shouldst nor abhor my state.

"Nevertheless she seemed to suffer no shortage of lovers.

"Those lips of thine,

"That have profaned their scarlet ornaments

"And sealed false bonds of love as oft as mine

"Robbed others' beds revenues of their rents."

CLUES IN WRITINGS

Rowse, generally acknowledged as the greatest living authority on Elizabethan English history, said in an interview he unmasked the dark lady in a mass of hitherto little-read papers—the writings of a womanizing astrologer called Simon Forman.

Forman was a contemporary of Shakespeare's and moved in the same playhouse circles.

By piecing together what Forman said about Emilia Lanier with the known events of Shakespeare's life and the clues from the sonnets, Rowse says he is convinced he has hit on the right answers.

Other theories he now dismisses as "rubbish."

Emilia was half Italian, possibly accounting for the complexion. She was married to a minstrel of the royal court who went to sea and never reappeared in the story.

She also was a castoff mistress of the lord chamberlain of the day, Lord Hunsdon, who had strong connections with Shakespeare's playhouse.

Forman had an affair with Emilia and, his manuscripts say, became enslaved to her caparicious charms. He apparently experienced some of the frustration that Shakespeare expressed in the lines:

"O, from what power hast thou this powerful might

"With insufficiency my heart to sway?"

Rowse says his discovery will open up new horizons of Shakespearean study. He is working on a book to describe his findings more fully.

Student PCs Encouraging 'Work Ethic'

British Columbia's student Progressive Conservatives want to encourage public acceptance of a "work ethic".

At their annual meeting Saturday at the University of Victoria, members of the province's Progressive Conservative Student Federation voted to support changes in the welfare system to alleviate misuse of the system and encourage acceptance of a "work ethic".

Members agreed to join with the Young Progressive Conservatives.

CASH NOT BLOCKED

OTTAWA (UPI) — New legislation which would permit the federal government to block foreign takeovers and new foreign investment is not intended to prevent them, providing there is a "significant benefit," Industries Minister Alastair Gillespie said Sunday.

Speaking on the CTV's pre-taped Question Period program, Gillespie said the intention of the bill should be seen as "constructive" rather than "negative."

The legislation, introduced Wednesday, replaces a bill never adopted by the last session of Parliament. That bill proposed screening of foreign takeovers of Canadian businesses with assets of more than $250,000 or annual net revenue of more than $3 million.

Immediately upon adoption of the bill by Parliament, the government would assume the powers outlined under the old legislation. Later, the screening agency's powers would be expanded to cover takeovers and foreign investments of any size.

Gillespie denied suggestions the bill was drafted with an eye to gaining support for the government from the New Democratic Party, which sharply criticized the narrow scope of the old bill.

He said the new legislation was aimed at the foreign investor seeking to take over an existing Canadian corporation or to start a new business in Canada, as well as the foreign investor already in the country wishing to go into unrelated lines of business.

NATIONAL PROMOTION FOR WOMEN PLANNED

TORONTO (CP) — A weekend meeting of the National Action Committee on the Status of Women decided to launch a national newspaper to promote the cause of women across Canada.

A campaign to raise funds for the paper will begin immediately. Moira Armour of the Voice of Women is to be editor.

The meeting also decided to push for a federal human rights commission, to be conducted by a single woman commissioner. The committee's choice is Marguerite Ritchie, former counsel in the justice department.

NATO Cutback Talks Start

BRUSSELS (AP) — Twelve NATO allies, Canada and the United States among them, decided today to go to Vienna for the opening of talks with the Communist bloc on mutual and balanced force reductions in Central Europe.

The talks in the Austrian capital begin Wednesday.

The decision of the NATO group was announced in a statement after a meeting of the North Atlantic Council, where all 15 members of the alliance are represented. France, Portugal and Iceland will not take part in the talks.

The Western countries had invited East Germany, Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia to take part in the talks. The Soviet Union has said it is also bringing along Romania and Bulgaria.

NATO officials said the West would not object so long as the two additional countries had the same status as their own members on the flanks of the alliance: Italy, Greece, Turkey, Norway and Denmark. None of these seven countries has large numbers of foreign troops on its soil.

The five in the Atlantic alliance are to be represented on a rotating basis, and their representatives will not have the status of full participants—at least according to an internal decision of this alliance.

Procedures and participants are likely to be among the first subjects of discussion.

The meetings would attempt to set the groundwork for substantive talks in the fall dealing with the reduction of military strength on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Dogs and Gardens Can Be Compatible

Gardens and dogs can be compatible but seldom are.

In built-up areas, everything depends on the dog owner and the attitude taken to gardens, dogs and of course, other people in general.

As past owner of dogs, both large and small, always aware of property rights and garden privileges, we know small dogs are the more easily contained in and on single lot gardens. They are able to exercise in a limited space by rushing around with ball and bone with no harm to anything.

It takes planning by the gardener and training by the owner, in this case the same person.

A piece of ground 30 by 15 feet is large enough for daily exercise of small dogs who are at times taken for longer runs. The plot will require wire fencing or wood fencing sufficiently tight to restrain a persistent small body from squeezing through.

Neighbors and neighbors' children are often your dog's best friends, undoing your training by enticing the dog to the fence.

By erecting the enclosure totally within your own garden, it is possible to plant trees and shrubs between the enclosure and the property fence. Be sure the width allowance is wide enough for easy access with perhaps a mower and cultivating tools.

Also you will need to train and prune the plants to suit the purposes you have in mind. A couple of small trees, or one birch on the south side with some densely growing shrub to provide early shade from sun, others to break the force of wind in winter — it's a case of landscaping for the comfort and health of your own pet. At the same by choosing plants you enjoy growing, you add to the over-all garden beauty.

Rough grass makes an almost clean run, is easy to maintain, for it withstands some digging for the inevitable burying of bones. Levelled off occasionally, the grass soon takes over once more.

We found that one sturdy, established shrub such as either laurel or laurestinus with a patch of cultivated soil around it makes a fine spot for small paws to excavate.

To give the shrub a chance to get started, a circle of wire will be needed, and a patch of cultivated soil left bare elsewhere in the enclosure.

The best scheme I ever saw for keeping a garden free of dog droppings was evolved by a gardener for a small Pomeranian. Each day when he let the dog out, it was told to go to the "corner".

The "corner" was an enclosure with an entrance where compost was made, and so the droppings were no problem. Every day or so, whenever the gardener went to the corner with house scraps, he would gather the droppings and add them to the compost heap.

In winter, a pathway was cleared to the "corner" and out the little Pom would scuttle in the worst of weather, hurrying back to the warmth of the back porch where her bachelor boss carefully dried her feet and coat.

The garden was beautifully kept, afternoon tea was served outdoors beneath the trees, with the owner secure in the knowledge his garden was planned and his dog trained.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

The playing of a hunch, as contrasted to taking the "percentage" play, often turns out to be the winning play. More frequently, however, the "hunch" play results in a loss — a loss that would have become a gain if the percentage play had been applied.

This is the theme of today's deal, which was played in the match between Poland and France in the World Olympiad held earlier this year. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

SOUTH

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠
1 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

With France holding the North-South cards, the above bidding sequence took place. East put up the spade jack on the opening lead, and South captured the trick with his king.

A low club was then led to dummy's king, after which the South hand was re-entered via the heart ace. The jack of clubs was led next, and a successful finesse taken against West's queen. The nine of clubs was then led, and overtaken by the board's ten. When play had ended, declarer had made nine tricks: five clubs, three hearts, and one spade.

When the deal was replayed with Poland holding the North-South cards, a three-notrump contract was arrived at, with North as the declarer. East opened the queen of spades, and South's king won the trick.

To trick two the jack of clubs was led, and West nonchalantly followed suit with the duce. Declarer took the jack with his king. He then led a heart to South's ace, after which he played the board's nine of clubs. When West followed suit with the four-spot, declarer paused for a long time to reflect on the situation.

After deep consideration, he put up his ace, hoping that East had started with the doubleton Q-x. When East discarded a heart, declarer next led a third club, West winning the trick with his queen. When play had ended, declarer had lost four spade tricks, three diamonds, and a club, to incur a four-trick set.

Thus Poland lost 11 International Match Points instead of gaining 10, as they would have done if the Polish declarer had finessed against the club queen.

MDs Favor More Use of Nurses

EDMONTON (CP) — The growing concept of using "nurse practitioners" as a substitute for hard-pressed family physicians has been praised in an Ontario study, but provincial governments don't appear willing to pay for the innovation.

The study presented to the annual meeting of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, which ended during the weekend, said general practitioners can increase their practice by up to 42 per cent by the addition of one "nurse practitioner."

Nurse practitioners receive the equivalent of about eight months more training than regular registered nurses, have considerable practical experience and are paid about 20 per cent more than regular nurses.

They see all patients that call at the doctor's office and then have three choices: Recommending specific treatment, doing nothing but reassuring the patient, or referring the patient to the physician if it is a case she is not qualified to handle.

HAS MORE TIME

The physician, therefore, has more time to concentrate on the cases requiring his training.

The study said that the plan has great advantages but also reveals that incorporating a decision-making "nurse co-practitioner" into a practice is not financially advantageous under current payment regulations.

Dr. Walter Spitzer, associate professor of clinical epidemiology and biostatistics at McMaster University in Hamilton, said that under current plans for provincial health insurance reimbursement, a doctor can only be paid for a service he personally provides.

He therefore cannot charge the government for services performed by a nurse practitioner.

The financial effect, he said, is shown by the study: That 70 per cent of the episodes handled in a family physician's office can be looked after by nurse practitioners.

Dr. Spitzer said changes will have to be made in reimbursement methods if nurse practitioners are to exist within a practice.

He said the Ontario government is believed willing to negotiate payment changes for individual doctors wanting to try the concept.

HAS DOUBTS

In Alberta, however, Chief Deputy Health Minister Bruce Rawson said the government has indicated it is not willing to open payments to other medical disciplines. He noted that the matter is under study, but that the government would have to be "exceedingly sure" how much such a move would cost, and what effect it would have on health services.

The study, involving 1,600 families in Burlington, showed that doctors working with nurse practitioners increased their practices by 20 per cent, but felt there was room for a further 22-per-cent growth.

Dr. Spitzer observed that in the short term, given Canada's overall surplus of doctors, nurse practitioners may only be a boon in areas with few doctors.

But in the long run, he said, nurse practitioners could result in each doctor taking on more patients, with a disproportionately smaller increase in cost to his practice— given, of course, changes allowing payment to the doctor for the practitioner's services.

The study's other findings:

—The nurse practitioner can be both safe and effective as a source of primary care.

—The quality of care received by patients wasn't different in nurse practitioner practices as compared with conventional practices.

Bermuda Centre Of Sea Survey

By ALAN HARMAN
CP Correspondent

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — A massive bid —the biggest ever mounted—to find out more about the sea is to be centred on the Bermuda Biological Station.

Six oceanographic ships, an aircraft, about 40 scientists and 100 technicians will combine in a quarter-million-dollar-plus experiment called MODE—Mid Ocean Dynamic Experiment.

"No one has ever tried anything on this scale before," said Dr. Conrad Gebelen, the staton's deputy drector. "It is arousing great interest in scientific circles."

When the five-month project ends in July the scientists hope to know considerably more about such things as currents and the effects of air on the sea and vice versa—information which might prove valuable to weather predicting and shipping, as well as add a lot to man's general knowledge of the oceans and what makes them work.

The experiment is a co-operative effort among five American institutions and one in Britain. The British National Institute of Oceanography with its ship Discovery is to take part.

The American institutions are the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, the Bedford Marine Laboratory at Duke University, the Institute of Marine Science at the University of Miami, the department of oceanography at the University of Rhode Island and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

PLAN INTENSIVE STUDY

"The project grew out of a meeting of minds—People who wanted to know what the ocean is doing," Dr. Gebelein said.

"The basic idea is to look at a fairly small area of the open ocean in a very intensive way for a long period. No one has ever documented the sort of information that should be obtained during the experiment."

The ships and aircraft will use Bermuda as a base for study of an area between 200 and 300 miles southwest of the island. The area's position near the Gulf Stream and Sargasso Sea and on the edge of major current system makes it ideal for the study of ocean dynamics.

Bermuda's position makes it an ideal land base for the scientists.

"We expect they will find some fairly fascinating things," Dr. Gebelein said. "The Gulf Stream splits into small currents carrying their own flora and fauna, so you get displaced animals and plants where you would not expect to find them."

MONITOR CURRENTS

More knowledge about these currents might also help shipping to plot routes which use the currents rather than go against them.

The aircraft will monitor air currents and drop sophisticated electronic sea current monitors which will send back signals from different ocean depths.

Information from the ships and the aircraft will be radioed into the biological station every day for immediate processing and analysis by a resident staff of up to a dozen scientists.

Union Settles With Japan Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — A union negotiator representing Canada's 2,300 striking elevator technicians says the union has agreed to install imported Japanese elevators and equipment.

Warner Baxter, chief negotiator for the International Union of Elevator Constructors, said Sunday he signed an agreement with a Canadian representative of the Hitachi Elevator Co. of Japan.

The elevator technicians, employed by five U.S.-owned elevator firms, have been on strike for five months and are seeking greater job security.

At least 10 construction contracts involved in local projects totalling about $300 million have said they will import Japanese elevators if the strike is not settled this week.

Quebec Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer Friday ordered the province's 600 technicians to return to work by Tuesday, saying they fall under a Quebec decree banning strikes in the construction industry.

Families who relied on pHisoHex for scrupulously clean skin will be particularly interested in this non-prescription companion product from Winthrop Laboratories: pHisoDerm. pHisoDerm may be used precisely as you used pHisoHex, and you will find it equally effective as a skin cleanser. pHisoDerm contains no hexachlorophene: that is the basic difference between the two products.

Benefits whole family.

pHisoDerm is recommended for the whole family, for whole body use. Everyone in the family—babies, infants, teenagers, adults, will benefit from the use of this superior cleanser. In the treatment of sensitive skin and skin conditions, it is a preferred product. Indeed, pHisoDerm is recommended for "problem" skin: skin that is vulnerable to rashes or blemishes—skin that reacts badly to soaps or make-up—skin that lacks the healthy glow that is the basis of all good looks.

pHisoDerm is a clinically tested, emollient skin cleanser that leaves the skin thoroughly clean without drying. That's because the acidity level of pHisoDerm is the same as that of normal skin, so instead of the drying damage of soap, you are actually maintaining and stimulating the natural moisture of the skin.

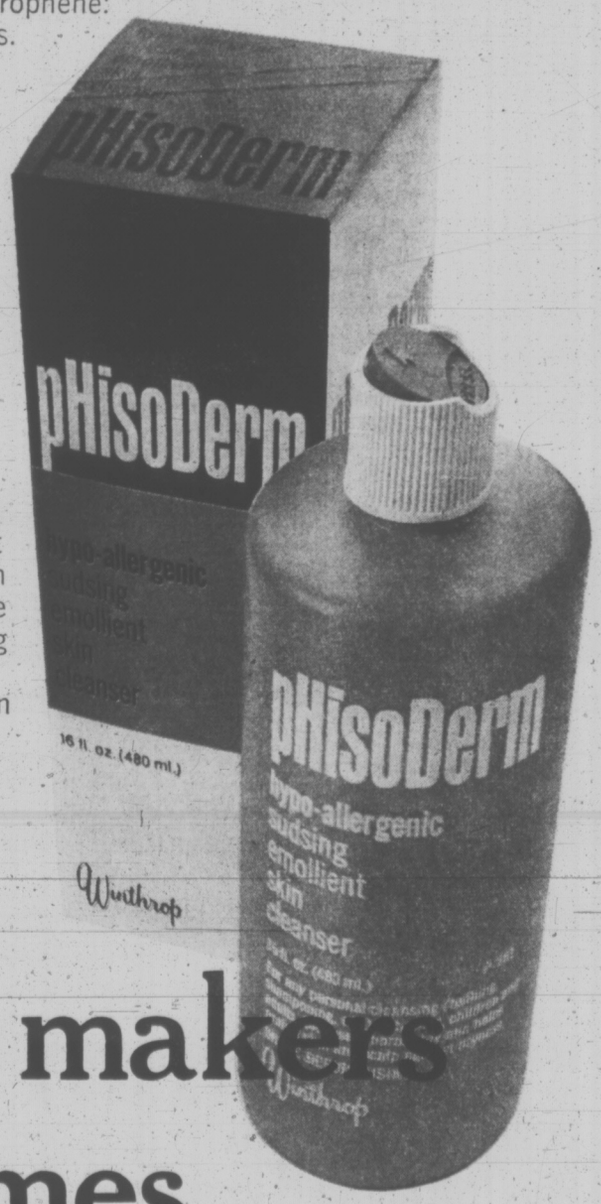
Available only at your pharmacy.
No prescription required.



Now from the makers of pHisoHex comes hypo-allergenic pHisoDerm

A sudsing skin cleanser without hexachlorophene.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Hare Lip

It is wonderful to see the advances in the techniques of plastic and oral surgery over the last 30 years. Today, I read that with the help of treatment, very few of the one in 800 babies born with the defect will have a readily noticeable indication of the cleft lip by the time they are four or five years old.

In a release from the University of Southern California, I read about the fine clinic in Rancho Los Amigos in Downey, near Los Angeles. A number of specialists work with the handicapped children — plastic surgeons, children's specialists, expert dentists, nose and throat specialists, speech therapists, psychologist also social workers and people who can teach the children to talk and to overcome the emotional and psychological needs often associated with this handicap.

Fortunately, today a hare lip opening can be closed surgically. Sometimes there is also a cleft in the palate (roof of the mouth). In this case, the child talks in a peculiar way. Sometimes a device must be fitted into the roof of the mouth to close the cleft, so that when the child sucks milk it won't go up into his nose.

What is important about this team approach is that many different experts are concerned with helping the child. As Dr. Robert G. Andrews, of the USC School of Dentistry and Rancho Los Amigos Hospital, says, "We are interested in the child's problems in his environment, as well as his physical abnormality."

At Rancho Los Amigos, social workers usually start to work with parents as soon as an abnormality is discovered in a child, because it is very distressing to them to realize that they have a defective child.

The design and quality of this contemporary style home and its location combine to make this one of the outstanding homes in greater Victoria. An artistic open stairwell leads to lower level of 1650 sq. ft. where there is billiard room, nobby room with fireplace, 2 (or 3) bedrooms. All rooms but one have distinct view of water. Many additional features such as dual heating systems, electrical system, flood lighting, sprinkler system, etc. reveal that no expense has been spared to make this a most comfortable home, easy to operate and maintain. 1—NORTH SAANICH. Everything about this unique property is appealing. The lines and design of the cedar siding house are most eye pleasing and are in harmony with its acre size, beautifully treed lot. The profile of the land to it's 166 foot seafrontage provides sufficient slope so that a panoramic view of Satellite Channel is afforded from most rooms of the house. The year old Abbott-built home is charming, throughout, from it's antique brickwork in the kitchen, it's three graciously appointed suites, separate from one another, yet grouped in a practical manner around the generously proportioned living area. The price is a most realistic $88,750. For appointment to view call:

Lights Bugged

Highways department officials believe that a key to two boxes containing traffic light controls has fallen into the wrong hands.

Senior public information officer Raymond Baines said today, "There was evidence that someone had been tampering with the wiring" in the boxes at Trans-Canada Highway and Tillicum, and McTavish and Pat Bay Highway in North Saanich.

The key, issued by the manufacturer of the traffic light controls, is unlike a house key, said Baines. The highways department has not reported any missing.

Sidney RCMP said the lights may be shut on or off but there is no danger of all lights going green at one time.

Offshore Oil Gets Hard Look In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The offshore oil industry is about to have a massive impact on Newfoundland and planning is needed to ensure local firms and workers benefit to the maximum, a group of businessmen told the government today.

The businessmen, representing seven Newfoundland companies, presented a report to Premier Frank Moores, outlining their views after a visit last fall

Porno Outlets May Face Short Supplies

By IAN MacLEOD

LONDON (CP) — Pornographic books stalls and blue movie clubs in London's sleazy Soho district may be short of supplies for a while, following the biggest-ever police raid on hard pornographic distributors.

The swoop, in which obscene publications, photographs and films valued on the black market at $1.18 million, were seized following growing concern among government officials and police over the mushrooming and lucrative pornography trade.

Recently, rival gangs have tried to muscle in on the four groups responsible for running the pornography business in the West End. This led to vicious back-street assaults, police say.

While depleting the illicit trade to the tune of 40 tons of obscene material, the police swoop was also an attempt to prevent future violent confrontations among the gangs.

POLICE USE AXES

During the weekend raids, 100 police officers, led by the crime squad from Scotland Yard, were forced several times to break into sales outlets with crowbars and axes.

A "mad axeman" reported to be going beserk outside a Soho club Saturday night turned out to be an officer forcing a door after entry had been refused.

Police swooped on homes of suspected pornography merchants in the plush areas of Chelsea, Hampstead and Mayfair, making several arrests.

Detectives also raided a farmhouse in Surrey where 20 tons of obscene literature was uncovered.

Nine men were arrested in the raids.

In recent months police have made smaller raids on individual establishments suspected of trading on the pornography market. Among those questioned by police then was stripclub king Paul Raymond, owner of the publication Men Only.

The November issue of the magazine was confiscated by the directors of public prosecutions following complaints that some of the photographs were obscene.

For months before the latest raid, the hand-picked squad of detectives had infiltraded the pornography market, investigating the behind-the-scenes mechanism of the trade.

UNDETERRED by the fact his uniform is big enough for two players his size, 11-year-old Roger Therrien of Edmonton heads for the rink Sunday. He was one of thousands of boys across Canada taking part in special weekend games to celebrate Minor Hockey Week.

Builders See Trouble In Labor Negotiations

SASKATOON (CP) — Labor negotiations this year could be the biggest problem for Canada's construction industry, the outgoing president of the Canadian Construction Association said today.

Eric L. Hartley of Toronto said more collective agreements than ever before will be negotiated in the construction industry this year.

"If these negotiations result in major work stoppages or increases in wage costs, this industry, both contractors and unions, will be in very serious trouble," he told the opening session of the association's annual meeting.

In a move to counter a possible industry upheaval, he announced that a national labor-management conference will be held in Ottawa March 6-7 "to establish the foundation for a better nationwide approach to industry problems of mutual concern."

It will be the first meeting of its kind. Mr. Hartley's announcement was made jointly with James A. McCambly, executive secretary of the Board of the Building Trades Unions in Canada, who is to address the convention later this week.

The Ottawa conference will bring together two representatives of construction labor organizations and two from management in each province. They will be joined by senior Canadian officials of the International Building Trades Unions and contractor groups.

Some industry sources said that unless sanity is maintained in the Canadian construction industry, the open-shop movement in the United States could spill over into Canada. Many contractors in the U.S. operate without union workers.

Hartley, last in a series of elected annual association presidents would be replaced by Henry de Puyjalon of Ottawa who takes over next month as the association's first full-time president.

He told more than 500 delegates to the three-day convention here:

"With good will and proper communications we can, and we must, settle the wage agreements this year without any stoppages of work and at a reasonable cost."

He singled out the elevator sector of the industry, embroiled in a 22-week dispute that has involved mediation and conciliation efforts.

"This dispute must be solved and solved soon and solved with the interests of the public for most rather than those of either party in the dispute."

Hartley said the general outlook for the construction program this year is a moded increased in physical volume, in the range of $17.5 billion to $18 billion.

He urged that all levels of government in Canada, which combined account for about one-third of Canada's total construction program, make longer-range plans. The influence of governments on private capital investment should not be under-estimated.

Watergate Trial Nears Conclusion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government rested its case today in the Watergate political espionage trial which began Jan. 8.

It rested after calling 51 witnesses including seven members of President Nixon's White House and election campaign staffs and two officials of the Democratic party.

The case grew out of the break-in and alleged bugging of the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate building complex last June 17.

HAD PHONE TAPPED

The defence was to complete its presentation today and presiding U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica scheduled closing arguments for both sides in the afternoon.

Sirica said he would deliver his charge to the jury Tuesday.

The government's last two witnesses were White House lawyer Fred Fielding and Democratic official R. Spencer Oliver.

Oliver, executive director of the Association of State Democratic Chairmen, testified that his telephone at the Democratic national committee offices in the Watergate was tapped.

Fielding, an associate counsel to Nixon, testified about the opening of a safe in the Executive Office Building used by E. Howard Hunt, a former White House consultant who has pleaded guilty in the Watergate case and awaits sentencing.

The remaining defendants are G. Gordon Liddy, former counsel to Nixon's campaign finance committee, and James W. McCord, Nixon's campaign security chief.

Initially, seven men were charged in connection with the break-in and bugging.

But five of the defendants pleaded guilty. Besides Hunt, they are Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez. All await sentencing.

Burial at Sea For Retired MD

As requested in his will, Dr. W. S. Kergin of Saltspring Island was buried at sea today, and his mourners drank tots of rum following the ceremony.

Dr. Kergin, who retired to Saltspring in 1965 after 22 years practising medicine in Prince Rupert, was a small boat operator and was long connected with the Canadian navy as a medical examiner.

Dr. Kergin died last Tuesday in Victoria, aged 67. There was a funeral service at Metropolitan United Church this morning and the casket was taken out to a point near Race Rocks on MV Millbank Scund.

After graduating from medical school in Toronto in 1930 Dr. Kergin moved to practise at Premier Mines in British Columbia. He moved to Ocean Falls from 1940 to 1943.

He is survived by his wife Muriel; sons William of Vancouver and David of Kitchener, Ont.; daughters Susanne of Kitchener and Cheryl of London, England; brother Fred of Toronto, sister Margaret Outerbridge of New Westminster.

Probe Report Ready This Week

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Harry Purdy, commissioner of an inquiry into possible tendering irregularities for the Campbell River Hospital extension, said Sunday the report would be sent to Health Minister Dennie Cocke by the end of the week.

The inquiry ended Jan. 18 after eight days of testimony.

Lane Condition Termed 'Fair'

Sam Lane, president of the Greater Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau and owner of the Olde England Inn at 429 Lampson, is in fair condition today in the coronary care section of Victoria General Hospital.

Fort Garry Fire Traps Guests

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fire broke out in the Fort Garry Hotel for the second time in 13 months early this morning, trapping some guests in their rooms and forcing others on to ledges nine storeys above the ground.

The first alarm was turned in at 2:05 a.m., and another 14 minutes later as the blaze swept along adjoining corridors on the ninth floor of the 12-storey CNR hotel.

Four persons were taken from Fort Garry to St. Boniface General Hospital by fire rescue crews. A hospital spokesman said the four were treated for minor smoke inhalation and released.

Ferry Crew Saves Hapless Sailors

HORSESHOE BAY (CP) — The crew of the B.C. Ferry Bowen Queen rescued five persons Sunday whose sailboat had overturned off the north point of Bowen Island. The five were taken to hospital and treated for exposure. Their names were not released.

Dentists, Doctors Form U.S. Union

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The first national physicians and dentists union in the United States was formed here Sunday to battle interference by outside parties in medical care.

Six unions representing 8,000 practitioners signed the constitution of the American Federation of Physicians and Dentists, organizers told a news conference.

Other doctors unions pledged to join at the two-day conference, bringing initial membership to 25,000, mostly physicians, they said.

The federation will serve as an umbrella group to doctors unions formed to oppose encroachment by government, insurance companies and hospital administrators in medical practice, Dr. Donald C. Meyer, a New York City dentist and union vice-president, told reporters.

"The union is unique in the sense that we are fighting for the right to determine what care is proper for our patients," said Dr. Sanford Marcus of San Francisco. "This is also a consumer advocate organization in a sense."

The union's primary purpose will be to improve medical care for patients rather than win economic gains for doctors, he said.

Attempted Murder

COURTENAY — A 46-year-old Courtenay man, charged with attempted murder, was remanded to Feb. 5 to fix a date for preliminary hearing by Judge John Ryan in Courtenay provincial court today.

Nicholas Hleck, 1032 Fifth, was charged Saturday following a shooting incident at his home about 10:15 p.m., in which his wife, Violet, 46, and son, Edward, 16, were shot with a .30-30 rifle.

Both Mrs. Hleck and Edward are in satisfactory condition, Courtenay RCMP said.

Pilots On Ship

Little Solace

Grief-stricken Vietnamese mother is comforted by son as they lay to rest an older son, a South Vietnamese officer killed in heavy fighting immediately before the Sunday ceasefire was to go into effect.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority is conducting an inquiry into the grounding of the freighter Irish Stardust early Thursday morning close to Haddington Island off the northeastern coast of Vancouver Island.

Two B.C. pilots were aboard the Irish vessel when she ripped the entire length of her port side, spewing about 100,000 gallons of crude bunker oil as she made her way to Esquimalt.

Board chairman Alan Clark of Vancouver was unavailable for comment today but another official said that one of the pilots was on duty when the ship struck rocks close to the island between midnight and 1 a.m.

NO NAMES

He refused to give the names of the two pilots.

Maynard Richardson, spokesman of the ship's agents, Anglo-Canadian (West Ship) Ltd. in Vancouver said today the pilots had boarded the Irish Star at Cape Beale, when she was en route to Kitimat.

First reports pinpointed the grounding as being on Haddington Reefs, the same area where the B.C. ferry Queen of Prince Rupert grounded in 1967.

A ministry of transport official said today the correct position was west of the island, close into shore.

Richardson said the ministry of transport's preliminary closed inquiry has been completed. A further inquiry will begin in two weeks' time, either here or in Vancouver.

He said arrangements were being made by the ship's owners, Irish Shipping of Dublin, Ireland, to have $20,000 sent out to help meet costs of mop-up operations.

$500,000 TAB

Chris Hatfield, regional coordinator for the department of environment, estimates the cost of the clean-up job to be in the neighborhood of $500,000.

One of the many officials at Alert Bay on Cormorant Island, centre of the mop-up operations, Hatfield says his department is collecting evidence to support possible charges against the ship's captain, James Caird, for violations of both the Fisheries' Act and Migratory Birds' Conservation Act.

Friday, Caird was remanded in Victoria Provincial Court until Feb. 9. He is charged under the Canada Shipping Act with allowing his ship to discharge oil and failure to report the discharge immediately.

This is the first time in Canada that charges have been laid under pollution regulations of the act.

B. W. Lynch, operations manager of Irish Shipping, and two other company officials have arrived in Victoria.

After a meeting in Richardson's home Sunday, they announced that repairs to the ship will cost about $750,000 and will take about five weeks.

Richardson said, "She has damage to virtually the entire port side, it will mean replacing about 40 plates."

SAIGON — Supervision of the shaky Vietnam truce bogged down before it even got started today when three planeloads of Hanoi and Viet Cong officials staged sit-ins in their aircraft, refusing to deplane until the Saigon government recognized them as residents of South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, South Vietnamese and Communist troops battled from one end of South Vietnam to the other despite the ceasefire declaration, and Saigon reported 480 Communist attacks since the truce began, a larger number than at any time during the war. Nearly 400 Vietnamese were killed.

The first planeload of Viet Cong, who consider themselves citizens of South Vietnam, eventually won the battle of wills after staging a 22-hour sit-in that began after their South Vietnamese C47 transport plane landed at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base Sunday afternoon. Saigon officials today let the nine men off the plane without making them fill out immigration forms but warned its decision did not "constitute a precedent with regard to other such delegates."

Today, two U.S. Air Force C130 Hercules transport planes became the first American aircraft flown into Hanio since 1954, but they nearly 150 North Vietnamese officers brought back by the plane to Tan Son Nhut also refused to deplane in a similar immigration dispute.

The North Vietnmese and Viet Cong officers, joined by South Vietnamese and U.S. officials, are part of a military group that will work with the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICSS) — a four nation body set up under terms of the Vietnam peace treaty to police a South Vietnam ceasefire.

Canada, a member of the four-nation truce commission, will withdraw immediately if fighting continues, Prime Minister Trudeau warned at a weekend news conference.

"We don't want to get involved in any major war," he said. Canadians were sent there to supervise a truce, not to witness a war.

About 145 military and civilian personnel left for Saigon from Montreal Saturday, the first part of Canada's contingent to the commission which also includes Poland, Indonesia and Hungary.

The first four-power meeting began today, within four hours of the Canadian delegation's arrival in Saigon, and at the Canadians' initiative.

Michel Gauvin, head of the Canadian delegation, told reporters the truce supervisory meetings had started as soon as feasible, but that the dispute between Saigon immigration authorities and arriving Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates had delayed his own organization.

Gauvin said the supervisory force was attempting to arrange another meeting with the joint military commission to make proper arrangements to move out.

"As soon as the joint military commission provides transport and proper security arrangements to get to the regional headquarters, we shall go."

The 1,160-man international commission force will have headquarters in Saigon, regional headquarters in seven military districts and small

HUE — At Quang Tri on South Vietnam's front line, the heavy shelling stopped shortly after 8 a.m. Sunday, and soldiers of the opposing armies sang and waved at each other across the Thachhan River.

The morning mist was still thick as Lt.-Col. Nguyen The Luong, commander of the marine garrison in Quang Tri city, stepped out of a command bunker, clasped the hands of visiting reporters and said in Vietnamese:

"Thank you very much for your presence here on this historic occasion of the ceasefire. Whether there will be a lasting peace depends on the good will of the enemy."

A toast of weak, cold coffee was drunk. In the rubble that was once a city, there seemed a new beginning.

But 25 miles to the south, across the province line in a village called Phon Qan, the terrible past lingered. South Vietnamese troops, undeterred by the ceasefire, launched an operation into a hamlet a few hundred yards from the road where three North Vietnamese companies had infiltrated early Saturday.

Airborne forces by the truckload were deposited in the surrounding rice paddies and swept forward, supported by artillery fire. Ambulances raced by carrying the wounded

Land Bank Accord Reached

OTTAWA (CP) — An agreement to acquire and assemble land has been reached between the federal and British Columbia governments.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said in a news release today that CMHC will pay 75 per cent of the cost of land bought for housing developments in B.C. while the province will meet the remaining 25 per cent.

Land banks are to be set up in the regional districts of Vancouver and Victoria. Land banks are areas of land set aside for future development.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has said that the federal government is prepared to spend $5 million immediately to support a provincial land assembly operation in B.C.

The federal government also has announced plans to expand land banking provisions in the National Housing Act. Basford has said the government will set up a new communities program providing for purchase of land to create entirely new towns.

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer refused comment until he had received official word on the agreement from Ottawa.

In Toronto Ron Basford, minister of state for urban affairs, said today he will introduce legislation today calling for federal leadership and assistance in creation of new

Quebec Offers Games Aid

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Quebec will not hesitate to pick up the tab for a $5 to $10 million deficit for the 1976 Olympic Games, Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said Sunday.

He said the games will cost $310 million and these costs can be covered by revenue from the Olympics.

Ottawa, however, doubts the claims.

Prime Minister Trudeau at the weekend repeated earlier statements he is demanding written "guarantees" from Montreal that there will be no deficit for Ottawa to pay.

Montreal's Mayor Drapeau has insisted Montreal will not be asking the federal government for large sums of money to pay for the games.

But Montreal is hinging this on the idea that the sale of coins will generate $250 million.

Roger Rousseau, commissioner-general for the 1976 summer games, said Ottawa has largely approved the proposed budget for the Olympics except for proposed sale of the specially-minted coins.

He said the government apparently doubts the amount that coin sales could earn and if they brought in less than organizers hope, the games would be run at a deficit.

There could be no budget for the games without the coin sales.

The Quebec finance minister said Sunday that the estimated cost contained a margin for error and inflation and that the committee had not requested funds from Ottawa.

The $60 million price tag he projected for administration costs would be derived from ticket sales and the sale of television rights.

Describing the games as "a challenge which must be accepted," Garneau said it would be disastrous to the conomy of Montreal and Quebec if they were cancelled.

He did not elaborate.

Teamster Office Bombed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A fire bomb thrown through a second-floor window of the Teamsters' Building in Vancouver caused minor fire damage and smoke damage to an office today.

A half-hour later, at 3:45 a.m., an unidentified man called The Sun newspaper and several radio stations and said the bombing had been done by Teamsters desgruntled by the leadership of Senator Ed Lawson.

"Lawson is pulling up sticks and we don't like it," he said. "He's made his money and now he is pulling out — and we're getting violent."

The man said bombings would continue "on down the line" with other Teamster leaders.

Barrett Cancels Squamish As Site for Coal Loading

Barrett indicated the government is likely to relocate the port at Britania Beach, which is 10 miles closer to Vancouver on Howe Sound.

Barrett made the announcement at a press conference this morning at which he released three environmental studies done on the Squamish site. The major report was done by environmentalist Howard Paish, with the other two coming from the federal department of the environment and the B.C. Railway.

Paish's report, on which Barrett said he based his decision to scrap the Squamish site, recommends against locating the port there. The environment department report, part of which was released earlier by federal Environment Minister Jack Davis, had recommended that further study be done of the Squamish site.

Barrett said today's announcement cancels a "handshake deal" between Davis and former Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who had tentatively agreed to locate the port at Squamish.

MAIL STRIKE TO SPREAD?

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Jim Campbell, president of the Belleville local of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, said Sunday a strike by his local's 33 members will spread to other centres today.

He would not specify what points would be affected, but he said the union's national headquarters is trying to arrange for strike money, which he said means the union is bracing for strike action.

Belleville carriers have been picketing the main post office here since Thursday to protest management intentions to send carriers to their routes by taxi instead of bus so more time can be spent delivering mail.

The union is demanding they be taken both to and from their routes by taxi or permitted to take public transportation both ways. The employees say the taxi proposal would result in increased work loads. Union leaders in Ottawa have not been available for comment.

Parole Board Interfering—Judge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Provincial Court Judge Les Bewley has accused the National Parole Board of "interfering on a massive scale with the judiciary."

"If the board is upsetting the judiciary function right, left and centre," said Bewley, who lit into the National Parole Board Saturday night after a speech to the Vancouver Institute by board chairman George Street.

Bewley was heckled and told to sit down when he strode to the front of the lecture hall following Street's speech brandishing police photographs of a 63-year-old man killed in Vancouver last year. He said a 20-year-old parolee with a long record of petty crime was found guilty of the murder and sentenced to life imprisonment Jan. 12.

Bewley asked Street why David John Urias had been released on parole when he had such a long record of petty crime. "Did you know his whole record and on what basis did you lift his sentence?"

Street replied: "We have made 6,700 other mistakes in 14 years. The system is not perfect. How many times do you want me to come out and bare my soul and admit our mistakes?"

Street said the three-day pass system was handled by the prisons and not by the parole board. He said it was a good system, but, "unfortunately it got out of hand, they were giving three-day passes every three days."

Bewley said the board had become "extremely intransigent" and said the federal government should either direct the board to consult with judges to a much greater extent or put judges on the board.

"Very few judges sentence a man to 'X' years in jail unless they want him to serve 'X' years in jail," Bewley said.

Street said Canada has the greatest per capita prison population in the world because Canadians are punitive. He said locking up prisoners for long periods of time prevented them from learning responsibilities.

"Whenever possible or feasible, the offender should be kept in the community where he can work and support his dependents, contribute to the economy of the country and learn to be a responsible citizen" Street said.

He also pointed out that punishment was expensive. It cost $9,720 to keep a prisoner in a federal institution.

In comparison, the total average cost for preparing a case for the parole board and maintaining a contact on parole in the first year was $1,105. Second-year costs of supervision averaged $458.

He said he favored requiring criminals to pay restitution to their victims. In his speech, Street said continuous punishment in a penal institution has little beneficial effect.

Yes, You, Too, Can Kill —Just Return the Form

Jean Howarth, a fine reporter, was one of the few women — perhaps the only one — to attend a hanging when that was considered an act of justice. She went to Oakalla Prison Farm to witness the execution of a homosexual who'd killed his lover. I still have a clipping of her story in the file I keep of well-written reports.

"When he killed, he killed in hot blood," Jean wrote. "You might do that, too, if you were terrified for your life or enraged beyond reason. But you are killing him in cold blood. He is alone, and bound, and helpless. And all you strong, free people in this room, in the city beyond the room, in the Canada beyond the city, are a part of it . . .

"He is on the trap now, and the hangman is strapping his legs, adjusting the noose. And this is the worst thing of all. The blood in your veins, your hearts thuds, your whole body wrenching out to him. It is your body that knows. Your mind may find words for it later, but your body's life knows now, in this terrible instant, that life is the most sacred thing in the world and it is wrong to kill. Wrong! Wrong! Wrong!

". . . a prison officer was holding a glass of water to my lips. I felt as though I were sick of a dying disease, and that I was filthy. I wanted to wash in water, and I did wash and wash and wash in the next few weeks. Remembering it again today, it is still necessary to wash."

I was recalling that description last week when, as one of his constituents in the Esquimalt-Saanich riding, I received a form letter from Donald. W. Munro, Conservative member of parliament, one-time diplomat, aged 56.

In his campaign Munro called for the restoration of the death penalty when the five-year trial ban on hanging (except in the case of the murder of prison guards or police officers) came to an end. That moratorium, as you know, is now over. Parliament is to decide soon on new legislation.

Munro is seeking to re-enforce his own conviction with that of his constituents through a loaded questionnaire in which the respondent is assured that he does not have to back up his opinion with his signature, (the hangman was always anonymous, too), his opinion will be listed as a "family" choice and with Munro's own estimate that the choice is already crystal clear.

His letter notes his "impression" that the "vast majority" of his constituents support his "pretty uncompromising stand" that the death penalty be restored and that there were "only a handful of persons who disagreed with this position whereas literally hundreds strongly approved."

Since Munro was supported by about one in every three eligible voters I've serious doubts about the validity of that "impression." The last Gallup poll (taken before the report, commissioned by the solicitor-general, demonstrated that abolishment of capital punishment has had no bearing on the increase in criminal homicide) showed that 58 per cent of English-speaking Canadians favor the return of the rope, the hood, the trap-door. That would probably be closer to the truth in Esquimalt-Saanich.

More than once in his campaign Munro spoke about the need for "dignity" in public life, yet here is a man making a dramatic stand for the vengeance killing of human beings, a barbaric, savage, uncivilized, gruesome and, indeed, meaningless exercise that can appeal only to the ignorant and the emotional. Someone has said that if we killed dogs as we once killed human beings there would be a public outcry. It is an act contrary to the spirit of Christ, Himself. Yet here is an M.P. not merely advocating it, but making it a personal crusade.

There can be only one possible reason for the restoration of capital punishment. That is its effectiveness as a deterrent. Yet the evidence, readily available to Munro, is that it serves no such purpose, that, as the Ottawa study puts it, "reintroduction (of the rope) cannot be justified on the argument that it is a more effective deterrent to potential killers than the alternative of protracted imprisonment."

That justification gone, Munro is left only with a shameful appeal to those people who have not bothered to inform themselves or whose archaic lust for vengeance might make them just as ready to bring back burning at the stake, drawing and quartering, the thumbscrews or the racks. In a time of deep concern for increasing violence Munro is advocating the return to brutalizing violence by society, itself. So much for "dignity."

There is a deep, genuine concern over this increase in violence. No one in his right mind would deny it. But the rise in the incidence of murder is no greater than the rise in drug addiction, in alcoholism, in suicide, in brutal crimes of every description. The increase in homicides, in fact, is the lowest among all crimes of violence. There is, in short, a sickness in our society that cannot be cured by the convenient killing, however legal it may be, of killers. The need is to find the cause or causes of this violence and then to act against it. That is the job Munro and his fellow parliamenterians should be doing. It will not be done so long as we send men to Ottawa who have closed nineteenth century minds.

Shrimping Never So Poor

The last commercial shrimper of Sooke is thinking of pulling up his gear because shrimps are getting scarcer and scarcer in Sooke Harbor.

Cecil Rose of East Sooke Road, says a few years ago he used to harvest 24,000 pounds of shrimps a year from his traps. But last year it was down 4,500 pounds.

"Two years ago I was averaging about 350 pounds a day, but now it's 95 pounds, he said.

Rose thinks the decrease in the shrimp population, as well as crabs, is due to bark and debris lining the bottom of Sooke harbor.

"When I pull up my traps, I frequently find bark in them," he said. "Shrimps and crabs seem to be on the way out."

"I've talked to divers," he added, "and they tell me they have never seen a harbor so devoid of sea life. They say the bottom is lined with bark and wood chips and junk a foot in depth."

Rose thinks better harbor management and log sorting would do much to halt the steady deterioration of the harbor's environment and economically it would be to everyone's advantage."

Log booms move in and out of the water and chips from barges escape and are washed up on the beaches," he explained. "One logging operator brings in logs from up the coast for use at the Sooke Forest Products mill. Another logger dumps his logs into the water at the mill which are boomed and taken down to the Victoria mill. It makes no sense."

Rose thinks the method of handling logs, sorting them on land or water, could be improved.

He recalled in the 1950s there were four or five shrimpers operating in the harbor and several women employed to package and ship them to Seattle.

"It provided some people with jobs," he said. "Some people don't seem to realize that fisheries is a valuable resource."

School Pickets Bolstered

Most inside staff at Greater Victoria schools stayed off work today as striking maintenance men strengthened picket lines and asked "everyone but teachers and students" to respect the pickets.

Everyone includes oil trucks and both union and board spokesmen said oil deliveries to schools have been stopped by picket lines, leaving open the possibility that some more schools may have to close.

Meanwhile, negotiations continued into the third day this morning in an attempt to find a solution to the 17-day old strike against the school district by 268 janitors and tradesmen in Local 382 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Officials from CUPE and the school district met for 17 hours, including time out for lunch, Saturday and Sunday at the Imperial Inn.

Neither side would comment on the talks but it was learned that contract language and working conditions were discussed first and wages were to be discussed last.

ENCOURAGING

The fact that the talks have moved into the third day was seen as an encouraging sign.

Union spokesman Dick Proctor said the administration offices and 18 school were being picketed today.

"We are aware certain schools are low on oil," he added.

Proctor said the union knew of the situation at Richmond elementary where principal Evan Oakley fears their oil supply has already run out.

"The furnace hasn't been cutting in yet this morning," Oakly said. "We still have warmth in the building left over from the weekend but we'll just have to watch the thermometer.

"If it goes down too much we'll have to close tomorrow or this afternoon."

Oakley said two picketers were patrolling the school this morning.

Muriel Overgaard, president of CUPE local 947, representing 258 inside workers, said she believed "the majority" of her local members were off work today.

Proctor said the union did not object to the inside workers going back on the job if picket lines were not operating at their schools.

School district superintendent A. J. Longmore said plans for school attendance Tuesday will be withheld "pending the results of today's negotiations."

If there is no change after today's talks, he said, attendance will continue under the same schedule as last week, with all high school students reporting to their own schools at 1 p.m.

MACE PUSHES SUIT

Property developer J. A. Mace flew into Victoria at the weekend to discuss with his lawyers city council's decision to throw the Bay Village shopping centre and highrise development open to a public hearing.

Mace said in an interview today it was extremely unlikely he would drop his court case against the city unless some kind of settlement was reached. Mace is sueing the city for damages due to delays forced on the three-acre 29-storey development at Simcoe and Menzies.

He said that if the public hearing — for which a date has not been set — showed there was widespread feeling his current design should be changed. He was certain new designs could be developed.

But the supermarket which has already been built and which forms part of the original scheme would limit alternatives, Mace said.

He reiterated his position that in 1968 the city had "invited" his company to build a tall tower so as to get away from the "slab" type of lower tower.

Mace said if he was asked to build a tower within the city's 14-storey limit imposed since his project was approved, it would block the view from neighbouring highrises more severly than a tall one.

Drainage Gets Priority Over Saanich Road Work

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today he is willing to endure rough and rugged roads in the municipality if it means the drainage system can be improved this year.

He commented after taking part in council's annual public works tour Saturday morning on which emphasis was placed on roads and drainage problems facing the urban parts of the municipality.

A second tour is expected to be held within a week or two enabling a better view of works problems in the more outlying parts of Saanich.

"I'm certainly prepared to put up with uneven road surfaces, less than satisfactory road surfaces, if we can further improve our storm drains," Curtis said.

He said he felt the consensus of those on tour was that emphasis would be placed on drainage when budget allocations are discussed in April.

Matters to which attention was drawn Saturday included the replacement and upgrading of existing drainage systems in order to improve storm water-carrying capacity.

Sketches and plans of the more prominent problem areas were available, showing color-coded flooded properties. The Gorge and central part of the urban strip on the Saanich-Victoria boundary were two such problem points.

Four aldermen accompanied Curtis — William Campbell (public works chairman), Frank Waring, Leslie Passmore and William Noel — with senior engineering department staff including municipal engineer Bob Daye, assistant John Cowlin, general superintendent Frank Smith, assistant Les Dickson and drainage assistant Tony Miller. The municipal administrator W. M. Tremayne also attended.

HOSPITAL REJECTS PACT

Suggestions for settling the Sandringham Private Hospital strike have not been accepted by the hospital, Labor Minister Bill King disclosed today.

"The proposal which we had for their consideration was not accepted," he said.

"But there is a possibility of another approach being undertaken."

King said he prefers not to give any details because there is "still the possibility of part of the proposal being accepted," and public discussion would "not assist the matter."

"We are at present considering the whole matter and considering a new course of action. I expect to talk to the union in the next day or so," he added.

Crash Kills Woman

A woman is dead, and a male driver in fair condition, in Victoria General Hospital, following an auto accident on Bay west of Bridge this morning.

Firemen spent almost an hour cutting the unidentified woman free. She died nine hours after the accident.

Police are withholding the victims' names until the dead woman's husband, who works in the interior of B.C., is informed.

Downtown Mall in Victoria? It Works in Ottawa

Ald. Sam Bawlf proposes turning two main streets into landscaped pedestrian malls. Here's how another city did it.

By JOHN FERGUSON
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — At times it's been referred to as a "hippy haven" and at other times its been called the country's biggest outdoor luncheon.

But the thing that just about everyone in Ottawa agrees upon is that it can be called a success.

"It" is Ottawa's Sparks Street Mall a three-block, soon to be five block-long, park-like promenade filled with the benches, trees and fountains that have changed a former traffic throughfare in the capital city into a place for people to walk or linger at their leisure.

During the summer young girls sell flowers and fruits and boys peddle ice cream.

On the warm days of spring, summer and fall thousands of civil servants, office workers and store employees flock to the Mall to eat their lunches or browse in the shops and even in winter, on the sunny, milder days, Ottawans take advantage of their mall to linger and chat.

Others spend their time quaffing a few brew and nibbling snacks or eating full course meals in the mall's outdoor cafe while watching the crowds pass by.

But while the success of the Sparks Street Mall is almost universally accepted in Ottawa and the surrounding region today, there was a time when it faced opposition from politicians, merchants and the general public.

The story goes back to the late 1950s when Jacques Greber, world renowned town planner, who was then working as a consultant to the federal government, suggested the idea.

A number of people immediately supported it hoping to revitalize the downtown commerical area which was slowly feeling the effects of the development of extended-hour shopping centres in suburban areas.

In some cases, business had dropped off to the point where several property owners had successfully applied to the Court of Revision for a lowering of their property assessments.

City hall was faced with the prospect of a serious financial crisis because of a decrease in tax revenue if property assessements in the area continued to be lowered.

Despite the fact some opposed it saying traffic would be upset and businesses affected, it was decided to close off a three block section of Sparks Street on an experimental basis for the summer of 1960.

Planters and benches were brought in in an attempt to create a park-like atmosphere.

And in October it was all carted away and the street reopened to traffic again.

But studies carried out during and after the experiment showed it had been an overwhelming success — business volumes increased over the previous year and even the number of people riding the buses downtown rose.

There followed three more years of temporary "summer malls" until the fall of 1965 when store owners along the mall agreed to "winterize" the mall by adding evergreens and lights.

It too was a smashing success and finally in 1966, city council passed the necessary bylaws to establish the mall and tenders were called.

The new mall, complete with larger trees and shrubs, sculptures, fountains and permanent buildings, was completed in the summer of 1967, in time for Centennial celebrations at a cost of about $600,000, including $150,000 for sewer reconstruction.

About $250,000 was paid by abutting property owners with the rest of the tab picked up by the city.

The mall is now administered by a Mall Authority made up of an alderman and a controller and three representatives from owners and merchants along the mall who are selected by city council.

The Mall authority is responsible for controlling commercial activity along the Mall — every commercial venture must be licensed by the authority to prevent a "Coney island" atmosphere — and is responsible for seeing the Mall is properly maintained and cleaned.

The $25,000 annual cost of the latter is paid by an annual levy of abutting owners.

The city was handed the honor of a Vincent Massey award for excellence in the urban environment in 1971 for the sign of the Sparks Street Mall.

And the mall will extend to five blocks in 1975 with the opening of a portion adjacent to an addition to the Bank of Canada now under construction.

It is now considered one of the most successful malls in North America and has become quite well known in planning circles.

Town planners and officials from all over the continent regularly visit Ottawa to get ideas for malls in their own cities.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Hare Lip

It is wonderful to see the advances in the techniques of plastic and oral surgery over the last 30 years. Today, I read that with the help of treatment, very few of the one in 800 babies born with the defect will have a readily noticeable indication of the cleft lip by the time they are four or five years old.

In a release from the University of Southern Californaia, I read about the fine clisic in Rancho Los Amigos in Downey, near Los Angeles. A number of specialists work with the handicapped children — plastic surgeons, children's specialists, expert dentists, nose and throat specialists, speech therapists, psychologist also social workers and people who can teach the children to talk and to overcome the emotional and psychological needs often associated with this handicap.

Fortunately, today a hare lip opesing anc be closed surgically. Sometimes there is also a cleft in the palate (roof of the mouth). In this case, the child talks in a peculiar way. Sometimes a device must be fitted into the roof of the mouth to close the cleft, so that when the child sucks milk it won't go up into his nose.

What is important about this team approach is that many different experts are concerned with helping the child. As Dr. Robert G. Andrews, of the USC School of Dentistry and Rancho Los Amigos Hospital, says, "We are interested in the child's problems in his environment, as well as his physical abnormality."

At Rancho Los Amigos, social workers usually start to work with parents as soon as an abnormality is discovered in a child, because it is very distressing to them to realize that they have a defective child.

Porno Outlets May Face Short Supplies

By IAN MacLEOD

LONDON (CP) — Pornographic books stalls and blue movie clubs in London's sleazy Soho district may be short of supplies for a while following the biggest-ever police raid on hard pornographic distributors.

The swoop, in which obscene publications, photographs and films valued on the black market at $1.18 million, were seized following growing concern among government officials and police over the mushrooming and lucrative pornography trade.

Recently, rival grangs have tried to muscle in on the four groups responsible for running the pornography business in the West End. This led to vicious back-street assaults, police say.

While depleting the illicit trade to the tune of 40 tons of obscene material, the police swoop was also an attempt to prevent future violent confrontations among the gangs.

POLICE USE AXES

During the weekend raids, 100 police officers, led by the crime squad from Scotland Yard, were forced several times to break into sales outlets with crowbars and axes.

A "mad axeman" reported to be going beserk outside a Soho club Saturday night turned out to be an officer forcing a door after entry had been refused.

Police swooped on homes of suspected pornography merchants in the plush areas of Chelsea, Hampstead and Mayfair, making several arrests.

Detectives also raided a farmhouse in Surrey where 20 tons of obscene literature was uncovered.

Nine men were arrested in the raids.

In recent months police have made smaller raids on individual establishments suspected of trading on the pornography market. Among those questioned by police then was stripclub king Paul Raymond, owner of the publication Men Only.

The November issue of the magazine was confiscated by the directors of public prosecutions following complaints that some of the photographs were obscene.

For months before the latest raid, the hand-picked squad of detectives had infiltraded the pornography market, investigating the behind-the scenes mechanism of the trade.

UNDETERRED by the fact his uniform is big enough for two players his size, 11-year-old Roger Therrien of Edmonton heads for the rink Sunday. He was one of thousands of boys across Canada taking part in special weekend games to celebrate

Builders See Trouble In Labor Negotiations

SASKATOON (CP) — Labor negotiations this year could be the biggest problem for Canada's construction industry, the outgoing president of the Canadian Construction Association said today.

Eric L. Hartley of Toronto said more collective agreements than ever before will be negotiated in the construction industry this year.

"If these negotiations result in major work stoppages or increases in wage costs, this industry, both contractors and unions, will be in very serious trouble," he told the opening session of the association's annual meeting.

In a move to counter a possible industry upheaval, he announced that a national labor-management conference will be held in Ottawa March 6-7 "to establish the foundation for a better nationwide approach to industry problems of mutual concern."

It will be the first meeting of its kind. Mr. Hartley's announcement was made jointly with James A. McCambly, executive secretary of the Board of the Building Trades Unions in Canada, who is to address the convention later this week.

The Ottawa conference will bring together two representatives of construction labor organizations and two from management in each province. They will be joined by senior Canadian officials of the International Building Trades Unions and contractor groups.

Some industry sources said that unless sanity is maintained in the Canadian construction industry, the open-shop movement in the United States could spill over into Canada. Many contractors in the U.S. operate without union workers.

Hartley, last in a series of elected annual association presidents would be replaced by Henry de Puyjalon of Ottawa who takes over next month as the association's first full-time president.

He told more than 500 delegates to the three-day convention here:

"With good will and proper communications we can, and we must, settle the wage agreements this year without any stoppages of work and at a reasonable cost."

He singled out the elevator sector of the industry, embroiled in a 22-week dispute that has involved mediation and conciliation efforts.

"This dispute must be solved and solved soon and solved with the interests of the public for most rather than those of either party in the dispute."

Hartley said the general outlook for the construction program this year is a moded increased in physical volume, in the range of $17.5 billion to $18 billion.

He urged that all levels of government in Canada, which combined account for about one-third of Canada's total construction program, make longer-range plans. The influence of governments on private capital investment should not be under-estimated.

Watergate Trial Nears Conclusion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government rested its case today in the Watergate political espionage trial which began Jan. 8.

It rested after calling 51 witnesses including seven members of President Nixon's White House and election campaign staffs and two officials of the Democratic party.

The case grew out of the break-in and alleged bugging of the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate building complex last June 17.

HAD PHONE TAPPED

The defence was to complete its presentation today and presiding U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica scheduled closing arguments for both sides in the afternoon.

Sirica said he would deliver his charge to the jury Tuesday.

The government's last two witnesses were White House lawyer Fred Fielding and Democratic official R. Spencer Oliver.

Oliver, executive director of the Association of State Democratic Chairmen, testified that his telephone at the Democratic national committee offices in the Watergate was tapped.

Fielding, an associate counsel to Nixon, testified about the opening of a safe in the Executive Office Building used by E. Howard Hunt, a former White House consultant who has pleaded guilty in the Watergate case and awaits sentencing.

The remaining defendants are G. Gordon Liddy, former counsel to Nixon's campaign finance committee, and James W. McCord, Nixon's campaign security chief.

Initially, seven men were charged in connection with the break-in and bugging.

But five of the defendants pleaded guilty. Besides Hunt, they are Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez. All await sentencing.

Burial at Sea For Retired MD

As requested in his will, Dr. W. S. Kergin of Saltspring Island was buried at sea today, and his mourners drank tots of rum following the ceremony.

Dr. Kergin, who retired to Saltspring in 1965 after 22 years practising medicine in Prince Rupert, was a small boat operator and was long connected with the Canadian navy as a medical examiner.

Dr. Kergin died last Tuesday in Victoria, aged 67. There was a funeral service at Metropolitan United Church this morning and the casket was taken out to a point near Race Rocks on MV Millbank Scund.

After graduating from medical school in Toronto in 1930 Dr. Kergin moved to practise at Premier Mines in British Columbia. He moved to Ocean Falls from 1940 to 1943.

He is survived by his wife Muriel; sons William of Vancouver and David of Kitchener, Ont.; daughters Susanne of Kitchener and Cheryl of London, England; brother Fred of Toronto, sister Margaret Outerbridge of New Westminster.

Probe Report Ready This Week

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Harry Purdy, commissioner of an inquiry into possible tendering irregularities for the Campbell River Hospital extension, said Sunday the report would be sent to Health Minister Dennie Cocke by the end of the week.

The inquiry ended Jan. 18 after eight days of testimony.

Lane Condition Termed 'Fair'

Sam Lane, president of the Greater Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau and owner of the Olde England Inn at 429 Lampson, is in fair condition today in the coronary care section of Victoria General Hospital.

Fort Garry Fire Traps Guests

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fire broke out in the Fort Garry Hotel for the second time in 13 months early this morning, trapping some guests in their rooms and forcing others on to ledges nine storeys above the ground.

The first alarm was turned in at 2:05 a.m., and another 14 minutes later as the blaze swept along adjoining corridors on the ninth floor of the 12-storey CNR hotel.

Four persons were taken from Fort Garry to St. Boniface General Hospital by fire rescue crews. A hospital spokesman said the four were treated for minor smoke inhalation and released.

Ferry Crew Saves Hapless Sailors

HORSESHOE BAY (CP) — The crew of the B.C. Ferry Bowen Queen rescued five persons Sunday whose sailboat had overturned off the north point of Bowen Island. The five were taken to hospital and treated for exposure. Their names were not released.

Dentists, Doctors Form U.S. Union

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The first national physicians and dentists union in the United States was formed here Sunday to battle interference by outside parties in medical care.

Six unions representing 8,000 practitioners signed the constitution of the American Federation of Physicians and Dentists, organizers told a news conference.

Other doctors unions pledged to join at the two-day conference, bringing initial membership to 25,000, mostly physicians, they said.

The federation will serve as an umbrella group to doctors unions formed to oppose encroachment by government, insurance companies and hospital administrators in medical practice, Dr. Donald C. Meyer, a New York City dentist and union vice-president, told reporters.

"The union is unique in the sense that we are fighting for the right to determine what care is proper for our patients," said Dr. Sanford Marcus of San Francisco. "This is also a consumer advocate organization in a sense."

The union's primary purpose will be to improve medical care for patients rather than win economic gains for doctors, he said.

Attempted Murder

COURTENAY — A 46-year-old Courtenay man, charged with attempted murder, was remanded to Feb. 5 to fix a date for preliminary hearing by Judge John Ryan in Courtenay provincial court today.

Nicholas Hleck, 1032 fifth, was charged Saturday following a shooting incident at his home about 10:15 p.m., in which his wife, Violet, 46, and son, Edward, 16, were shot with a .30-30 rifle.

Both Mrs. Hleck and Edward are in satisfactory condition, Courtenay RCMP said.

Grief-stricken Vietnamese mother is comforted by son as they lay to rest an older son, a South Vietnamese officer killed in heavy fighting immediately before the Sunday ceasefire was to go into effect.

Reds Stall Peace Force

Times News Services

SAIGON — Supervision of the shaky Vietnam truce bogged down before it even got started today when three planeloads of Hanoi and Viet Cong officials staged sit-ins in their aircraft, refusing to deplane until the Saigon government recognized them as residents of South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, South Vietnamese and Communist troops battled from one end of South Vietnam to the other despite the ceasefire declaration, and Saigon reported 480 Communist attacks since the truce began, a larger number than at any time during the war. Nearly 400 Vietnamese were killed.

The first planeload of Viet Cong, who consider themselves citizens of South Vietnam, eventually won the battle of wills after staging a 22-hour sit-in that began after their South Vietnamese C47 transport plane landed at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base Sunday afternoon. Saigon officials today let the nine men off the plane without making them fill out immigration forms but warned its decision did not "constitute a precedent with regard to other such delegates."

Today, two U.S. Air Force C130 Hercules transport planes became the first American aircraft flown into Hanoi since 1954, but the nearly 150 North Vietnamese officers brought back by the plane to Tan Son Nhut also refused to deplane in a similar immigration dispute.

The North Vietnmese and Viet Cong officers, joined by South Vietnamese and U.S. officials, are part of a military group that will work with the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICSS) — a four nation body set up under terms of the Vietnam peace treaty to police a South Vietnam ceasefire.

Canada, a member of the four-nation truce commission, will withdraw immediately if fighting continues, Prime Minister Trudeau warned at a weekend news conference.

"We don't want to get involved in any major war," he said. Canadians were sent there to supervise a truce, not to witness a war.

About 145 military and civilian personnel left for Saigon from Montreal Saturday, the first part of Canada's contingent to the commission which also includes Poland, Indonesia and Hungary.

The first four-power meeting began today, within four hours of the Canadian delegation's arrival in Saigon, and at the Canadians' initiative.

Michel Gauvin, head of the Canadian delegation, told reporters the truce supervisory meetings had started as soon as feasible, but that the dispute between Saigon immigration authorities and arriving Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates had delayed his own organization.

Gauvin said the supervisory force was attempting to arrange another meeting with the joint military commission to make proper arrangements to move out.

"As soon as the joint military commission provides transport and proper security arrangements to get to the regional headquarters, we shall go."

The 1,160-man international commission force will have headquarters in Saigon, regional headquarters in seven military districts and small

HUE — At Quang Tri, on South Vietnam's front line, the heavy shelling stopped shortly after 8 a.m. Sunday, and soldiers of the opposing armies sang and waved at each other across the Thachhan River.

The morning mist was still thick as Lt.-Col. Nguyen The Luong, commander of the marine garrison in Quang Tri city, stepped out of a command bunker, clasped the hands of visiting reporters and said in Vietnamese:

"Thank you very much for your presence here on this historic occasion of the ceasefire. Whether there will be a lasting peace depends on the good will of the enemy."

A toast of weak, cold coffee was drunk. In the rubble that was once a city, there seemed a new beginning.

But 25 miles to the south, across the province line in a village called Phon Gan, the terrible past lingered. South Vietnamese troops, undeterred by the ceasefire, launched an operation into a hamlet a few hundred yards from the road where three North Vietnamese companies had infiltrated early Saturday.

Airborne forces by the truckload were deposited in the surrounding rice paddies and swept forward, supported by artillery fire. Ambulances raced by carrying the wounded

Pilots On Ship

The Pacific Pilotage Authority is conducting an inquiry into the grounding of the freighter Irish Stardust early Thursday morning close to Haddington Island off the northeastern coast of Vancouver Island.

Two B.C. pilots were aboard the Irish vessel when she ripped the entire length of her port side, spewing about 100,000 gallons of crude bunker oil as she made her way to Esquimalt.

Board chairman Alan Clark of Vancouver was unavailable for comment today but another official said that one of the pilots was on duty when the ship struck rocks close to the island between midnight and 1 a.m.

NO NAMES

He refused to give the names of the two pilots.

Maynard Richardson, spokesman of the ship's agents, Anglo-Canadian (West Ship) Ltd. in Vancouver said today the pilots had boarded the Irish Star at Cape Beale, when she was en route to Kitimat.

First reports pinpointed the grounding as being on Haddington Reefs, the same area where the B.C. ferry Queen of Prince Rupert grounded in 1967.

A ministry of transport official said today the correct position was west of the island, close into shore.

Richardson said the ministry of transport's preliminary closed inquiry has been completed. A further inquiry will begin in two weeks' time, either here or in Vancouver.

He said arrangements were being made by the ship's owners, Irish Shipping of Dublin, Ireland, to have $20,000 sent out to help meet costs of mop-up operations.

$500,000 TAB

Chris Hatfield, regional coordinator for the department of environment, estimates the cost of the clean-up job to be in the neighborhood of $500,000.

One of the many officials at Alert Bay on Cormorant Island, centre of the mop-up operations, Hatfield says his department is collecting evidence to support possible charges against the ship's captain, James Caird, for violations of both the Fisheries' Act and Migratory Birds' Conservation Act.

Friday, Caird was remanded in Victoria Provincial Court until Feb. 9. He is charged under the Canada Shipping Act with allowing his ship to discharge oil and failure to report the discharge immediately.

This is the first time in Canada that charges have been laid under pollution regulations of the act.

B. W. Lynch, operations manager of Irish Shipping, and two other company officials have arrived in Victoria.

After a meeting in Richardson's home Sunday, they announced that repairs to the ship will cost about $750,000 and will take about five weeks.

Richardson said, "She has damage to virtually the entire port side, it will mean replacing about 40 plates."

Land Bank Accord Reached

OTTAWA (CP) — An agreement to acquire and assemble land has been reached between the federal and British Columbia governments.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said in a news release today that CMHC will pay 75 per cent of the cost of land bought for housing developments in B.C. while the province will meet the remaining 25 per cent.

Land banks are to be set up in the regional districts of Vancouver and Victoria. Land banks are areas of land set aside for future development.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has said that the federal government is prepared to spend $5 million immediately to support a provincial land assembly operation in B.C.

The federal government also has announced plans to expand land banking provisions in the National Housing Act. Basford has said the government will set up a new communities program providing for purchase of land to create entirely new towns.

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer refused comment until he had received official word on the agreement from Ottawa.

In Toronto Ron Basford, minister of state for urban affairs, said today he will introduce legislation today calling for federal leadership and assistance in creation of new

TERRA NOVA BOUND FOR VIETNAM

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson said today the destroyer Terra Nova is sailing for the South Pacific as part of contingency plans to evacuate Canadian peace observers in Vietnam in an emergency.

Richardson told the Commons the anti-submarine vessel will not enter territorial waters of North or South Vietnam during what he called its "extended training exercise."

But it was being sent as part of the government's plans to remove Canadian observers if the Vietnam ceasefire erupts into renewed warfare.

The destroyer sailed from Esquimalt today.

Quebec Offers Games Aid

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Quebec will not hesitate to pick up the tab for a $5 to $10 million deficit for the 1976 Olympic Games, Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said Sunday.

He said the games will cost $310 million and these costs can be covered by revenue from the Olympics.

Ottawa, however, doubts the claims.

Prime Minister Trudeau at the weekend repeated earlier statements he is demanding written "guarantees" from Montreal that there will be no deficit for Ottawa to pay.

Montreal's Mayor Drapeau has insisted Montreal will not be asking the federal government for large sums of money to pay for the games.

But Montreal is hinging this on the idea that the sale of special coins will generate $250 million.

Roger Rousseau, commissioner-general for the 1976 summer games, said Ottawa has largely approved the proposed budget for the Olympics except for proposed sale of the specially-minted coins.

He said the government apparently doubts the amount that coin sales could earn and if they brought in less than organizers hope, the games would be run at a deficit.

There could be no budget for the games without the coin sales.

The Quebec finance minister said Sunday that the estimated cost contained a margin for error and inflation and that the committee had not requested funds from Ottawa.

The $60 million price tag he projected for administration costs would be derived from ticket sales and the sale of television rights.

Describing the games as "a challenge which must be accepted," Garneau said it would be disastrous to the economy of Montreal and Quebec if they were cancelled.

He did not elaborate.

Teamster Office Bombed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A fire bomb thrown through a second-floor window of the Teamsters' Building in Vancouver caused minor fire damage and smoke damage to an office today.

A half-hour later, at 3:45 a.m., an unidentified man called The Sun newspaper and several radio stations and said the bombing had been done by Teamsters desgruntled by the leadership of Senator Ed Lawson.

"Lawson is pulling up sticks and we don't like it," he said. "He's made his money and now he is pulling out — and we're getting violent."

The man said bombings would continue "on down the line" with other Teamster leaders.

Barrett Cancels Squamish As Site for Coal Loading

Barrett indicated the government is likely to relocate the port at Britannia Beach, which is 10 miles closer to Vancouver on Howe Sound.

Barrett made the announcement at a press conference this morning at which he released three environmental studies done on the Squamish site. The major report was done by environmentalist Howard Paish, with the other two coming from the federal department of the environment and the B.C. Railway.

Paish's report, on which Barrett said he based his decision to scrap the Squamish site, recommends against locating the port there. The environment department report, part of which was released earlier by federal Environment Minister Jack Davis, had recommended that further study be done of the Squamish site.

Barrett said today's announcement cancels a "handshake deal" between Davis and former Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who had tentatively agreed to locate the port at Squamish.

DISPUTES STOP ONTARIO MAIL

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Undelivered mail, including old age pension cheques, piled up here and in Peterborough, Ont., Monday as letter carriers and postal workers continued a dispute with local postal officials.

Supervisory personnel in Belleville were attempting to sort old-age pension cheques and union members agreed the pensioners should be allowed to collect their cheques at the post office. But that was the only mail that was moving.

At issue is management's intention to send carriers to their routes by taxi instead of bus so more time could be spent deliverying mail. Employees complain this move would result in increased work loads.

Herb Coombes, secretary of the Peterborough local of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, said he expected the walkout in his city would only last one day.

Parole Board Interfering—Judge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Provincial Court Judge Les Bewley has accused the National Parole Board of "interfering on a massive scale with the judiciary."

"It (the board) is upsetting the judiciary function right, left and centre," said Bewley, who lit into the National Parole Board Saturday night after a speech to the Vancouver Institute by board chairman George Street.

Bewley was heckled and told to sit down when he strode to the front of the lecture hall following Street's speech brandishing police photographs of a 63-year-old man killed in Vancouver last year. He said a 20-year-old parolee with a long record of petty crime was found guilty of the murder and sentenced to life imprisonment Jan. 12.

Bewley asked Street why David John Urias had been released on parole when he had such a long record of petty crime. "Did you know his whole record and on what basis did you lift his sentence?"

Street replied: "We have made 6,700 other mistakes in 14 years. The system is not perfect. How many times do you want me to come out and bare my soul and admit our mistakes?"

Street said the three-day pass system was handled by the prisons and not by the parole board. He said it was a good system, but "unfortunately it got out of hand, they were giving three-day passes every three days."

Bewley said the board had become "extremely intransigent" and said the federal government should either direct the board to consult with judges to a much greater extent or put judges on the board.

"Very few judges sentence a man to 'X' years in jail unless they want him to serve 'X' years in jail," Bewley said.

Street said Canada has the greatest per capita prison population in the world because Canadians are punitive. He said locking up prisoners for long periods of time prevented them from learning responsibilities.

"Whenever possible or feasible, the offender should be kept in the community where he can work and support his dependents, contribute to the economy of the country and learn to be a responsible citizen" Street said.

He also pointed out that punishment was expensive. It cost $9,720 to keep a prisoner in a federal institution.

In comparison, the total average cost for preparing a case for the parole board and maintaining a convict on parole in the first year was $1,105. Second-year costs of supervision averaged $458.

He said he favored requiring criminals to pay restitution to their victims. In his speech, Street said continuous punishment in a penal institution has little beneficial effect.
